GERMAN SOCIALISTS TO ASK REFERENDUM ON THE DAWES PLAN

Party Will First Approach the Government, but Has Votes to Force Action.

CONFIDENT PEOPLE WANT IT

POINCARE GOING TO LONDON

BERLIN, May 9 (Associated Press).—A popular referendum on the question of acceptance or rejection of the Dawes reparation report will be requested of the Government by the German Socialist Party.

In proposing a referendum as the surest method for determining popular opinion in Germany on the Dawes report the United Socialists assert that they are moved by the conviction that last Sunday's Reichstag elections, which resulted in heavy gains for the candidates of the extreme Right and Left parties, failed to reflect the actual state of the public mind on what the Socialists believe to be the outstanding issue in Germany, as the Nationalists and Communists and General Ludendorff's "Freedom Party" all waxed fat on the malcontent vote.

The Socialists now believe a referendum solely devoted to sounding the opinion of the German voter on the experts' report will contribute materially to clarifying a situation which has become obscured through variegated party lineups and confusion of issues.

The Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, which voted today in favor of a popular referendum, is convinced a national referendum would return an overwhelming vote in favor of adoption of the Dawes report.

Other Parties Oppose Referendum.

The organ of the Industrialists, the Zeit, which is close to Foreign Minister Stresemann, is not enthusiastic over the action of the Socialists. It declares that a referendum would be unsuitable to decide the issue, which should be left to the new Reichstag. More pronounced opposition to the proposals of the Socialists is voiced by the Nationalist organ, the Tag, the primary objection of which to the plan is indicated in an assertion that the average voter is wholly unqualified to pass on such an intricate economic problem as that involved in the experts' proposals. The Tag also rejects the suggestion of a referendum on the ground that the Dawes report should not be subjected to a popular vote which would be expressed simply by a "yes" or "no" ballot without obvious qualification. The newspaper also fears that the result of such a referendum eventually would prove inimical or prejudicial to German interests in connection with subsequent negotiations.

Only one-tenth of all the eligible voters is needed to put the referendum plan into operation. The Socialists easily could muster this number out of their own ranks. This number of petitioners constitutes the vote required for an initiative, whereupon the Reichstag would have to draft a law to be presented for a regular referendum.

President Ebert has not yet conferred with representatives of the Nationalist Party or the other Parliamentary leaders with respect to the formation of a new Government and will defer such action until his return from Cologne, to which city he will go tomorrow to attend the opening ceremonies of the Cologne Fair. In political circles there is an opinion that the President will require the Nationalists to make an unequivocal declaration of their allegiance to the republic and the Weimar Constitution and of their acceptance of the Dawes report before discussing with them the formation of a new Government.

Nationalists Demand Reservations.

BERLIN, May 9.—The Nationalist group is hard hit by a Majority Socialist official proposal to leave the acceptance or rejection of the Dawes reparations experts' plan to a popular referendum. The Nationalists, who oppose acceptance of the plan, have been arranging ever since the election a coalition of all the reactionary parties for the purpose of defeating the acceptance of the plan in the next session of the Reichstag.

The Republican elements believe the majority of people in Germany want acceptance as the only open door to a peaceful, prosperous Republican future, and the Socialists' proposal today, it is believed, will receive nation-wide approval.

The Nationalists oppose the plan, saying the people could vote only "Yes," whereas their view, as expressed by Herr Hergt, whom they want for Chancellor, is that reservations must be made. The Nationalists want answers from France on the questions of what sanctions will be taken if the plan is not fulfilled partly or if the loan fails, and

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 9.—Three crooks, who are known to the Paris police as "the world's worst thieves," were captured today on the Bourse while they were practicing for work on visitors to the Olympic Games.

The men are Charles Jellineck, Ernest Bitschits, both Hungarians, and Martin Schweiter, a Rumanian. The first is the leader and the last named is the banker of a large group of international thieves who for the past several years have pillaged wealthy tourists in Europe with systematic regularity. They are accredited with sixty profitable robberies on the Riviera during the past few months.

This afternoon while a detective was watching near the Bourse, he noticed Jellineck followed constantly the footsteps of a prominent banker. The two companions then appeared on the scene and with sleight-of-hand skill extracted a purse from the pocket of the victim. The police then acted so quickly that passersby did not observe that an arrest was being made.

LABORITES DISRUPT COMMONS SESSION

UPBRAID SPEAKER ON RULING

LONDON, May 9.—The Labor members of Parliament, who had checkered even the long record of the House of Commons with some noteworthy "scenes" when they were in opposition, apparently have not lost their facility with the assumption of office. They contributed to a disturbance today, the upshot of which was the adjournment of the House by the Speaker after he had been called on to reply to direct challenges of his conduct in refusing to accept immediately a Labor motion for closure.

Curiously enough, it was a bill to give home rule to Scotland, usually a quite academic measure, which provoked the fireworks. It had had a peaceful progress until a few moments before the time appointed for a division to be taken, when some Labor members objected to Sir Robert Horne being allowed to speak, since he had not been present during the debate.

Then Len Sturrock, Liberal, rose to "talk the bill out," whereupon the Clyde members grew extremely indignant and shouted and booed till he was drowned out.

"Divide, divide," chanted the Glasgow men. Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Maxton and Mr. MacPherson jumped up in rotation to move closure, but each time the Unionists rose in serried columns to continue the debate.

The result was that the Speaker declined to accept the motion for closure.

Mr. Hogge, Liberal, was very angry. "It's a scandal," he shouted.

"We have been unfairly treated, and you've got to recognize it," declared David Kirkwood, Labor.

The Speaker, amid pandemonium, declared sternly that so long as he was in the chair he would conduct his duties according to his own conscience. This caused a further uproar, during which Mr. Kirkwood shouted to Lord Winterton, who was protesting against the defiance of the Speaker's ruling:

"There will be no orders of the day," said fiery Neil McLean, Labor member, and the Speaker finally adjourned the House and departed amid a chorus of cries from Mr. Kirkwood:

"So you didn' get your orders of the day after all."

Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who had evidently been sent for, just then arrived, to be angrily greeted from one of his own supporters with the query:

"What are you coming in now for, after being away all day?"

W. J. BURNS QUITS FEDERAL SERVICE; LONG UNDER FIRE

CALLED IN SENATE HEARINGS

DENIED RESIGNING EARLIER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—William J. Burns, Director of the Bureau of Investigation in the Department of Justice for the last three years, tendered his resignation from that office today. The resignation was accepted by Attorney General Stone, to take effect at once, as requested by Mr. Burns.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Burns said that the "Bureau of Investigation is today functioning at the highest degree of efficiency."

A statement issued by the Department of Justice said Mr. Burns had been in ill health for some time. No specific reason for the resignation was contained in Mr. Burns's letter. It was said he probably would take a rest for a few months, and then resume charge of the Burns Detective Agency.

Attorney General Stone said in his letter accepting Mr. Burns's resignation:

"I desire to thank you for your services to the Government and to wish you all future success and happiness."

In a statement given by the Department of Justice to the press it was said that when Mr. Daugherty resigned it was the intention of Mr. Burns to retire, but he felt that he should remain in office until the new Attorney General had familiarized himself with the details of the Bureau of Investigation. It was said also that owing to the condition of Mr. Burns's health for many months his family had urged him to relinquish his office, but he had remained to complete many important investigations, which were now concluded.

Mr. Burns has appeared several times as a witness before the Senate committee engaged in investigating the conduct of the Department of Justice under Harry M. Daugherty. His last appearance was on Wednesday, when he testified that Mr. Daugherty, while Attorney General, had instructed him to send an agent of the department to look into the record of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, "prosecutor" of the Department of Justice investigation.

Statement From the Department.

The statement issued by the Department of Justice reads:

"William J. Burns, for the past three years Director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, today places his resignation as head of that bureau into the hands of Attorney General Stone, and the latter, at Mr. Burns's request, accepted it, to take effect immediately.

"In severing his connection with the department Mr. Burns terminates a service in behalf of the Government covering nearly a quarter of a century, for prior to assuming the directorship of the Bureau of Investigation Mr. Burns for years was identified with the secret service of the Treasury Department, though for an interval he left the Government service to organize the Burns International Detective Agency, which today has offices and branches in all the important cities of the world.

"While the former Director of the Bureau of Investigation has not indicated what he will do now that he is free of governmental responsibilities, it was said to be likely that he would take a rest for a few months and subsequently reassume the directorship of the great detective agency which bears his name.

"In accepting Mr. Burns's resignation, Attorney General Stone stated that he desired to 'thank you for your services to the Government and to wish you all future success and happiness.'"

Mr. Burns's letter of resignation follows:

May 9, 1924.

Hon. Harlan F. Stone,
Attorney General.

My dear Attorney General:

As indicated by me in our previous conversation, I desire to be relieved of the duties of Director of the Bureau of Investigation and I hope you will

Coolidge Knew Nothing of Lodge Court Plan; Will Call No Arms Conference This Summer

WASHINGTON, May 9.—President Coolidge let it be known today that he had not been directly consulted by Senator Lodge in regard to the plan for a world court, which Mr. Lodge presented to the Senate yesterday. While everything said at the White House on the subject was cautious, it was evident that the plan of Senator Lodge could not be regarded as an Administration plan.

The spokesman for the President disclosed that Senator Lodge had indicated that he had a plan for a world court to which the United States could adhere, and had expressed an intention of discussing its provisions with the President after it was completed. But no opportunity for that discussion had come prior to his presentation of the plan to the Senate.

That the President was not in accord with the Lodge plan for setting up a court which ignored the existing machinery of the Permanent Court of International Justice, organized under the League of Nations, was indicated from an explanation by the White House spokesman that the President's position as to a world court of justice had been set forth in his address to Congress in December and in his speech at The Associated Press luncheon in New York in April.

The Lodge plan is generally regarded here as largely academic, as there appears to be no prospect of action upon it during the present session of Congress. That the President did not intend to have it appear that he took lightly any suggestions from Senator Lodge was made apparent, however, by a statement of the White House spokesman that anything on the subject from Mr. Lodge, in view of his long experience in foreign affairs, would merit consideration.

In connection with the World Court matter it was said at the White House that President Coolidge was not disposed to call a conference for a further limitation of armament this Summer, because conditions in Europe were not composed and because the United States would be in the midst of a political campaign.

The opinion of the White House is that conditions have not improved sufficiently in Europe to justify the calling of a conference. France, it is believed, would not be ready until long after her elections this month to sit down and discuss the reduction of land forces and further limitation of navies.

In his speech before The Associated Press President Coolidge suggested a conference on not only further limitation of armament but also for the codification of international laws. Only the four or five leading powers, it was suggested today, would be interested in armament reduction, while the entire world would be represented in the conference on International laws.

Until Europe was more composed in mind and her financial conditions were improved, the President, it was said, did not believe that either of the conferences should be called.

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN LANDS HOURS LATE

PAYS VISIT TO MGR. HAYES

Delayed by weather and deprived of the reception from the public which New York had prepared for him, Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, returning from Rome, set foot again on American soil last night at 10 o'clock, driving from Pier A through dark and wet streets, with no crowds to greet him, first to the residence of Cardinal Hayes behind St. Patrick's Cathedral and thence to the Vanderbilt Hotel, where more than 300 clergy and laity of the church had waited literally a whole day to extend their greetings.

In his last day at sea the Cardinal had seen the liner Berengaria turn about on her course and go twenty miles out of her way on an errand of mercy; he had seen a fatally injured man taken aboard the ship on which he was a passenger; he had come up through the fog and murk of the dark harbor, and then he had found waiting a semblance of a welcome at Quarantine, whether the reception committee had gone on the city's boat Macom. He heard, too, a joyous greeting from a delegation from a Manhattan college where he had gone to school, and with a marvelous good nature he stood patiently in the drizzling rain on the upper deck of the Macom while the movie men and the camera men supplied their share of the welcome.

Gay Despite Darkness.

While not the gorgeous and impressive ceremony that had been carefully planned, the reception was unique in many ways. The Macom played her searchlight on the giant liner as the new Cardinal, whom Chicago will greet tomorrow and Monday, crossed the carpeted gangplank. The photographers burned great flares that lit the whole area of the steamship as they took their pictures. The Fire Department band, on a Dock Department boat, played "Home, Sweet Home," and the national anthem, and far down the harbor the Statue of Liberty gleamed green. The greeting of the new Cardinal was at least unusual.

When the Reception Commission first saw his Eminence he was on an upper deck waving his tall silk hat. The red of his cap showed just above the rail. "There he is; there's the hat," shouted a man on the Macom, and then the college boys from Manhattan began their shouting. Within a few minutes Thomas J. McGrath, customs inspector, who went to school with the Cardinal, had boarded the Berengaria and passed the Cardinal's baggage. A few minutes later the Committee of Welcome, headed by Grover Whalen and Rodman Wanamaker for New York, and by Mgr. Kelly for Chicago, had boarded the liner and were escorting the Cardinal to the gangplank.

With but a few minutes more, having been photographed in the rain, smiling broadly, the Cardinal sat in the after saloon of the Macom surrounded by reporters. There he answered questions for some time and then he blessed the entire gathering—his first official act upon returning to America.

Papal Honor for Newspaper Man.

Throughout the interview the Cardinal was in the best of humor. He laughed frequently and smiled all the time. He answered readily every question put, and seemed particularly pleased when he let it be known that among the honors he would bestow when he gets to Chicago was one for a newspaper man. Who it was, he would not say. He explained there are some little items he must keep for his real homecoming in Illinois.

"Have you any message for your old Brooklyn friends?" was the first question asked.

"I am glad beyond measure to get back to them and to be greeted by them, I telegraphed to Cardinal Hayes that I would be glad to be back in the sheltering arms of my neighboring town. I don't know how he'll like that 'neighboring,'" said the Cardinal.

"What message have you brought for

SMITH BY VETO KILLS 19 SALARY INCREASES

SCHOOL PENSION RISE LOST

ALBANY, May 9.—Having vetoed twenty-four bills, signed ten and prepared an omnibus veto message covering a few less than fifty more bills, Governor Smith laid down his pen just before 4 o'clock this morning and went to bed, knowing that the last of the thirty-day bills had been disposed of and that he was at liberty to go to New York. The bills included in the omnibus veto will be named tomorrow.

Among the bills vetoed, exclusive of the omnibus batch, were two providing for an increase in the salaries of Judges of the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court Justices assigned to the Appellate Division, approval of which had been expected, and nineteen salary grab measures, all affecting New York City or the counties comprising it. The measures disapproved provided for the creation of new offices, additional State employes and general increases in salaries for scores of officials and employes.

Holds Home Rule Violated.

During the closing days of the Legislature the Governor warned the leaders against passing salary grab bills, saying that he intended to veto them unless exceptionally good reasons were presented in their favor. Despite this warning, bills of this nature were passed at breakneck speed.

Some of the bills were disapproved by the Governor on the ground that they violated the principle of home rule and that under the new home rule amendment the local authorities should decide such matters. Others he termed wrong in principle.

In a memorandum accompanying the veto of twelve of these bills, the Governor wrote:

"All of the bills provide for the creation of new offices, additional employes in courts and offices and general increases of salary. Every one of them passed the Legislature in its dying hours. It is reasonable to assume that not one of them received the legislative consideration to which it was entitled. Unless the annual crop of this type of bills is discouraged by veto, no move will ever be made to properly regulate the salaries of all persons paid from the funds of the people of the City of New York. It is entirely wrong in principle. Throughout the rest of the State all or nearly all of the salaries herein dealt with are fixed by the Boards of Supervisors.

"New York City seems to be singled out as the one place that the Legislature desires to keep its grip on, and every year sees a large number of these bills passing both houses of the Legislature in the closing hours of the session. There is a great deal to the contention that there should be an equalization of salaries in the five counties making up Greater New York. Growth of population and increase of business in what were referred to as the outlying boroughs at the time the greater city was formed have made of some of our counties cities in themselves. Outside of the County of Richmond, every county in the city of Greater New York has a population greatly in excess of any other city in the State.

"A local commission should be appointed to make a complete study of the county offices and the salaries therein paid, and, by statute, power should be conferred upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to make proper provision for the number and salaries of the employes required to operate the courts and the county offices, as they are wholly within the limits of one city. This would be good business, it would be sound government and it would be carrying out the letter and the spirit of the recent home-rule amendment to the Constitution of the State."

FIVE-EIGHTEENTHS TO WIFE

OTHERS SHARE EQUALLY

Good Ground Property Not Mentioned, but Will Go to the Widow.

The will of Charles F. Murphy, for twenty-two years leader of Tammany, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogate's Court.

According to Arthur J. Baldwin, for years Mr. Murphy's personal attorney, and now attorney for Mrs. Murphy, the value of the estate is about $450,000. Mr. Baldwin said he based this estimate on the best information obtainable. This was approximately the estimate of Mr. Murphy's wealth made by friends at the time of his death, although the public generally believed the value of the estate was much larger.

Except for a bequest to Philip F. Donohue, a close friend and long-time associate of Mr. Murphy, and Treasurer of Tammany Hall, by which Mr. Donohue is to receive whatever sums of money he might have owed Mr. Murphy at the time of his death, the will divides the estate between Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Mabel Graham Foley, her daughter, and wife of Surrogate James A. Foley, and members of Mr. Murphy's family. There is a bequest of $5,000 to Police Inspector Patrick J. Cray, Mr. Murphy's brother-in-law, but Mr. Cray died a year ago, after the will was signed.

The will leaves the house at 305 East Seventeenth Street, in which Mr. and Mrs. Murphy lived for many years, and another house at 201 East Seventeenth Street to Mrs. Murphy, and a house at 205 East Seventeenth Street to his sister, Mrs. Margaret Cray. The rest of the estate is divided into eighteen parts, of which five parts go to Mrs. Margaret Murphy, his wife, and two parts go to Mrs. Mabel Graham Foley, her daughter.

Mrs. Murphy, Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and Mr. Donohue are named as executrix and executors, without bond. The will was signed on Nov. 9, 1917, and was witnessed by Mr. Baldwin and Joseph Johnson, now Commissioner of Public Works of the Borough of Manhattan.

Text of the Will.

The text of the will follows:

I, Charles F. Murphy, of the City, County and State of New York, do hereby make, publish and declare this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills and codicils by me made.

First—I direct the payment of all my just debts as soon after my demise as practicable.

Second—I give and devise to my beloved wife, Margaret Murphy, the real property which we have used as our home, known as 305 East Seventeenth Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, together with the contents and furnishings, and also the real property situate on the northeast corner of Second Avenue and Seventeenth Street, in said borough and city, and known as 201 East Seventeenth Street.

Third—I give and devise the real estate and house known as 209 East Seventeenth Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, together with the personalty therein contained, to my sister, Margaret Cray.

Fourth—I give and devise to my brother-in-law, Patrick Cray, the sum of $5,000.

Fifth—I give and devise to my friend, Philip F. Donohue, whatever sums of money he may owe me at the time of my decease, and I hereby direct my executors to cancel and discharge the same, giving him full receipt and acquittance therefor.

MINORITY TAXES WIN; BILL TO PASS TODAY

NEW NORMAL RATES STAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Changed by the Democratic radical coalition until it little resembles its original self, the Mellon Tax Revision bill will be finally passed by the Senate tomorrow afternoon under an agreement made just before adjournment tonight, after a session in which further victories as to surtax and normal rates were scored by the coalition.

By a vote of 46 to 39 the Senate confirmed a previous ballot of 43 to 40 in the Committee of the Whole to put the Simmons surtaxes in the bill, and by another vote of 47 to 36 it rejected a suggested compromise surtax schedule, offered by Senator Smoot, the Finance Committee Chairman.

The Simmons surtaxes run up to a 40 per cent. maximum on incomes of $500,000 and more, while the Smoot compromise had a maximum of 32 per cent. on incomes of $300,000. Through the adoption of the final Simmons amendment the Longworth scale, with its 37½ per cent maximum, was thrown into the discard—at least until the conference begins with the House managers.

Disposal of the surtaxes came this afternoon when the Senate reverted from the Committee of the Whole to its customary status.

Senator Smoot offered as a substitute for the Simmons rates, which had already been inserted in the bill, his compromise, which began with a tax of 1 per cent. on $10,000-$12,000 income. Further on his scale was 15 per cent on $62,000-$56,000; 25 per cent. on $92,000-$96,000; 30 per cent. on $250,000-$300,000; 32 per cent. on incomes above $300,000.

The Simmons surtaxes, running to a 40 per cent. maximum on incomes of more than $500,000, were adopted by a vote of 46 to 39, after a suggested compromise by Senator Smoot, mounting to a surtax maximum of 32 per cent. on $300,000 incomes, had been rejected by a vote of 47 to 36. When the Simmons schedules were adopted in the Committee of the Whole early this week the vote was 43 to 40.

HOUSE REJECTS EXCLUSION CHANGE, REBUFFS COOLIDGE

PRESIDENT HOTLY ASSAILED

SENATE AWAITS REVISION

Leaders of Both Branches to Confer Today on Date for Ban and Suggestion of Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—President Coolidge met another rebuff on the Immigration bill at the hands of Congress today when the House, by a vote of 191 to 171, rejected his proposal that the effective date of Japanese exclusion be postponed until March 1, 1925, and he be authorized in the meantime to negotiate an arrangement with Japan looking to the abrogation of the gentlemen's agreement.

The vote came at the end of a debate in which the President was sharply criticised on the ground that he was attempting to usurp the authority of the House at the instance of a foreign power. Despite the efforts of Administration leaders, twenty-three Republicans joined with the Democrats in defeating the plan of the President to amend the Immigration bill with a view to making it less objectionable to the Japanese.

The form of the action in the House was the passage of a motion to recommit the conference report, embodying the President's suggestions, with instructions to the conferees to disagree to the amendment fixing March 1, 1925, as the effective date of Japanese exclusion and to oppose the other amendment, recommended by the President, requesting him to treat with Japan in relation to the abrogation of the gentlemen's agreement.

The House thus placed itself on record once more in favor of Japanese exclusion, to become effective immediately, and as opposed to any treaty arrangements with Japan on the subject of immigration. Fear is expressed by some leaders that as a result of the new complication the whole program for restrictive immigration will fail.

Senate and House Leaders Meet Today.

Senate action on exclusion will be delayed until the conferees submit a revised report in accordance with the instructions of the House. The House and Senate managers will meet tomorrow to discuss the new turn of events and future plans.

Although there was talk among the conferees of working for a compromise, it was said that certain of the House leaders would fight to block postponement of the exclusion date beyond July 1, 1924.

Whether the Senate will follow the lead of the House in rejecting the Administration's amendments is a matter of speculation among House leaders tonight. The exclusion provision was adopted by the Senate by an overwhelming vote and strong opposition to compliance with the President's recommendations was expressed in the debate yesterday.

Suggestion was made in the course of today's debate that President Coolidge would veto the immigration bill if it came to him minus the amendments bearing on Japanese exclusion that were adopted as a result of his insistence, although no direct statement to this effect has come from the White House, which was silent tonight on the action of the House.

Sabath and Raker Move Recommittal.

Today's fight over Japanese exclusion started when Representative Johnson of Washington, Chairman of the Immigration Committee, called up for adoption the conference report which he submitted yesterday.

This move was resisted by Representative Raker, Democrat, of California, who had the support of most of the members from the Pacific Coast. Representative Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, who was in the forefront of the fight against the Administration program, offered the motion to recommit the conference report to conference.

Representative Raker offered an amendment to the Sabath motion, directing the conferees to strike from the bill the two Japanese amendments in controversy. The Sabath motion in its original form was carried by a vote of 189 to 174. The vote then recurred on the motion to recommit as amended by Mr. Raker. This was adopted by a vote of 191 to 171.

Earlier in the proceedings Speaker Gillett had overruled points of order made by Representatives Raker and Sabath that in accepting the two amendments suggested by the President the conferees had exceeded their authority.

President Assailed in Angry Debate.

Today's debate in the House was one of the most spirited of the session. The Pacific Coast members were in anger over the President's alleged dictation to the conference in connection with the exclusion provision, and they were harsh in their criticism. "Executive dictation," "usurpation of legislative authority" and "interference with the rights of Congress" were terms frequently employed.

Democrats suggested that the President had waited until after the California primaries before he showed his hand on the immigration bill.

In urging the adoption of the conference report Chairman Johnson declared that it would be a graceful thing to accede to the request of the President and the Secretary of State that the date of Japanese exclusion be [illegible] for

Y. W. C. A. Leader Advises the Working Girl To Dress Flashily if She Would Succeed

Taking issue with the college girls in the National Student Assembly of the Young Women's Christian Association, who asserted at a recent meeting that the model girl should be gentle of mien and inconspicuous of dress, Helen Gwynne of Indianapolis, retiring President of the National Industrial Assembly of the same organization, told her sister members at a farewell meeting in the Y. W. C. A. building, 600 Lexington Avenue, yesterday that if they ever expected to get anywhere they had "better wear flashy clothes and make as striking a showing as possible."

"The demure, submissive working girl doesn't get far in factories or matrimonially," declared Miss Gwynne, whose assembly is made up of 30,000 factory girls in all parts of the country. "No matter if they want to get married or seek promotion where they are employed, working girls must fight to protect their rights."

Miss Gwynne, herself a factory worker, pointed out that college girls can well heed their advice because of the effect of contrasts. She said a girl of a wealthy family would be set off to better advantage in her surroundings by dressing simply. A working girl, however, she added, would appear too coarse and plain in simple dress in poor surroundings, whereas the contrast she would make in her environment by wearing striking clothes would bring her attention.

Miss Gwynne and other delegates to the Industrial Assembly meetings, which were held here in connection with the Y. W. C. A. convention, made a tour of New York factories. Miss Gwynne said she found no restrictions upon pretty clothes or bobbed hair.

"The old prejudice against the girl with bobbed hair has been completely overcome," she said. "There is now no feeling that the girl with shorn locks or who is dressed prettily is less efficient or less reliable."

Report Col. Rogers Bringing Daughter Home; Break With Husband, Count Salm, Hinted

Reports were current in the city last night that Colonel H. H. Rogers, who sailed for Europe on April 26, was returning, and bringing with him his daughter Millicent, the Countess Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten. Count Salm was not in the party, according to the report.

A near relative of the Rogers family said that while there was no definite confirmation of a break between the former Miss Rogers and the Austrian Count, whom she quietly married last January, members of the family had grounds for believing that such might be the case.

Miss Rogers, who is 20 years old and granddaughter of the late H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company, was married to Count Ludwig at the Municipal Building on Jan. 9, by Deputy City Clerk James J. McCormick.

The wedding took place without the knowledge of the bride's father or mother, who had no intimation that their daughter's friendship for the middle aged Austrian had more than passed the acquaintance stage.

The couple sailed for Europe on Jan. 26. Prior to leaving the bride stated that her parents had not called on them since the marriage. None of her family was at the pier when the ship sailed.

According to an affidavit made by the Count at the Municipal Building when the marriage license was granted, his full name is Ludwig Albrecht Konstantin Salm. He described himself as a "dealer in antiques," and said that he had been divorced from his first wife, formerly the Baronesse von Kromsta.

Two months prior to the marriage with Miss Rogers it was understood that the Count was to marry Mrs. Grace Sands Montgomery Coffin. Though no formal announcement of the engagement had been made, the Count later stated that "we had thought of getting married."

Friends of the Count denied after his marriage to the Rogers heiress that he was a fortune hunter.

Colonel Rogers sailed for Europe on the Berengaria last month to put his son, H. H. Rogers Jr., in Oxford. He would not say then whether he would see his daughter.

March 1, 1925, instead of July 1, 1924, as proposed by the Senate and the House. He insisted that it would in no wise affect the principle of exclusion.

"The extension will not result in a flood of Oriental immigration, as has been suggested," he declared.

"If it is true that this legislation does away with the 'gentlemen's agreement,' why in God's name do you insert a provision authorizing the President to terminate that arrangement?" asked Representative Free of California.

"Does the gentleman want to be kind and decent to another nation or just hit it on the head?" Mr. Johnson countered.

Longworth urged the House to accept the conference report as submitted. He said that the United States was on friendly terms with Japan and that no step should be taken that would tend to disrupt relations between the two nations.

Addressing the members from California, Mr. Longworth said:

"You have won your long fight for Japanese exclusion. Why imperil your victory by rejecting this report or sending it back to conference? The people of this country are in favor of restrictive immigration. A vote against this report is a vote against restrictive immigration as proposed."

Tincher Defies Democratic Jeers.

"Three classes are opposing the adoption of this conference report!" shouted Representative Tincher, Republican, of Kansas. "First are those opposed to any immigration; second, the members from the West Coast, who are prejudiced whenever the word 'Japan' is mentioned; third, those ill-advised persons who think they can get something on Calvin Coolidge by turning down this report. Our opponents are trying to drag politics into this matter to that extent."

At this point Mr. Tincher, who has a stentorian voice, was interrupted by jeers, hoots and catcalls from the Democratic side.

"You can hoot all you want to," remarked Mr. Tincher.

"Louder! Louder!" yelled the Democrats in derision.

"No member of this house," said Mr. Tincher, "has a right to vote against this report and say that the act is friendly to a law of exclusion. It has also been suggested that President Coolidge could not have carried California if it had not been that the people of the State thought that he was for Japanese exclusion. There is nobody against Coolidge except Hiram Johnson, and Hiram ought to find that out soon."

Representative Burton deprecated the action of Congress in applying the exclusion principle to the Japanese. He asserted that the Japanese are a sensitive and proud people and that their susceptibilities would be wounded by the legislation proposed.

Representative McLafferty, Republican, of California, said:

"I am very glad to have heard it so clearly stated here that this is not a political question. I am not here to flaunt anybody, but this whole question is so fundamental with me that before I would change on this now I would allow myself to be cut to pieces by inches right here before your eyes."

(Laughter and applause.)

Representative Kraus of California denounced the Japanese features of the bill as a sacrifice at the suggestion of President Coolidge. He declared that the House should not yield its power to legislate to the President. He charged that the effective date of Japanese exclusion was deferred until March 1, 1925, as a result of a "secret meeting at the White House." He insisted that the effect of placing the Japanese on a quota basis between July 1, 1924, and March 1, 1925, would be to let in a flood of Oriental immigration.

Replying to Mr. Raker, Chairman Johnson of the Immigration Committee stated that President Coolidge favors exclusion and that he merely desires to postpone the effective date with the view to negotiations that would tend to save the face of Japan.

Representative Sabath, who has fought restrictive immigration in Congress for years, severely criticized the conference report. He said that it was ill-timed to consider the susceptibilities of Japan, but that the same consideration should be accorded other nations.

DELAY HAD PLEASED JAPAN.

Government Expects Defeat in Election on Immigration Issue.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, May 9.—The decision of the Joint Conference of the House and Senate to postpone the effective date of exclusion to March 1, 1925, eased the situation here although it seems that it will not entirely attenuate the resentment of public opinion. While Japan's chief objection was in the method by which Congress sought to bring about exclusion, by legislation and without consulting Japan in an abrogation of the gentlemen's agreement, it was felt this object was not entirely removed as the exclusion clause remains embodied in the bill.

Retention of the exclusion clause is seen as forcing Japan's hand in preparation of a new treaty and it is felt Japan may have little latitude to effect an arrangement which would satisfy the Japanese public and definitely dispose of the problem.

The decision of the conference created the greatest surprise here, where all hope had been abandoned. The Japanese press lauds the action of President Coolidge in prevailing upon the conference to reconsider its action. Officials feel particularly encouraged at the decision to place Japan on the same quota basis as other nations during the interim between July 1 and March 1, as this is what Japan has most hoped for, and she feels by this method that there is no discrimination directed against her.

Premier Kiyoura in a statement made today reiterated that "the Japanese Government has no intention at present of recalling Ambassador Hanihara."

This statement was issued in view of repeated reports current again that the Ambassador would be recalled as soon as the immigration question was settled. I am reliably informed that after the presentation of the first Hanihara note and the following the adverse decision of the Senate on the exclusion clause, the Japanese Cabinet considered whether it would be advisable to recall the Ambassador, and the decision of the Cabinet was against his recall. The attitude of the Cabinet remains unchanged since then, but it is generally believed in official circles that the Ambassador will resign his post when the immigration problem is settled.

A high official at the Foreign Office told me today he believed the Ambassador would find it unpleasant to remain in Washington in view of what had taken place here and that he would be likely to return here. It seems likely, following the election which will be held tomorrow, that the opponents of the Government, who are expected to emerge victorious, will make the immigration question the main point of attack on the Government, and it is possible they may force the resignation of the Cabinet and the recall of Ambassador Hanihara. The Government has so far been able successfully to prevent the immigration question from entering the election campaign, but after the expected defeat of the Government at the polls it will probably become impossible for the Government to prevent the opposition from making use of the immigration question as a political weapon.

According to election estimates of the Government drawn up by the Ministry of Home Affairs, the Government itself expects defeat, and according to these figures the Seiyuhonto, which is the only political party supporting the Kiyoura Cabinet, is predicted to control 140 seats out of 464 in the Diet and the Kenseikai, the largest party in the opposite minority, as it can only count on an extra thirty seats from the Independents.

In the event of defeat through the elections the Government may remain in power until the Diet convenes, when it would reserve to itself the right to dissolve, but it is possible the opposition may stir up sufficient agitation on the immigration question to force the resignation of the Cabinet before the Diet meets. This is considered unlikely, however, as the postponed celebrations for the wedding of the Prince Regent will be held at the end of this month, and out of respect for the imperial family the politicians will avoid agitation at that time.

SAY KLAN ORDERED MAYFIELD ELECTION

Ex-Members Testify That Texas Senator Was Chosen After Edict Was Issued by Evans.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—H. W. Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, wanted a Senator elected from Texas who could "get in touch with the big business interests, especially the railroads, and could even approach Standard Oil," he told Erwin J. Clark, variously Grand King, Dragon and Titan of the Texas Klan, according to Clark's testimony today before the Spencer subcommittee of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which is hearing the contest of George B. E. Peddy for the seat of Senator Mayfield, Democrat, of Texas.

The Imperial Wizard, then National Organization Director and Grand Titan of the Dallas Ku Klux Klan, was talking in the imperial palace at Atlanta, Ga., Clark testified, and was giving him his reasons for concentration of the Klan support behind Mayfield in the primary.

Mr. Clark detailed a plan of the Klan officials to elect Mayfield, with provisions for raising funds to carry on the Klan fight at this time. He told of conferences, some of which were so heated that the conferees laid their guns on the table "while they talked politics." Mr. Clark said he favored former Representative Robert L. Henry, an "uncovered Klansman, who refused to go to the Senate with a lie on his lips." He said he went to the imperial palace in Henry's behalf. Mr. Henry was in Congress from Texas for twenty years. He also was a witness today.

Mr. Clark was for four years on the District bench of McClennan County, Texas. He amazed members of the committee with his familiarity with Klan nomenclature. First, he was chairman, he said, of the Klokan, then he was a Titan, then a Dragon, then a Klub, the office which, according to the testimony of another witness, was at one time held by Senator Mayfield. This office, Clark said, was a "sort of a chaplain." He also declared he had been general counsel for the Klan in the "Imperial Realm of Texas."

"Where do you now?" Senator King of Utah asked.

"I am a citizen of the United States, sir," Mr. Clark returned, and then explained that he had become convinced that the Realm of Texas was "incompatible with his duties as an American citizen, and resigned."

The upshot of the Waco conference, Clark went on, was an agreement that Mayfield and Henry would both remain in the race, but a month later, at Austin, at a Klonklave of the Titans, it was decided, in Mayfield's presence and on his plea, that the Klan would drop Henry and elect Mayfield. One Klan cyclops, the witness asserted, shouted that he would go back home and "raise $10,000 for Earle Mayfield and make him a dead shot."

Former Representative Henry testified that officers of the Klan interested themselves in the election of Senator Mayfield, and that on May 21 at Paris, Texas, he was called into conference by Mr. Evans and other Klan leaders in Texas to clear Mayfield for Mayfield.

Evans, the witness said, wanted "one of the two Klan candidates eliminated." Mayfield was present. Evans added, the witness declared, that he "had helped get up a nation-wide militant political organization."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, objected to the story as irrelevant, but was overruled by Chairman Spencer. Luther Nickels, counsel for Mr. Peddy, said the testimony would help to "prove a conspiracy."

The witness then said that Dr. Evans and his associates retired from the room, leaving Mayfield and himself alone.

ACCUSED TAKES THE STAND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9. — Senator Wheeler's own letters and telegrams which formed the basis of the evidence on which he was indicted for practicing before the Department of the Interior after he was elected a Senator, and on which the prosecution relies for his conviction, were presented by the Department of Justice today to the special Senate committee investigating Mr. Wheeler's indictment.

These documents were read at the committee's hearing, and then the Montana Senator insisted on being sworn as a witness and entered an indignant denial that he had practiced before any department in regard to the status of any oil permits.

John S. Pratt, a Special Assistant Attorney General, who assisted in obtaining the indictment against Mr. Wheeler, was first called and turned over a mass of letters and telegrams to the committee. These purported to show, among other things, that Mr. Wheeler, in the Spring of 1923 after his election to the Senate, had conferred with Edwin S. Booth, then Solicitor of the Interior Department, in regard to permits in which Gordon Campbell, a Montana oil operator, was interested.

Senator Wheeler was at that time under a retainer of $10,000 from the Campbell interests to represent them in the Montana State courts. He contended today that the correspondence produced showed that the only fees paid to him were for such services in the State courts and that the first Hanihara note and that following the adverse decision of the Senate on the exclusion clause, the Japanese Cabinet considered whether it would be advisable to recall the Ambassador, and the decision of the Cabinet was against his recall. The attitude of the Cabinet remains unchanged since then, but it is generally believed in official circles that the Ambassador will resign his post when the immigration problem is settled.

Mr. Campbell replied on the same day as follows:

"Please advise when you expect to return. Believe matter of Lincoln permit vitally important. Is it possible you can discuss matter with Solicitor and I can come to Washington and discuss matter with him with view to satisfy settlement even during your absence. Feel this permit should have prompt attention.

A reply was contained in another telegram sent by Senator Wheeler to Mr. Campbell on March 14, 1923. It read:

"Have already discussed permit with Solicitor, but did not have number. Wire number to me and I will arrange to have you see him in person if you come here."

Mr. Campbell immediately sent a telegram to Senator Wheeler containing the number of the permit.

Another document produced was a letter to L. V. Beaulieu and James T. Baldwin, written by Edwin S. Booth, then Solicitor of the Interior Department. It was dated April 7, 1923, and one paragraph read:

"Mr. Gordon Campbell was in my office inquiring in relation to several permits, and I am herewith enclosing you copies of memoranda which shows what action must be taken in relation to each case."

This letter contained detailed information on six permits, all of which are mentioned in the indictment against Senator Wheeler.

Mr. Booth gave suggestions about what must be done, stating that "I have gone into this matter in detail because of its importance, and I trust that the suggestions herein made will receive careful attention."

In a footnote to this letter Mr. Booth wrote: "This is only my unofficial view."

A letter from James Baldwin to Mr. Booth, dated April 11, acknowledged receipt of the Booth letter and stated that "you may rest assured that we will receive prompt and careful attention and the outline suggested by you will be followed."

On April 11, 1923, there was a letter from James Baldwin, Senator Wheeler's law partner, to L. V. Beaulieu, counsel for Mr. Campbell in the permit matters, directing him to follow Mr. Booth's suggestion. This letter also contained the statement that "unless required by you to do so, I shall not take any step in connection with the matters referred to in the letter."

A letter from Mr. Beaulieu to Mr. Booth, following this, indicated that Mr. Beaulieu had personally looked after the permit claims for Mr. Campbell. There was also a series of letters from Mr. Beaulieu to Mr. Booth, in which reference is made to Phil McGowan and not the firm of Wheeler & Baldwin, handled the matter.

Asks Booth to "Marry Matters."

There was a letter dated May 4, 1923, from Gordon Campbell to Edwin S. Booth regarding the Phil McGowan permit, in which Mr. Campbell said he was in a position immediately to go ahead and protect the property with an offset well. He asked to be advised if the Interior Department would grant the privilege of protecting in Phil McGowan permit with an offset well, a request also was made in a telegram sent the same day. Then this letter from Mr. Campbell to Mr. Booth continued:

"I beg to ask if anything further has been done in the matter of getting along either one way or the other and get us title. A well has come in on the northeast corner offsetting this acreage. It will be necessary for some one to act at once, protecting the offset of this well. Have not been able to get to Spokane, but expect to get over there the first of the week. If you can arrange this with Mr. Goodwin, as we talked in your office, and can get the permit through by W. G. Rhea assigning to a mutual friend, or as you spoke, to have some other party make application for the permit and throw the whole thing out, arrangements can be made to take care of this and Mr. Goodwin."

"My idea would be, after title was obtained, to assign you and Mr. Goodwin forty acres out of this lease. This is probably possible to be done in the half section in the field, as the big wells that have come in since my return are only half a mile away and this offset well is good and is a big well; they are drilling a big well on the line of it, and will mean possibly a 1,000 or 1,500 barrel well; so you can see how important it is that we get our hooks on this half section, to which we thoroughly believe we are entitled."

"Forty acres would make you and Mr. Goodwin more money than you would otherwise make in some time. We will appreciate it very much if this arrangement is satisfactory. We are going to move in a rig and start a well immediately after we get the permit and guarantee from the Interior Department to protect this permit and offset well.

"This is strictly confidential. If a company was formed in Spokane on this land, or part of it, if you would rather ride for an interest in the company, we can arrange that also."

This letter was addressed to Mr. Booth, as Solicitor of the Interior Department, and signed by Gordon Campbell.

Following is a letter from Edwin S. Booth to Mr. Campbell, June 19, 1923, written on Department of Justice stationery from Washington:

"Your letter of May 4 reached me after being forwarded at Little Rock, Ark., where I had gone. I had answered most of your letters before leaving Washington. Mr. Goodwin is expected back in the course of a day or two and I will on Monday find out relative to Rhea assignment. I was trying to get the approval of the official assignment so that we could later take the deal up.

"I note what you say about Assistant Secretary Goodwin. I will take this matter up to him on Monday and will then write you in detail in relation to everything, assuring you that I am more than pleased to be able to aid you."

On May 5 a telegram was sent by Mr. Booth to Mr. Campbell, which read:

"Rhea assignment filed today. Will secure action as quickly as possible. Am writing you fully relation to other portions of telegram."

There was correspondence also between Mr. Beaulieu and Mr. Booth to show that William Fesler, a Washington attorney, was retained to look after the Campbell interests before the department in regard to permit matters.

Other correspondence showed that on May 2, 1923, James Baldwin, law partner of Senator Wheeler, sought to obtain a payment on account from Mr. Campbell. A letter from Mr. Baldwin to Mr. Campbell read:

"I am sending herewith bill for $1,000 due on your agreement with us for services rendered and to be rendered in connection with Gordon-Campbell-Kevin syndicate and Gordon-Campbell business."

On June 6, 1923, Mr. Baldwin sent another letter, and on June 8 Mr. Campbell replied, saying that it was "impossible to take care of the bills."

On June 28, 1923, Senator Wheeler wrote to Mr. Campbell about payments, asking Mr. Campbell for payment and stating that he had suggested the Campbell proposition to a man.

Mr. Campbell wrote to Senator Wheeler on Sept. 21, 1923. He said:

"We are wondering what you are going to do with your lawsuits and cases. Mr. Beaulieu has left our organization and gone to California. We have not employed another attorney and do not wish to do so at this time, but we wish to work through your office, if we possibly can."

On Sept. 28, 1923, Senator Wheeler wrote to Gordon Campbell as follows:

"With reference to your litigation: There is no reason why you could not handle them through our office. I will be glad to assist Mr. Baldwin would be glad to handle them, and, as I have indicated to you before, if some of the litigation were of sufficient importance, I might go to Montana and assist in the trial. But, Campbell, I cannot handle litigation without being paid."

Blair Coan, who, according to testimony before the committee, went to Montana in March to investigate stories about Senator Wheeler, and Senator Walsh, the latter "prosecutor" of the Teapot Dome investigating committee, made the following statement tonight in regard to testimony given Wednesday by A. A. Grouard:

"The statement made before the Daugherty committee headed by A. A. Grouard relative to my conversations with him while in Montana is not only false but ridiculous. My conversations with Grouard related to his claim that he had photographic evidence showing that Senator Walsh was illegally elected six years ago, some of which he showed me. The proposition was made to me that Grouard would furnish an abstract of the evidence in this matter for $250, which I declined to pay.

"The Commissioner of Indian Affairs informs me that two days before Grouard testified he received a personal call from Senator Walsh and a telephone call from Senator Wheeler, which resulted in Girodard's designation to the attorneyship in the Flathead Indian reservation litigation which is expected to yield a remuneration of $25,000."

DOHENY'S SON FACES CONTEMPT CHARGE

He Is Ordered to Show Cause Why He Should Not Answer Grand Jury Questions.

QUERIED ABOUT FALL LOAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Contempt proceedings against Edward L. Doheny Jr., son of Edward L. Doheny, oil man, were begun today before Justice William Hitz in Criminal Court No. 1 because of his refusal to answer questions propounded by Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the Government, before the special Grand Jury which is investigating alleged criminal phases of naval oil leases granted to the Doheny and Sinclair interests.

Mr. Doheny Jr. told the Grand Jury that while nothing he might say would be any evidence of wrongdoing on his part, he realized that any evidence he might give might be used against him, and upon the advice of counsel he declined to answer "on the ground that what I would say might tend to incriminate me."

Young Doheny, who took to Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, $100,000 in cash, which the senior Doheny told the Senate Oil Committee was a loan, appeared on May 6 before the Grand Jury in answer to a subpoena, and made the statement quoted.

Justice Hitz ordered Mr. Doheny to appear next Friday to show cause why he should not be required to answer questions which pertain to his alleged transactions with Mr. Fall on Nov. 30, 1921. If he fails to satisfy the Court that he lawfully refused to answer he will be ordered to answer, and, should he refuse a second time, he is liable to be adjudged in contempt of court for refusing to obey its order.

Differs From Sinclair Case.

The character of alleged contempt involving Mr. Doheny Jr. is different from that involving Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of the Teapot Dome oil field, who was indicted on a charge of contempt of the Senate for refusing to answer questions propounded by the Senate Committee on Public Lands and Survey.

Counsel for the Government will not be required to depend on Grand Jury action other than a certificate showing that Mr. Doheny refused to answer questions after being ordered to do so by the Court. Young Doheny, however, probably will appeal the decision after he is adjudged in contempt, as the case involves matters of law and acts committed outside of the courtroom.

Mr. Doheny's refusal to answer questions was on the advice of his counsel, Frank J. Hogan, who also is counsel for the elder Doheny. Mr. Hogan told the Court that he "assumed full responsibility for the failure and refusal of Mr. Doheny to answer questions, and for his insistence on the right to afford himself the protection of his constitutional rights."

"It is up to Mr. Doheny to determine whether he will or not answer the questions," Mr. Hogan stated. "No one knows better than any one else just what the effect of his answers will be. If he believes that he has a right to refuse to answer under the Constitution, then he has a lawful right to refuse to answer. I am willing to argue that point out with any one at any time."

The certificate to the Court from Grats E. Dunkum, Grand Jury foreman, sets forth that neither counsel for the Government nor the Grand Jury looks upon young Doheny as a possible defendant in an indictment, and that whatever he might say will not be used against him.

The certificate states that, because of the refusal of Mr. Doheny to testify, it has become necessary to throw aside the traditional veil of secrecy with regard to what transpires in the Grand Jury room, that the Court may determine whether or not Mr. Doheny was within his rights in refusing to answer.

Refused on Counsel's Advice.

It is stated in the certificate that Mr. Roberts asked Mr. Doheny, "Will you tell us about the transaction you had with Albert B. Fall on or about Nov. 30, 1921?" To which the witness replied:

"I am sorry, sir, but I came before this committee in answer to a subpoena in a proceeding in which it is, or may be alleged that my father, or myself, or a company in which we are interested, may be defendants. Neither my father nor myself, nor the company in which we are interested, has been guilty of wrongdoing or transgressions against the law. My father has made certain statements which have been the basis of certain charges against him. While I assert that nothing which I might say would be any evidence of any wrongdoing on my part, I realize that any evidences that I might give or any testimony that I might give might be used against me. I must, therefore, decline to answer that question on the advice of my attorney, on the ground that what I would say might tend to incriminate me. With all due respect to the jury and to the counsel for the Government, I claim my privilege against self-incrimination."

"While you are thus refusing to testify on the ground that anything you would say might tend to incriminate you, and are, therefore, claiming your constitutional privilege," Mr. Roberts then asked, "do you not have in mind that before you came into the Grand Jury you and your counsel were both assured that counsel representing the Government had no thought that you had been guilty of any criminal misconduct, and that there was no purpose or intention on their part to attempt any criminal proceedings against you personally?"

"Yes," said Mr. Doheny, "I have in mind that the counsel for the Government gave to me and to my counsel, Frank J. Hogan, those assurances. I am sorry, sir, but I must adhere to my original position and refuse to testify for the reasons and on the grounds stated."

Because of this refusal the Grand Jury laid the matter before the Court for such action as it might decide to take.

DOHENY ASKS DISMISSAL.

Counsel in Reply on Suit to Cancel Leases Denies Any Conspiracy.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Dismissal of the Government's suit to cancel naval oil reserve leases granted to the Doheny interests in Kern County, California, was asked in an answer filed in Federal Court yesterday by attorneys for the Pan-American Petroleum Company and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company.

Denying categorically all allegations of illegality and conspiracy in connection with the leases, the answer states that expenditures of approximately $10,000,000 have been made or provided for by the defendant companies in the construction of refinery, storage and other facilities in order to carry out their contracts with the Government, and points out that if these are annulled great depreciation would result.

PARENTS BLAMED FOR WAYWARD BOYS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 9.—"There are subtle influences at work in this country robbing the morals of the younger generation," said Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address to the annual convention of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs at Haddon Hall today.

"Vice and crime are becoming increasingly common throughout the land," he added. "It must be stopped. We must make this country safe for future leadership and get back to the sound principles of the Ten Commandments."

Mr. Beck placed much of the blame for the waywardness of the present generation upon the parents, who were "setting poor examples" for their children.

Mr. Beck said that the popular impression of the Wall Street business man and financier was wrong. "They are real human men, and, furthermore, they are looking after the youth of the world's greatest financial district," he continued. "These big men of Wall Street realize that while they are the leaders of today, they were boys of yesterday. Not only are they giving money where it is needed and establishing institutions which play such a large part in boys' lives, but they are doing good deeds that can't be bought by money."

Mr. Beck discussed the training which many of the boys and girls were receiving in different kinds of schools in this country. He stated that there was a great deal of incompetency due to the hurried methods employed in teaching trades.

"There are too many half-baked stenographers, too many half-baked plumbers, too many half-baked carpenters and too many half-baked everything to make for a high grade of efficiency.

CHICAGO'S CARDINAL LANDS HOURS LATE

the people of Chicago?" a Chicago reporter asked.

"As to that I will say nothing now except that everywhere I went on the other side I found they were surprised at the interest taken by the head of the Church in Chicago and pleased that Chicago should be honored by the appointment of a new Cardinal. I told every one that we had always lived in peace in Chicago; that there never had been any trouble with our non-Catholic brethren and that it was my earnest wish, and something I had prayed for, that we will always find the Church an asset and a unifying force. I feel that the honor that has been done is to the city of Chicago, and I would like to have it treated that way."

Then the question was asked as to the honors he had brought with him. He answered:

"I am not answering as to that—not just yet. Of course Cardinal Gaming hopes I like Santa Claus, and I'll say I have one for a newspaperman."

He was asked whether he had found the etiquette in Rome exacting and replied:

"No, no; I enjoyed it. I was familiar with it, having studied in Rome. I think I shall introduce some parts of the etiquette into Chicago."

He was asked next whether there would be additions to the monsignori in his diocese and replied with a smile:

"Perhaps. I'll make that way, you know." Then he went on:

"His Holiness sent a message to the people of Chicago of which I shall speak in the cathedral. I have a special message, too, for the seminary—St. Mary's of the Lake."

There was a question about the Chicago charities and the Cardinal said he had written on the ship a letter which will start the drive for funds for the Associated Catholic Charities of Chicago. It is hoped $1,000,000 can be raised this year as against $800,000 last year.

Then, at the suggestion of one of the committee, who passed on the request of a newspaper man, the Cardinal allowed those of his faith in the group to kiss the ring the Pope had given him. Then, with all in the small cabin, Catholics and Protestants and Jews kneeling, as the Macoma rolled in the choppy seas of the upper harbor, the Cardinal blessed those present, saying afterward:

"God bless you all, gentlemen, and your families and every one who is dear to you."

He sat back afterward and told of the assistant engineer of the freighter the Berengaria had gone to aid. He had been immensely impressed, not only with that typical incident of the sea but with the kindliness of the passengers on the liner, to whom the delay had meant spending the whole night at Quarantine. He told of the raising of funds for the man, whose name is Leon Anderson.

A total of $1,300 was raised on the Berengaria. The man had a broken jaw bone and the bone had been driven through the chest, so that an operation, the Cardinal explained, was necessary, and in the

POINCARE TO VISIT MACDONALD MAY 20

ALLIED CONFERENCE LATER

Poincare Is Willing to Revive Supreme Council When Private Conversations Have Prepared Way.

PARIS, May 9.—Premier Poincaré accepted today an invitation to go to England on May 20 to discuss the reparation situation with Prime Minister MacDonald. The conference was arranged at a meeting between the British Ambassador, Lord Crewe, and the Director of Political Affairs, M. Peretti de la Rocca, who is acting in M. Poincaré's place at the Quai d'Orsay during the Premier's absence at his home constituency. The Premier was consulted by telephone at Sampigny.

The meeting between the two Premiers was arranged to take place at Chequers because, due to the meeting of Parliament, Mr. MacDonald is unable to leave England. M. Poincaré, it is said, is perfectly willing to go to England because of Mr. MacDonald's being tied down while he himself is free, and because Mr. MacDonald was more recently elected to office.

The French Premier will not take with him anybody but M. Camerlynck, the interpreter of the Supreme Council meetings.

The meeting will be unofficial, and it is felt that the heads of the two Governments will be able to do much to smooth out the differences between the two countries.

General Allied Conference to Follow.

PARIS, May 9 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré accepted today an invitation to go to Chequers Court on May 20 to confer with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain with regard to the means to be employed for placing the reparation experts' recommendations into effect. This step is regarded in official circles as being only a continuation of the personal talks among the allied Premiers in preparation for a general allied conference when the ground has been carefully prepared.

M. Poincaré, though averse to consideration of the reparation question in the Supreme Council since the disagreements at Cannes that preceded the downfall of the Briand Ministry, has indicated that he is willing to take part in such a conference when the Allies have reached a general agreement through informal conversations.

The method of procedure which has been adopted for these private conferences includes first an exchange of views on the general aspects of the problems to be solved, and, when a general agreement as to principle has been reached, the taking up of details. M. Poincaré is understood to be still anxious to hurry along a solution of the questions on which depends the application of the experts' plan, so that the Germans will be unable to invoke as an excuse for delaying execution on their part any divergencies among the Allies.

There is considerable optimism in Paris as to the possibility of a final agreement, and although some apprehension is entertained as to acceptance of the plan by the Germans, it is thought that the Berlin Government, if faced promptly by a united allied front, will hesitate to place any obstructions in the way of a settlement.

Progress Noted in London.

LONDON, May 9.—Premier Poincaré is coming to London at the invitation of Prime Minister MacDonald, and the two will confer at Chequers on Tuesday, May 20.

Ever since the publication of the reports of the experts on April 9 a desire has been manifest that the heads of the allied Governments should meet, but there was marked reluctance to hold any formal conference until various preliminary points had been settled. The advantage which might follow an informal exchange of views was manifest and steps in this direction were taken practically simultaneously in London and Brussels.

M. Theunis, the Belgian Premier, and M. Hymans, Foreign Minister, expressed a desire to visit Paris and consult M. Poincaré, while Mr. MacDonald informed Baron Moncheur, the Belgian Ambassador in London, he would be glad to make the acquaintance of MM. Theunis and Hymans and to have a talk with them. The Belgian Ministers visited Paris on April 28, when in the morning they had a private conversation with M. Poincaré and in the afternoon met not only M. Poincaré and other members of the French Cabinet but Marshal Foch and M. Barthou, President of the Reparation Commission. It was afterward officially announced that the Belgian and French Ministers had had a preliminary exchange of views connected with the reports of the experts and intended to pursue these conversations "in order to arrive as quickly as possible in agreement with the other allied Governments at a general settlement."

The visit of MM. Theunis and Hymans to London followed. They arrived on May 2 and returned to Brussels on May 4. In the interval they had a long and very friendly conversation with Mr. MacDonald at Chequers, when there was a free exchange of views on the whole reparation question, including that of sanctions and occupation of the Ruhr. M. Theunis on his return home declared that the indispensable good-will necessary to a settlement of the matter was very evident in the conversation with Mr. MacDonald.

The Belgian desire to reach a settlement is emphasized in a statement by M. Theunis reported today, in which the Belgian Premier declares the occupation of the Ruhr is a means, not an end.

Bradbury Won't Act as Trustee.

PARIS, May 9.—Referring to reports naming him in connection with possible appointments under the Dawes reparation plan, particularly that of trustee, Sir John Bradbury informed Reuters today that any use of his name was entirely unauthorized.

ORCA AND FREIGHTER CRASH IN NIGHT FOG

FATHER POINT, Quebec, May 9.—The Royal Mail Steam Packet liner Orca, bound with passengers from Europe to New York by way of Quebec, where she landed passengers yesterday, was in a collision with the steamer Porsanger last night in a dense fog about fifty miles east of here.

The Orca was hit amidships. A hole was torn in her side about fifteen feet above the water line. The bow of the Porsanger was crumpled and her stem twisted. No one was injured.

The Porsanger, a 4,267-ton Norwegian freighter, was on her way from Hamburg, via Shields, England, for Montreal. The Orca, a ship of 16,000 tons, was able to control the intake of water with her pumps.

The liner was proceeding slowly toward New York tonight under her own power. She was leaking slightly. The freighter was due at Montreal this evening.

The Orca had discharged most of her passengers at Quebec. The forty-four cabin and seven third-class passengers were asleep when the crash came. They rushed to the deck, most of them scantily clad. Captain Matthews quieted them, saying there was no immediate danger. The lifeboats were swung from their davits, however, as a precaution.

That the accident was not more serious was due to the fact that both vessels were proceeding cautiously because of the heavy fog. The collision occurred near the spot where, ten years ago, the Empress of Ireland was sunk by the Norwegian collier Storstadt, with the loss of 1,300 lives.

The rivets of the liner were loosened and the plates began to leak. Pumps were manned immediately. After the accident the Porsanger backed away and stood by until advised that the other ship was in no need of assistance.

The Orca left Southampton April 29. Among the passengers believed to be on board are Mr. and Mrs. L. Richard of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. E. Backus and Mrs. A. V. Fiske of Minneapolis, Minn., and Mrs. A. P. Briggs of Philadelphia.

IRELAND MUST SEEK NEW £10,000,000 LOAN

Issue Is Reported Necessary to Balance the Budget, Now Short £8,500,000.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, May 9.—The Free State will have to issue a new loan in the near future. The budget for 1924-25 fails to balance by about £8,500,000 ($37,400,000), and another loan of £10,000,000 ($41,000,000) probably will be necessary, but the Free State's position is declared to be one of the soundest among the European States.

Apart from the nebulous liability of a share in the British national debt, which the Irish claim is more than offset by their claim for a refund on overtaxation in Ireland in the past, the only liabilities are £10,000,000 and the loan issued a few months ago.

The result of this loan has been a triumph for the judgment of the statesmen against that of the bankers. The Irish bankers urged that the loan be issued at 92 at 6 per cent. The politicians insisted that they could get money on a 5 per cent. loan at 98, and the result abundantly justified their estimate. The loan was heavily oversubscribed and there is no doubt that the new loan of £10,000,000 can easily be absorbed internally.

PARIS, May 9.—Lieutenant Pelletier D'Oisy, the French flyer, is earning less than one cent a mile for his sensational round-the-world flight. Lieutenant D'Oisy, who is married and the head of a family, earns 1,070 francs (about $65) monthly, with 450 francs ($28) monthly when actually flying and 20 francs ($1.25) daily for living expenses while traveling. When Lieutenant D'Oisy left for Calcutta this morning he had covered over 10,000 kilometers, earning 10 centimes salary per kilometer.

MRS. SABIN FOR OBEDIENCE

Wheeler Attacks Proposed Wet Plank—Democracy on Trial, Dr. Butler Asserts.

The Kings County W. C. T. U., closing its forty-first annual convention in Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Willoughby and Clermont Avenues, Brooklyn, yesterday passed a resolution asking the trustees of Columbia University to remove Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as head of the institution because of his speech on prohibition enforcement at the Missouri Society dinner on April 29.

Another development was the first reply Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, has made to the Columbia President since the controversy started. In Washington he issued a statement saying, "No party can slip into power on a wet plank."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Republican national committeewoman, has replied to the New York Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, which sought her views on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, as a result of Dr. Butler's speech. She said she favored "enforcing the law of the land, more than that, I am in favor of and advocate law observance."

Resolution Cites Influence on Youth.

The resolution passed by the Brooklyn W. C. T. U. referred to Dr. Butler's influence on the youth of this country, both as President of Columbia University and as "a candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1920," and said his Missouri Society speech, from which is quoted excerpts, was "the strongest arraignment against the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution that they had ever heard." Therefore, the convention "resolved that we register our protest and strongly deprecate these lawless utterances of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. Resolved, further, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Dr. Butler and that a copy be sent to the trustees of Columbia University with the request thaat Dr. Butler be asked to resign as head of that institution."

President Butler's mail contained several specific suggestions as to how the question of lawlessness and the Eighteenth Amendment might be dealt with in the Republican national platform. The Columbia President denied he was formulating a plank for the platform; he preferred to work through public opinion in the party and let that public opinion find its own method of expression.

Coolidge His Own Fisiform.

Dr. Butler said furthermore that he believed President Coolidge to be his own platform. He remarked that no platform could possibly be drawn upon which both President Coolidge and "those so-called Republicans in Congress who are steadily opposing his policies" could stand. One or the other would have to get off, he said, and he predicted it would not be the President.

Concerning an editorial article from The Christian Science Monitor entitled "University Aid for the Saloon," which he received yesterday, Dr. Butler said much remained to be done in informing even those who presumed themselves to be intelligent. He said it was precisely the abolition of the saloon at which he is aiming.

"All that prohibitions has done," he said, "is to endow the liquor business by setting it free from taxation and from any measure of public control. The saloon, instead of being abolished, is first multiplied and then driven out of sight. The only talents now required for success in the liquor business are secrecy and discretion.

"What is on trial is not prohibition but democracy. Prohibition has failed."

SAYS AMERICA WANTS TO HELP THE LEAGUE

LONDON, May 9.—The United States, though barred from participating in the political activities of the League of Nations, could and should have a most intense connection with its economic side, said Willis Booth of New York, President of the International Chamber of Commerce, to the Manchester Chamber of Commerce today.

In the last twelve months the feeling had grown up in America, he said, that there was a distinct difference between economic cooperation and political cooperation. America was never more determined than now to avoid anything which might possibly be construed as a political compact, he declared, but it might also be safely stated there never was a time when America was more anxious to cooperate economically.

It was America's duty to cooperate as closely as possible with those who were in charge of the economic section of the League in their determination to make its resolutions effective, he declared.

"There never was a time in the life of my own country since the Boer War," said Mr. Booth, "when we were as anxious as we are now to do everything we possibly can. There never was a time when we appreciated as completely as now that if we had had a three party agreement set up, as we understood it was between France and America and England, and if we had had that undertaking and given the guarantees the duty called for and which we ought to have given and which would not cost us a dollar or a man that much of the job we have since had to do would never have had to be done."

DR. PETRIE EXPLORES PREHISTORIC EGYPT

OLD TOMBS ARE SEARCHED

In These, Paintings, Traces and New Facts on the Twelfth Dynasty Are Discovered.

LONDON, May 9.—Professor Flinders Petrie, reporting in The London Times the discoveries of the British school in Egypt, writes:

"During the last Winter work was resumed at Qau, the old capital of the ninth dynasty princes, thirty miles south of Assint. The first purpose was to trace more about the palaeolithic human remains that were found last season. Further examples appeared, including parts of two jaws mixed with an immense amount of hippopotamus and other bones. Igneous pebbles wedged into hollows served to identify the gravel beds from which they had come, which occur in several places in the desert.

"Bones of four ages were found, from heavily and highly rolled bones, including human toe bones, buried by Egyptians as an act of piety.

"A long expedition into the far desert is now needed to trace the original source of these earliest human remains of the period of the pyramids.

"Much was found, alabaster vases, amulets and pottery of the fourth to the seventh dynasty. The chief historical work was the copying of paintings of the great tomb of Prince Uahka, which are of the finest quality. The plans of the great rock tombs differ from all the tombs and temples in Egypt, but are identical with the Nubian temples. One of the tombs was excavated by granite workers from Assuan. There was evidence of portraiture of twelfth dynasty kings resembling the Galla race.

"Now, here we find that Prince Uahka had a son named Senusert, family name of the twelfth dynasty. Thus the links seem to join up the Galla invaders with the Princess of Qua and the twelfth dynasty, and so to explain the history of the dark age between the old and middle kingdoms." Many pieces of monuments of these Princes were recovered, and the whole of the tombs were searched. The greatest tomb has a rock hall 52 feet long by 31 feet wide. The sides were entirely covered with paintings. The roof, 25 feet high, was covered with 100 squares of over a dozen different designs. It is surprising to find fret and spiral patterns two or three thousand years before they appear in classical Greece.

A few miles to the north at a prehistoric settlement in Stratfield layers were carefully dissected for the first time, and this confirmed the sequence already deduced. Further on more of the ripplied prehistoric ware was discovered, belonging to people hitherto unknown. With this was an ivory female figure unlike any yet found. A prehistoric temple site was searched and yielded a stone figure of a hawk. On other sides were many fine flint arrowheads and various prehistoric remains.

"There are inscriptions on vases of Helpaichemui of the second and Neferkara and Queen Pepronkhnde of the sixth dynasty. Many curious seals and buttons of the Syrian invasion were found. These superseded earlier scarabs, but the style was never assimilated by the Egyptians, who reverted afterward to the national motives. From the Roman period there was found a crematorium; burning places and bones were still in position, with personal trinkets."

BUDAPEST, May 9.—Commissioner General Smith, after several days of incessant work, has decided that Hungary must begin by a thorough and energetic reform of the whole Administration and the dismissal of State employes, of whom there are too many for a small country. The Commissioner, however, is optimistic about Hungary's future, as Hungary is rich in natural resources, and her large production of corn has great value in the international market. Hungary is an export country and must find ways and means to export in order to pay for imports, the Commissioner says. As soon as normal relations are renewed between Hungary and the outside world, the reform program will have reached its aim.

Mr. Smith insists that his task is to control the carrying out of a program which is purely financial and to see that the loan is used for right purposes. The Commissioner must therefore have full control over all budget finances, but points out that he is not there to give commands or to interfere in matters unnecessarily. Commissioner Smith further pointed out that he would indicate to the Government if certain economies were deemed necessary, but he has not the power to dictate and does not wish to do so.

POLES SPARE TWO REDS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, May 9.—Death sentences passed on two Polish officers, Lieutenants Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz, authors of the bomb outrages at Warsaw University and elsewhere last June, have been confirmed by the highest military court, but an appeal to the President for clemency brought about a commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment for Baginski and to fifteen years imprisonment for Wieczorkiewicz.

The outrages were supposed to have been carried out under Soviet influence. The Soviet Legation again requested the exchange of these two officers for Poles who are under sentence of death in Russia, but the Cabinet, at a special meeting called to discuss the proposal, decided to reject it.

to $17,500, with $18,500 for the Chief Judge. The other would have increased from $10,000 to $15,000 the salaries of Supreme Court Justices assigned to the Appellate Division. Four times in the last ten years the voters have defeated proposals to amend the Constitution to increase the salaries of Judges of the Court of Appeals, and this year was the first in which a bill has been passed by the Legislature providing for an increase in the salaries of the members of the State's highest tribunal.

In a memorandum on the Court of Appeals bill the Governor wrote in part:

"Entirely aside from the question of what the salary of a Judge of the Court of Appeals should be, I feel that I am called upon to deal with the question of whether or not it can be increased by legislative enactment. I believe it to be the duty of the Governor to satisfy his own conscience that everything he does is as right as he can make it. I see no weight in the argument to pass questions along to other authority. It may be that a Governor, were he to be in doubt about a statute as to its constitutionality, would be justified in resolving the doubt in favor of the enactment, the Legislature having passed it, and permit the courts thereafter to settle the question of its validity under the Constitution; but if he is satisfied in his own mind that his action proposes anything contrary to the fundamental law, I feel that the responsibility is squarely upon him, and for that reason I have given an earnest and careful study to this enactment.

"The history of the Constitution is often invoked to sustain a contention one way or the other in the presence of ambiguity of language, but it seems to me that Section 9 of Article 10 of the Constitution is written in such plain, understandable English as to make unnecessary any study of the history of how Section 9 of Article 10 came to be in the Constitution in the particular place in which we find it. It reads:

"'No officer whose salary is fixed by the Constitution shall receive any additional compensation. Each of the following State officers named in the Constitution shall, during his continuance in office, receive a compensation, to be fixed by law, which shall not be increased or diminished during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed, nor shall he receive to his use any fees or perquisites of office or other compensation.'

Gives Reasons for Veto.

"For as many years as I have been around the Capitol it has never been urged by any one until 1924 that the salary of the Judges of the Court of Appeals could be increased by an act of the Legislature. Obviously, the Judges themselves could not have thought so or the Legislature would have been advised years ago of the lack of necessity for the submission of the question of their salary increases to the people. The weight of opinion seems to be in favor of the contention that they can only have their salaries increased by an amendment to the Constitution.

"In the past ten years four different Legislatures believed that that was the only way to do it, because four different Legislatures voted to submit the question to the people as an amendment to their fundamental law. Proceeding upon the theory that legislative approval, in the first instance, of a constitutional amendment is equivalent to approval of the principle therein set forth, all four of these Legislatures declared in favor of increasing the salary of the Judges of the Court of Appeals, and, incidentally, must have declared that it could not be done in any other way except by amendment to the Constitution.

"The Constitutional Convention of 1915 did not believe that the salary of a Judge of the Court of Appeals could be increased by an act of the Legislature. Mr. Forbes, a delegate to the convention, offered an amendment, introductory number 274, printed number 277, which, among other things, sought to increase the salary of the Associate Judges of the Court of Appeals to the sum of $15,000 a year and that of the Chief Judge to the sum of $15,500 a year, and declared that it was to be in lieu of and excluded all other compensation and all allowances to the said Judges for expenses. That proposal was not incorporated in the proposed Constitution submitted to the people in the Fall of 1915, but instead the following language was used in the submitted proposal dealing with the salary of the Judges of the Court of Appeals:

"'Except in the case of the consolidation of the offices of County Judge and Surrogate, or to make the compensation of the Judges of the Court of Appeals equal to that of any Justice of the Supreme Court, the compensation of a Judge or Justice of any court of record in the State shall be neither increased nor decreased during the term of office for which he was elected or appointed.'

"To my mind, it is clear from the history of the treatment of this question by the Constitutional Convention of 1915 that that body, made up of a great many of the most eminent lawyers in the State, was of the belief that salaries of the Judges of the Court of Appeals could not be increased during the term for which they were appointed or elected except by amendment to the Constitution. They were undoubtedly in favor of the increase, because they provided for it in the proposed Constitution which was rejected by the people."

Sees Evasion of Constitution.

The bill increasing the salaries of Supreme Court Justices assigned to the Appellate Division would have apportioned the burden of the additional compensation on the counties within the judicial district in which the Justice was elected. In his memorandum on this bill the Governor wrote, in part:

"It is evidently sought by this bill to get around the language of Section 12 of Article VI. of the Constitution, which in part reads: 'Each Justice of the Supreme Court shall receive from the State the sum of $10,000 per year.' It is evidently intended by this bill that they receive this additional salary from the counties and thereby only indirectly from the State. There would be some weight to that contention if that was all the Constitution contained with relation to the salaries of Justices of the Supreme Court, but Section 12 is devoted almost entirely to the question of compensation, and to get its full force and effect it must be read as a whole.

"All through the history of our Constitution it seems to be a settled principle that salaries of constitutional State officers should not be increased or diminished during the term for which they were elected or appointed. In the judiciary article submitted by the last Constitutional Convention that principle is reiterated. While the convention seemed ready to permit an increase to the Judges of the Court of Appeals so that their compensation may equal that of any Justices of the Supreme Court, as regards all other Judges they stated the case in stronger language than it has heretofore appeared in any Constitution when they said: 'The compensation of a Judge or Justice of any court of record in the State shall be neither increased nor decreased during the term of office for which he was elected or appointed.'"

Bars Higher Pay for Magistrates.

In vetoing a bill which would have increased the salaries of New York City Magistrates, the Governor pointed out that this now could be done by the local authorities. He gave the same reason for disapproving a bill increasing the salaries of clerks and assistants of the inferior courts.

"The enactment of this bill into law," he wrote, referring to the latter measure, "would have the effect of removing the jurisdiction over those officials, so far as their salaries are concerned, from the local authorities, where it now resides, and placing it with the Legislature. Nothing could be more objectionable, as it constitutes in itself a direct and violent blow at the home rule principle."

He had this to say about a bill relating to the salaries of officers and employes of the Queens County Sheriff's office:

"This bill is particularly objectionable in that it removes from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, where it is now lodged, the power to provide officials and fix their salaries in the office of the Sheriff of Queens County, and seeks to fix the salaries, all the way down to the messenger, by statute. This is in opposition to the home rule principle and should not meet with approval."

The other bills vetoed would have increased the salary of the Commissioner of Records of Bronx County; the compensation of bail clerks in the Queens County Clerk's Office; the salary of the Deputy County Clerk of Kings County; of the Clerk of Queens County; provided for the office of Register of Deeds in Queens County; increased the pay of employes in the Queens County Clerk's Office; increased the salary of the Chief Deputy Register of Kings County; provided for the appointment of a Confidential Clerk and Assistant Confidential Clerk to the Appellate Term, First Department; increased the salary of Special Deputy Clerks of the Supreme Court, First Department and raised the salaries of Court Attendants in the First Department, Appellate Division.

In vetoing a bill providing for State aid in the construction of school houses, opposed by the Board of Regents and the State Commissioner of Education, the Governor said:

"I am loath to believe that the Board of Regents and the State Commissioner of Education are not in the best position to determine questions of this kind. I am entirely willing to accept their judgment and I feel that in withholding my approval I am acting in the best interest of the educational system of the State."

Some of the Measures Approved.

Under one of the measures approved, the salary of District Attorney Banton of New York County is increased from $15,000 to $20,000 a year and he is authorized to appoint a confidential secretary at a salary of $7,500 a year. It also provides for an increase of 20 per cent. in salaries of process servers in the District Attorney's office.

Other bills which were approved provide: That the salary of the Bronx County District Attorney shall be $15,000 a year; that the salary of the Bronx County Judge shall be the same as that of a Judge of the Court of General Session of New York County; that the salary of the Bronx County Surrogate shall be the same as that of the New York County Surrogate; that the Commissioners of Jurors in Bronx and Richmond Counties shall be $8,000 a year; that Commissioners of Jurors in all counties having a population of a million or more shall be $8,000 a year; that the salaries of the official interpreters in the First Judicial District shall be $4,000, and that the Deputy Sheriffs in the office of the Kings County Sheriff shall be increased from eight to sixteen.

The Governor signed the Lacey bill prohibiting the employment of railroad train crew members as railroad policemen and providing for the licensing of such policemen by the Secretary of State.

SMITH VETOES RISE IN TEACHERS' PENSIONS

Governor Says Farrell Bill Violated Home Rule Law and Would Cost City $400,000 Yearly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 9.—The Farrell bill, which would have cost New York City approximately $400,000 in increased school teachers' pensions, was vetoed today by Governor Smith on the ground that it was a violation of the home rule amendment. The measure would have amended New York City's charter in relation to the teacher's retirement fund by defining "annual salary" to mean the average annual salary earned for five years immediately preceding retirement.

The Governor said the bill was passed in violation of the home rule amendment in that it did not receive a two-thirds vote in both houses of the Legislature and was not accompanied by a certificate of necessity from the Executive Chamber.

"According to a report which I have received," the Governor wrote in a memorandum, "the city's annual appropriation to the teachers' retirement system at the present time is in excess of $4,000,000. This bill will add to this appropriation an increasing amount for several years. This amount will average over $400,000 per year for the next twenty years on the basis of the estimates prepared by the actuary employed by the teachers.

"I am forced to the conclusion, therefore, that this bill does relate to the 'property, affairs or government' of the City of New York.

"In reaching this result I have not overlooked the provisions of Subdivision 3 of Section 21 of the City Home Rule law. That restricts the local legislative body of any city from adopting a local law which applies to or affects the maintenance, support or administration of the educational system in such city, or a teachers' pension or retirement system in such city.

"Apart from the consideration that this restriction is of doubtful validity, it affords no justification for disregarding the plain and explicit language of the Constitution, which I have quoted, that special or local bills relating to cities cannot be passed except on message from the Governor declaring that an emergency exists and the concurrent action of two-thirds of the members of each house of the Legislature."

VETOES ACCOUNTANCY BILL.

Governor Opposed to State Licensing of Profession.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 9.—Governor Smith vetoed today the McGinnies bill, which would have required that every public accountant be licensed by the State. The measure was supported by the certified public accountants and opposed by the ordinary accountants. In his veto memorandum the Governor wrote:

"As the law now stands, persons other than certified public accountants are permitted to follow the business of public accountancy. While the bill, on its face, appears to be liberal to the men following the business of public accountancy, but who are not certified public accountants, by permitting them to come in under the law by the 1st of January, 1925, provided they have had three years' experience in the practice of accountancy, it nevertheless sets up accountancy in its entirety as a profession from which young men and women in the future will be excluded unless they either qualify in a Regents' examination or submit evidence satisfactory to the Accountancy Board of their possession of academic and professional qualifications for the practice of public accountancy.

"A great many business houses, under a misapprehension, undoubtedly, have written to me about the protection which they believe should be accorded to business in the retaining of accountants. No law is required, that I am able to see, to give such protection. The letters 'C. P. A.' after a man's name today indicate that he has met the standards fixed by the State, but certainly there are other accountants who have met those standards but who do not seek to be certified public accountants.

"I am opposed to the whole question of narrowing the profession in our State to men who can submit to some board or commission academic qualifications. At the hearing on this particular bill I took occasion to say that, aside from the practice of medicine and dentistry, we were too exacting in requirements in many of the professions. The people are entitled to the very limit of protection in the case of doctors. The study of medicine is a science. There is, however, no occasion for the stringent rules and regulations now in force for the admission to the bar.

"By this bill we are setting up another profession and closing the door to a great many competent men and women who could follow the calling of accountancy. All of these things start in a liberal way, but after they get started there is always a move on foot to tighten them up so that the procession may be narrowed down to the few.

"The present law gives us ample protection by setting up a professional class of accountants, but leaves the field open for other people, probably equally competent, but not admitted to the profession."

TO ASK REFERENDUM ON THE DAWES PLAN

insist that the occupation of the Ruhr cease and France pledge never again to occupy it. The Nationalists say acceptance either by the proposed referendum or by the Reichstag without reservations places another Versailles Treaty yoke on Germany, and it is exactly because therefore the entire blame for the acceptance of the Versailles Treaty that the Socialists now propose a referendum.

The Government today is taking measures to bring peace between the miners and coal mine owners, but meanwhile the Ruhr lockout strike situation is more serious. The Rhineland Separatist republic leader, Herr Matthes, suddenly has begun a big campaign. The Separatists have formed a partnership with the Communists, who have approached the "Micum" chiefs regarding the establishment of a republic. The "Micum" chiefs again declared their neutrality.

RUHR MEDIATION SOUGHT.

Both Sides Blame Reparation Uncertainty for Trouble.

BERLIN, May 9.—Both sides to the mine conflict in the Ruhr and Rhineland blame the uncertainty of the reparations issue for the situation. Fritz Thyssen and other operators declare it is impossible to decrease the working hours of the miners while Germany is loaded with the "Micum" and reparations burdens, one of their spokesmen saying that increased production and reduced working hours do not go together, and that if Germany does not produce the requisite quantities she must buy foreign coal.

On the other hand, Peter Grassmann, Vice Chairman of the Labor Federation, insists the Dawes report acknowledges that decent living conditions must be vouchsafed the workers in Germany, yet the opposite obtains in the Ruhr. He denies that an eight-hour day is necessary for fulfillment of the reparations obligations.

"With proper technical, financial and economic management of the mines," Herr Grassmann says, "seven hours a day would suffice. Still the workers are willing to work longer temporarily if the reparations sum were fixed. The difficulty in the present situation is the absence of a proper mediatory body as all the ordinary official channels already have been exhausted."

The labor leader suggests an arbitration commission composed of the best known disinterested public men, with Chancellor Marx as mediator.

DEMOCRATS TO PICK CHAIRMAN ON MAY 17

TO RECONSTRUCT GARDEN

Platform to Hold 300 Will Be Built —City to Provide Information Booths.

A call for a meeting of the Committee on Arrangements of the Democratic National Committee on May 17, to select a temporary Chairman, was issued yesterday by Cordell Hull, Democratic National Chairman. The selection of an orator to make the "keynote" speech was prevented at the meeting of the committee last month, by the opposition of supporters of Governor Alfred E. Smith and other candidates to the choice of a temporary Chairman known to favor the nomination of William G. McAdoo. Mr. McAdoo's supporters being supposed to have a majority on the committee.

The selection was said to be entirely undetermined, although Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, minority leader of the House of Representatives, was said to be a probable choice. Others mentioned include Mr. Hull, J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former National Chairman; Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, and Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois. The selection of a woman has been suggested by some of the supporters of Mr. McAdoo, but it was learned that the committee no longer has this possibility under consideration.

Arrangements for the reconstruction of Madison Square Garden, in which the convention will begin on June 24, were completed yesterday by the New York Convention Committee, of which Joseph P. Day is Chairman, and Stanley J. Quin, Vice Chairman.

Platform to Hold 300.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the local convention committee at the Bankers' Club, contracts were approved for the reconstruction work in the Garden. The plans were drawn by Henry Ives Cobb, the architect, who, with his son, Elliott Cobb, will have charge of the work. John A. Prior was appointed superintendent of construction. The plans call for the largest platform ever constructed for a national political convention. It will hold 300 persons and will be constructed on the Twenty-seventh Street side of the Garden, at an elevation which will give all the delegates and alternates a clear view of the stage.

There will be seats for 850 working newspaper men in the press section and thirty-six rooms in the basement for the New York newspapers and the news associations. A special restaurant will be provided for newspaper men where light refreshments will be served without charge.

Eight hundred telephones will be installed for the transmission of news, and the telegraph companies have been authorized to install enough wires to keep approximately 1,000 operators busy. New and comfortable chairs will replace the seats used in the Garden in the past.

A duplicate system of "loud speakers" will be installed throughout the building. A microphone transmitter on the desk in front of the speaker will carry his voice to all parts of the auditorium, and in case anything goes wrong with one amplifier or with all of one set, the other part of the duplicate system will operate automatically.

To Spend $40,000 in Garden.

While Madison Square Garden was the most available place that could be selected, the committee found it necessary to make very material improvements, particularly in the way of sanitation and ventilation, which increased the expense from the $10,000 originally estimated to about $40,000.

E. A. Albee, Lee Shubert, Charles B. Dillingham, William A. Brady, Samuel H. Harris, George M. Cohan and A. L. Erlanger were appointed a committee to provide delegates and visitors with theatre tickets at box office prices.

Those attending the meeting of the executive committee in addition to Mr. Day and Mr. Quinn were Morgan J. O'Brien, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Lewis E. Pierson, Ralph Pulitzer, William Church Osborn, James W. Gerard, George L. Rickard, Herbert Bayard Swope, Frank D. Waterman, C. C. Pettijohn, representing Will H. Hays; Charles Sweeney, representing Philip Berolsheimer; A. C. Pearson, John R. Young, Elliott Cobb, Kenneth O'Brien and Philip Berman.

The Board of Estimate named Controller Charles L. Craig and Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, a committee to work out a plan of providing information booths and a rest room in Madison Square Park for delegates and visitors to the convention. Mr. Craig said he had a plan for permanent information booths. It was estimated that an appropriation of $60,000 would be required.

A committee of New York women, experienced in publicity, will cooperate with Richard Linthicum, director of publicity of the Democratic National Committee, in making available to the press news of women's activities at the convention. This committee will be headed by Miss Esther G. Ogden and Mrs. Karl Harding, formerly Miss Louise Graham.

Women Help on Planks.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, named by Chairman Hull to head the Women's National Platform Committee, announced that she had received acceptances from several women to her invitation to help prepare planks for the Democratic national platform on subjects in which women are particularly interested. Those accepting included independents as well as Democrats. A partial list follows:

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, 147 West Ninety-fourth Street; Mrs. Sara A. Conboy of the United Textile Workers of America, Miss Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street Settlement, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., 45 West Eighty-first Street, and Miss Josephine Goldmark, 270 West Ninety-fourth Street, New York City; Miss Mary McDowell and Miss Jane Addams, Chicago; Miss Olive Jones of the National Education Association, and Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, Washington, D. C.; Miss M. Carey Thomas, Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Miss Caroline Ruttz-Rees, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Caroline B. Wittpenn, Jersey City; Mrs. W. S. Jennings, Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Austin, Texas.

COUNT 1,064 FOR COOLIDGE.

His Campaign Managers Hear Utah Gives Him Eleven Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 9.—President Coolidge's managers are confident that at least 1,064 of the 1,109 votes in the Cleveland convention will be cast for him on the first ballot.

Early returns from Utah today indicated that the eleven votes there had gone into the Coolidge column, giving him 700 to date, and his headquarters are sure that Wyoming, Oregon, Montana, Texas, West Virginia, Vermont, North Carolina, Alabama, Nevada and Porto Rico will be for him. They are to be heard from this month, and there is a feeling of certainty that their combined total, 114, will bring the Coolidge first ballot count up to 1,064.

In other words, the Coolidge managers refuse to concede that Senator Hiram Johnson can add to the seventeen delegates already counted for him, or that Senator La Follette will have more than his twenty-eight Wisconsin delegates.

There is little expectation that Senator La Follette will withdraw his name and it is surmised he will leave it before the Republicans as a part of the plan to lay a foundation for a third-party movement.

DRY LEAGUE CALLS SMITH RECORD WET

Tabulates Governor's Votes and Views on Liquor Questions for Twenty Years.

An indication of the fight that the Drys will make against the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith as the Democratic candidate for President was given yesterday in a statement issued by Arthur J. Davis, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

This statement said that for twenty years Governor Smith had an unbroken and consistent wet record, including an affirmative vote on a bill to permit the location of bars adjacent to churches and schoolhouses. The statement, which Mr. Davis said had been sent to the Anti-Saloon League branches in every State that has cast or may cast a Democratic electoral vote, follows:

"Governor 'Al' Smith's Wet Record.

"1. Enemy of local option and people's rule on the license issue:

"1907—April 3, voted to keep local option bill strangled in Excise Committee.

"1910—April 28, voted against amending Raines law so as to allow local option in cities.

"1911—May 24, voted against local option for cities; July 19, voted against Gray local option bill.

"1913—Appointed eight Tammany men out of thirteen on Assembly Excise Committee and refused to give representatives of the people a chance to vote on any temperance legislation.

"1914—March 19, voted against Gillett bills to grant local option to cities, city subdivisions and counties.

"1915—March 31, voted against Fish bill for referendum on State-wide prohibition; April 7, voted against Preswick bill to grant local option to university city of Ithaca; April 20, voted to kill Howard bill granting local option to cities, city subdivisions and counties.

"Note—The above record shows years of consistent opposition to every honest referendum on the liquor question which would be binding and effective, in spite of his demagogic appeals for a fake 'referendum' on national prohibition.

"2. Against added regulation of liquor traffic and its separation from vice:

"1904—March 15, unrecorded on bill putting additional restrictions in the Raines law.

"1905—Voted against the Prentice bill to kill assignation houses and houses of ill-fame run as 'Raines law' hotels, thereby voting to continue infamous 'Raines law hotel' abuses. Passed over 2 to 1 against his opposition.

"1913—As Speaker, engineered the defeat of the Knight bill against knowingly delivering liquor in dry territory except to bona fide consignee.

"3. Favored breaking down existing safeguards against the liquor traffic:

"1904—April 14, voted to force hotel bars into over 300 dry towns and make hotels independent of town local option elections and thus, by robbing the popular vote of part of its effect, to nullify the town option feature of the Liquor Tax law.

"1912—Voted for the Hackett bill to make it harder to convict New York City liquor dealers for violating the law.

"1913—Feb. 26, engineered passage of McCue bill emasculating a saloon-ratio section of Liquor Tax law; March 26, as Speaker, engineered the passage of the McCue bill to save convicted liquor-law violators from revocation of their licenses.

"4. Liquor selling on Sunday and within prohibited places and hours:

"1907—March 26 and April 23, Voted for opening up prohibited areas to sale of liquors.

"1913—As Speaker helped desperate effort all through session to pass bill legalizing the opening of saloons on Sunday in New York City. Engineered passage of Walker bill increasing hours of sale of liquors.

"5. Worked to break down protective zones about schools and churches.

"1906—Voted for bill to remove all zone provisions protecting churches and schools from saloons.

"1909—Introduced and pushed bill to permit hotel bars within prohibited church and school zones.

"1911—Voted for Sullivan bill opening up prohibited zones about churches and schools to hotel bars.

"1913—As Speaker engineered passage of bill permitting saloon within 200 feet of private schools.

"When he was candidate for re-election in 1920.

"As candidate for re-election in 1920, and after the Supreme Court of the United States had killed his nullification beer act, he ran on a platform which said:

"'We favor an amndment to the so-called Volstead act that will make operative the act passed by the State Legislature (the nullification beer act) and signed by Governor Smith,' and repeatedly declared he took his stand on that platform declaration.

"Smith's record as a nullification Governor.

"'In 1923 in his first message to the Legislature urged that the passage of resolutions requesting that the legislative machinery at Washington be set in motion immediately to bring about an amendment that will permit light wines and beers.'

"THE NEW YORK TIMES of March 9, 1923, in connection with the wet resolution to a dry Congress recommended by Governor Smith, quotes him specifically in reference to a New Jersey Senator's beer bill: 'I would be glad to go down and help him put over his bill if that will get us somewhere where we can put a foot on the rail again and blow off the froth.'

"On June 1, 1923, signed the repeal of law for the enforcement of prohibition and left the State of New York without any law whatever in aid of enforcement.

"In message to Legislature January, 1924, again requested the passage of a resolution calling upon Congress to permit the sale of beer and wine."

LEADERS AIR VIEWS ON TAMMANY CHIEF

INSURGENTS ATTACK PLAN

Call It Move of "Old Guard" to "Stall for Votes"—Foley Undecided on Accepting.

Sentiment for the election of an Assembly district leader to succeed the late Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany Hall, developed yesterday among members of its executive committee inside and outside the meeting held by its Subcommittee of Seven, named on Thursday to consult with the other members of the Executive Committee, individually, and recommend a candidate for leader at another meeting of the Executive Committee next Wednesday.

The Committee of Seven held its first hearing at Tammany Hall, beginning at four o'clock, and was in session for an hour and a half listening to the district leaders from the first five Assembly districts in Manhattan, which are below Fourteenth Street on the east side and run up to Fifty-ninth Street on the west side.

These district leaders were summoned one by one before the committee and asked to name his or her choice for leader. There was criticism of this arrangement, and still more when it was discovered that the remarks of each district leader before the Committee of Seven were recorded by a stenographer.

Objections to this method of procedure, said to be an innovation in a Tammany political confab, were reported to have been unsuccessful, and the committee was said to have continued to record the preferences of the men and women district leaders interviewed.

Say Committee Is Stalling.

Several of the district leaders, who favor the selection of one of their number as leader were heated in their denunciation of the methods used by those on the Committee of Seven, but had nothing to say directly for publication. They declared that the "Old Guard" did not have the votes to elect either Surrogate James A. Foley or any other man outside the Executive Committee, and that the Committee of Seven was merely "stalling for time," while it tried to get enough votes to elect either Judge Foley or some other candidate it had in mind but unknown to the "insurgents" on the Executive Committee.

Some comment was caused by the absence of James J. Hagan, leader of the Seventh Assembly District, the only one of the Committee of Seven not present at its meeting. Mr. Hagan is Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, and the official explanation of his failure to attend was that Joseph Johnson, Commissioner of Public Works, was away from his office and that Mr. Hagan was unable to leave his post in the Municipal Building. On hearing this a colleague, also of insurgent tendencies, remarked that this was the first time he ever knew "Jimmie" Hagan to let city business interfere with business of the Tammany organization.

Mr. Hagan is generally understood to favor the election of Charles W. Culkin of the Third Assembly District as leader.

Women for Surrogate Foley.

Daniel E. Finn and former Sheriff Thomas F. Foley, of the First Assembly District, were the first to be called. They were said to have expressed preference for the selection of Surrogate James A. Foley, as did Mrs. Margaret Fay and Mrs. Thomas J. Nolan, the woman leaders of this district.

Harry C. Perry and Christopher D. Sullivan of the Second District are believed to have expressed similar sentiments, as did Miss Alvira Caffre. Mrs. Barbara Porges, the other woman leader of this district, is a member of the Committee of Seven, but is said to have expressed her preference.

All the leaders of the Third Assembly District, Mr. Culkin, Mr. Goodwin, Charles H. Hussey, Mrs. Clara E. Keenan, Mrs. Mary G. Murphy and Mrs. Ellen Downey spoke before the committee. Edward J. Ahearn, male leader of the Fourth Assembly District, was absent, but Mrs. Mary Halpin, woman leader, spoke for that district.

Mr. Curry was the only man leader of the Fifth to appear, Sheriff Peter J. Dooling being absent and Mr. McManus declining to appear. The three women leaders, Mrs. Mary E. Connelly, Mrs. E. McCarthy and Miss Martha Byrne, indicated the leader each preferred. The Committee of Seven will hold another meeting on Monday afternoon, at which leaders from other Assembly districts will be examined.

Practically no further information could be obtained concerning what was said at the meeting, the members of the Committee of Seven saying that they were pledged to secrecy and referring inquiring newspaper reporters to Daniel L. Ryan, Secretary of Tammany. Mr. Ryan smiled when told that some of the district leaders were opposed to the Committee of Seven. "They voted for it on Wednesday," he said.

Former Sheriff Thomas F. Foley denied a published report that Surrogate James A. Foley had consented to take the leadership and said that he understood that Surrogate Foley was in the same position that he had been all along, reluctant to take the leadership but not so far irrevocably refusing it. "He has until Wednesday to make his decision," the former Sheriff remarked.

The hearing meeting of the Committee of Seven brought out into the open several booms for various district leaders. In addition to Mr. Culkin and Mr. Curry, mention was made again of Martin C. McCue and City Clerk Michael J. Cruise of the Twelfth, William Allen of the Nineteenth, Chairman of the Executive Committee and a member of the Committee of Seven; James J. Hines of the Eleventh and Thomas M. Farley of the Fourteenth. A good deal of electioneering on the part of the various aspirants is expected over Sunday.

Although somewhat worried over the possibility of the development of factions in Tammany on the eve of the Democratic National Convention, at which Governor Smith will be a candidate for nomination for President, the leaders of the organization were pleased with the way the appointment of three women on the Committee of Seven had been received.

Men prominent in Tammany after hearing comment by women in their districts, said they considered the nam-

Governor Expected to Get Votes of Most of State's Uninstructed Delegates.

The candidacy of Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, formerly Democratic National Chairman, for the Democratic nomination for President was brought more or less into the open by the fight in the Connecticut Democratic State Convention on Wednesday, it was said here yesterday. The friends of Mr. Cummings defeated an attempt to instruct the delegation of twenty to support Governor Smith and the delegation will enter the convention uninstructed.

Mr. Cummings is committed to the support of William G. McAdoo, and it was said to be likely that Mr. McAdoo would have three votes from Connecticut on the early ballots, with most of the rest for Governor Smith, although there might be a few for other candidates.

Should a period be reached in the convention when the nomination of Mr. Cummings was thought possible, it was said he would start with the solid vote of his own State and would be likely to get strong support elsewhere. As described by a friend, Mr. Cummings is a "receptive" candidate.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the committee supporting Governor Smith's candidacy, said that no fight was made for an endorsement of the Governor in Connecticut and that it was not the policy of the Smith committee to seek "first choice" support in any State having a "favorite son."

"Frankly, if I had been a Connecticut delegate, I would have supported the resolution which passed declaring for an uninstructed delegation," Mr. Roosevelt said.

himself as to light his pipe in the chamber, a sacrilegious act for which he was quickly reproved by a colleague, and a few minutes after the departure of the "captains and kings," the tumult and shouting had died.

LONDON, May 9.—The Scottish Home Rule bill in the House of Commons was filibustered but today during a violent tumult, unusual in the British Parliament, the Labor and Liberal members tried to shout down the Conservatives, most of the uproar coming from the Scottish section, which numbers seventy-two.

George Buchanan, Glasgow Socialist, introduced the bill, for which the MacDonald Government had decided to take no responsibility, although it viewed it with favor. The Scottish Duchess of Athol led the opposition to the proposal in a speech which succeeded in getting through before the uproar began.

Mr. Buchanan, presenting the bill, declared the Scots people were unanimous in their desire to manage their internal affairs, and resented government by a Parliament predominantly English. Their desire was just as sincere as the Irish, although it was not characteristic of the Scots to go about it in the same way, he said.

He warned the English members that the Scots were all prepared for the usual array of Scotch jokes, but he said this was no laughing matter, but represented the demands of the nation. Fifty-five Liberal and Labor members and seventy-two Scottish representatives in Parliament supported the measure, which also drew heavy Labor and Liberal support in England, he said.

The Duchess of Athol attacked the Scottish Socialists as responsible for the Glasgow slums and other social conditions they complained about. She said Scotland never could afford the additional financial burden of a separate Parliament, adding that the Imperial Exchequer had made an additional grant yearly to the improverished Highland districts for education.

LUXURIOUS DRUG DEN RAIDED NEAR DRIVE

Detectives Seize 2 Women, 3 Men and $5,000 in Narcotics and Layouts.

PLACE RICHLY FURNISHED

Prisoners Are Showgirl, Manicure and Men Who the Police Say Have Criminal Records.

Detectives of the Narcotic Division broke into a lavishly furnished apartment at 614 West 136th Street, just off Riverside Drive, at the dinner hour last night and arrested a showgirl, a manicure and three men who, the police say, have criminal records.

The raiding party seized narcotics and paraphernalia valued at $5,000, including three complete opium layouts with pipes and lamps in full operation. Special Deputy Commissioner Carleton Simon said the place was one of the principal supply depots for Broadway night life and a popular rendezvous for theatrical folk and drug addicts of means.

The detectives said they were first led to the vicinity by the telltale odor of the fumes during recent daily cruises up and down Riverside Drive. After days of investigation, they said, they traced the odor first to the apartment building, and finally, after tedious hours of "scenting," to an apartment on the second floor. The five prisoners were locked up at Police Headquarters charged with illegal possession of narcotics. They gave their names as Marie Carlson, 28, showgirl; Dolly Campbell, 25, manicure, both living in the apartment; Harry Miller, 32, chauffeur, of 871 East 180th Street; Louis Davis, 28, collector, of 1,652 Madison Avenue, and Samuel Bonner, 50, clerk, of 357 East 113th Street. Some of the names were believed to be fictitious.

Last night the detectives felt satisfied from their protracted hunt that they were on the right trail, and at dinner time scattered through the halls of the apartment house. About 7 o'clock they saw the two women enter the apartment accompanied by Davis. Previous vigils had told them more might be expected, and soon afterward Miller and Bonner slipped up the stairs and, after guarded looks about, produced doorkeys.

Detective Samuel Massam, hiding around a turn of the stairs above, edged forward and made a running leap as the two men were starting in. Massam weighed 200 pounds, and before Miller and Bonner could get out from under him, Detective Sergeant Barney Boylan, with Detectives Moog and Higgins rushed into the breach.

They said they found the interior gray and stifling with opium fumes which hung about expensive Oriental furniture and draperies. Miss Carlson and Miss Campbell were in deep chairs and Davis was on a couch. Tabourets and stands nearby held long opium pipes with tiny balls of cooked opium steaming in the flat metal bowls. The flames from the wicks of the lamps quivered in the draught stirred up by the detectives' entrance.

After rousing the two women and Davis the detectives rounded up all five and took them to Centre Street in automobiles. Sergeant Boylan remained and tapped various secret drawers and panels to find several caches, he said, which yielded several pounds of opium and about thirty ounces of heroin. During the watch the detectives had kept on the place the detectives said nightly taxicab parties came and went till dawn.

Commissioner Simon said last night that resorts of this character were becoming an increasing police problem because of their attraction to criminals "coming to town" to spend their gains. This element did not lack for women of supposedly higher tastes who lionized them as high adventurers, he said, and they forgathered usually in such privately known dens.

FRENCH TURN COLD TO TURKISH TREATY

Kemalist Demands Raise a Question Whether New Chamber Will Ratify.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 9.—There is a growing feeling of disgust in France with the Lausanne Treaty with Turkey, which will come before the next Chamber for ratification. The xenophobia of the new Turk régime has affected French interests, particularly in Anatolia, both commercial and social, and the French are asking how they can gain very much by ratifying the treaty.

As did America, the French, British and Italians signed away to the Turks about all the interests they had in Turkey. The powers gave up the capitulations and other rights and what they got in return appears at present not to have been worth a great deal. The directors of Robert College have just had the truth brought home to them.

In this uncertain frame of mind the French turn attention to the coming negotiations between the Kemalists and the English over Mosul. The Turks demand nothing more nor less than that the British hand them back Mosul. Turkish deputies from the vilayet of Mosul have been elected to the Angora Parliament and all Kemal is waiting for is for the English to go away from there. The British position is that they intend to keep that part of Mosul which has oil wells.

Before the possibility of a British-Turkish break, many Frenchmen favor waiting to see what happens. Furthermore, Kemal is demanding Alexandretta from the French and on the outcome of the Mosul negotiations will depend largely the French position.

Should America not ratify the Lausanne Treaty it is entirely possible the refusal would have repercussions on this side of the Atlantic.

It is not to be supposed that it is probable that France will not ratify the treaty with the Turks, but it is certainly more than possible.

TRUCK AND SILK STOLEN

Four armed men yesterday stole a payroll of $4,200 from Henry S. Levy and his son Samuel, bakers, in front of their plant at Thames Street and Porter Avenue, Brooklyn. They escaped in an automobile. The younger Levy had a pistol in his pocket but had no opportunity to draw it.

The father had driven in an automobile from the Manufacturers' Trust Company at Broadway and Sumner Avenue with a bag containing the money. As usual, his son met him in front of the bakery. Three men with pistols stepped toward them at the door. One seized the bag and the three ran around the corner and jumped into an automobile at the wheel of which sat a fourth man.

The shouts of the bakers turned the attention of many persons to the license plates, but the robbers had covered both plates with cardboard.

A motor truck containing $5,000 worth of silk was stolen yesterday by five men. The truck and its cargo belonged to the Majestic Piece Dye Company of 536 West Twenty-third Street and was manned by William Meyers, the chauffeur, and Nicholas Kufold, his helper.

The machine was proceeding east along Twentieth Street about 10 o'clock when, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues it was forced to the curb by a sedan from which sprang five men, all carrying pistols. The holdup men forced Meyers and Kufold to leave the truck and enter the sedan. Two of the men drove away with the truck. The other three drove the sedan, with their victims, to Eighth Avenue and 155th Street, outside the Polo Grounds. There they thrust Meyers and Kufold from the car.

Burglars yesterday morning, after breaking a show window, made off with a 200-pound safe containing $174 from the M. & L. Davis shoe store at 2,895 Third Avenue, near 149th Street, one of the busiest points of the Bronx. The police believe they used a stolen taxicab, which was found abandoned after the burglary at Park Avenue and 148th Street.

Patrolman Eberle arrested two men whom he reported he had seen holding up Samuel Horowitz and a customer in Horowitz's delicatessen store at 948 Eighth Avenue. The prisoners were Robert Potter, 28, of 369 West Fifty-sixth Street, and Victor Bruno, 24, of 223 East 126th Street. Potter leaped from a window on the second floor of the West Forty-seventh Street police station to a pile of lumber eighteen feet below, but was caught.

AT ODDS ON CAUSES FOR DROP IN FRANC

French Nationalists See German Attack, While Financiers Blame Profit Taking.

PARIS, May 9.—After touching seventeen to the dollar after Bourse trading yesterday the franc remained around that level in the Paris market today, reaching 17.07, and closing at 16.93.

The Nationalist newspapers are proclaiming another German drive against the franc similar to that two months ago which they blamed for the fall of the franc to twenty-eight to the dollar. However, it appears that the Bank of France stayed away from the market this week, allowing the franc to fall two points and reserving the power to enter the market if the fall should become too great. The reason for this is the general desire of France to see the franc for the present not so high, as there have not been adjustments to the recent large rises.

Exporters have been heavily hit, and one hears it said on many sides that Paris would be better to have the franc around eighteen than around fourteen to the dollar.

Tax receipts for April show a total of 7,870,000,000 francs, which is 419,000,000 in excess of April, 1923. For the first four months of 1924 the tax income exceeded that of 1923 by 1,856,000,000. Increased taxes have not yet begun to show their full effect and it is expected by the Government that the month of May will show a much heavier increase.

For the first three months of 1924 French imports show a total of 9,270,000,000 francs, against 9,570,000,000 for the same period last year. Exports total 9,726,000,000 francs, as against 5,613,000,000 for the first three months of last year. Thus exports have increased more than a billion francs over the import increases.

Serious Disorders Are Reported at Kirkuk, North of Bagdad—British Hold an Inquiry.

LONDON, May 9.—The Colonial Office states that information has been received from Bagdad of a serious disturbance at Kirkuk, Messopotamia, 150 miles north of Bagdad. The disturbance appears to have arisen in the first instance through an altercation between three members of the levy force and three local shopkespers ending in an assault by the latter on the levy force. Great excitement resulted and all efforts of the levy officers proved insufficient to control the detachment, a number of whom seized their arms and broke loose.

Much disorder followed in the course of which six of the levy force and about 00 townspeople were killed. Order was then restored and the situation appears to be well in hand. An inquiry is being conducted into the whole matter.

FULLER AND M'GEE AT RENDIGS TRIAL

Convicted Brokers Will Be Called to Testify Against Juror Charged With Perjury.

FALLON WARNED BY COURT

Judge Talley Threatens to Stop Examination if Lawyer Doesn't Lower His Voice.

When the trial of Charles W. Rendigs, on an indictment that he perjured himself as a juror, began in Judge Talley's part of General Sessions yesterday, Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee, the convicted bucketing brokers, were placed in the prisoners' pen of the Criminal Courts Building, to be called as witnesses. Rendigs, when being examined as a talesman in one of Fuller's trials on a bucketing charge in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court two years ago, swore he didn't know either of the brokers nor their counsel in the trial, William J. Fallon.

The indictment charges that he knew all four and just a few days before he was examined as a talesman he had had dinner with Fuller's partner, Modes, in the latter's home. Rendigs, who is a cloak and suit manufacturer, was indicted after revelations in connection with the Federal bankruptcy investigation of the $2,000,000 failure of E. M. Fuller & Co. three years ago.

When Rendigs learned of the presence of the two convicted brokers in the Court House, he informed Fallon, who is aiding Leonard Snitkin in the defense. Fallon was heard to whisper to Rendigs: "I'll take care of both of them when I cross-examine them." Another witness to appear for the prosecution was Joseph Paul, proprietor of the Condemnation Inn in the Bronx. He was served with a subpoena by Detectives Daniel Kenny and John Markey of District Attorney Banton's office the night before. He was reported to have disappeared last week and Assistant District Attorney Hugo Wintner, who is prosecuting the Rendigs case, had a score of detectives assigned to find him.

George F. Spinney, Clerk of General Sessions, was the first witness called at the trial. He testified that Rendigs had been twice sworn before he was examined as a talesman in the Fuller trial, which was one of three in which the juries could not agree on verdicts. Thomas W. Osborne, stenographer in the court, then read the stenographic notes of the examination of Rendigs as a talesman. Willard J. Millard, assistant Federal prosecutor, then told the jury that Fallon, the lawyer, was one of counsel in the Durrell-Gordon case in the Federal court in 1922, and Rendigs was a juror. All the defendants were acquitted, he said.

Carmo Paparis, a waiter in Woodmansten Inn, then swore that he saw Rendigs and Fallon in conversation at the inn in October, 1923. In his opening address to the jury the prosecutor had promised to show that Fallon entered the inn with Peggy Hopkins Joyce, a Miss Phillips and Ernest Elditt, a missing witness in the case, and who then was employed by Fallon. Under cross-examination by Fallon the witness admitted that he at first told Federal Prosecutor Hayward that he had not seen Fallon at Rendigs together that night.

During the cross-examination of Paparis Judge Talley on several occasions reproved Fallon for questioning the witness in so loud a voice, and at one point threatened to suspend the cross-examination. The trial will be continued today.

INJUNCTION IN TAXI STRIKE.

It Will Be Asked in Federal Court Today by Employers.

Application will be made in the Federal Court today for an injunction restraining the striking members of the Brotherhood of Taxi Chauffeurs of Greater New York from interfering with the operation of cabs belonging to the Mogul Checker Cab Corporation, it was announced last night by E. L. Garv, counsel for the company.

"The brotherhood is an organization in name only," said Garv. "It has no affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. We have had 5,000 chauffeurs working today and our full force is under 6,000. The so-called strike is an attempt by five or six men to hold up the entire taxicab industry in New York City and it is not being conducted for the benefit of the men but for the benefit of the officers of the brotherhood."

Jules Martin, the brotherhood President, said last night that 1,100 chauffeurs, employed by four companies, were out and that they would stay out until the charge of extortion, brought against himself and five other union officials in the West Side Court, had been dropped.

Martin declared that of the 4,200 chauffeurs employed by the Mogul Checker Cab Corporation, 1,000 were on strike. He said that 900 of the 3,000 Yellow Taxicab Corporation drivers were out; 200 of the 1,300 men employed by the Premier Company, and 180 of the 500 chauffeurs working for the Luxor Cab Company.

"The arrest on Thursday of the brotherhood officials on a charge of extortion is nothing but a 'frame-up,'" said Martin.

"There will be no violence on the part of the strikers and we have given strict orders that pickets shall do nothing more than talk with chauffeurs who wish to take out cabs for companies against which the strike is on.

At a meeting of the strikers yesterday in Beethoven Hall, Forty-fourth Street and Ninth Avenue, the union officials were cheered and resolutions were unanimously adopted denouncing the arrest of the leaders and affirming the intention of the brotherhood membership not to settle the strike until the charges were withdrawn.

REAL SHEIK VISITS CITY.

But He Lands on Ellis Island Instead of on Manhattan.

A real sheik landed in New York yesterday when the Greek steamship Byron from Piraeus docked at Pier 22, Brooklyn, but he was sent almost immediately to Ellis Island. He gave his name as Sherif Mouhiuddin, and said he enjoyed Constantinople's tea rooms more than the wells of the desert. He will have a hearing before a special board of inquiry as to his fitness for admission to the United States.

The sheik is tall and handsome, bearded and turbaned. Married to a Romantic Pooh-pooh, he was too interested in the fine arts. He came here to "see the sights" and to have a good time; and it hadn't occurred to him that he might be of any interest to those American women who raved over certain motion-picture dramas.

When the ship on which he arrived was three days at sea Captain De Vlieninkle found a stowaway—Aristotle Kapsimeles, 25, who had lived for fifteen years with his uncle at 159 Market Street, Newark, N. J. The young man went to Greece a year ago to see his mother. He was drafted into the Greek army and deserted three times. When told he would be deported from the United States, Aristotle tried to jump overboard. Immigration officials said they would try to help him and notified his uncle.

The vanguard of sixty Italian technical students who will be sent to the United States by Premier Mussolini to take two-year intensive courses in American colleges, arrived on the Giuseppe Verdi, which also docked at Pier 22. Some of the students will study steel manufacture, others oil production, and still others mining and allied industries, according to Corradino Sartore, one of the six students arriving with the first section. His companions are Mario Martelliotti, Vincenzo Carossa, Nerido Maneschi, Luisi Bosa and Luisi Rachieri.

When the Giuseppe Verdi was searched, Inspectors Lockwood and Rothschild said they found approximately $10,000 worth of cocaine, morphine and other narcotic drugs.

The Giuseppe Verdi brought 50 first, 308 second and 728 third cabin passengers, among them more than 300 children. The large number of passengers was due to the recent ruling that extended the quota regulations because of family relationships.

Sitting In My Mother's Old Arm Chair

which she loved because her first born son gave it to her forty years ago, I am writing this in the evening twilight coming on.

With the darkness falling, I seem to lose myself in the flood of memories, and feel that the arms of the chair have loosed themselves to become my very own mother's arms around me again, drawing me to her bosom, the happiest place on earth—my mother's bosom—just as she used to do in the days and nights long gone by.

I feel the touch of her little hand on my brow, and I hear her voice as she smooths my hair and calls me her boy, her very own dear boy.

Oh, Mother! If only you were here tonight, I am sure there would be plenty of room in this old chair for both of us, just you and I, in this old chair of yours.

GIRL ELOPES TWICE IN FIFTEEN MONTHS

MEMBER OF YOUNGER SET

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Walsh Now the Bride of Charles M. Warner.

Miss Margaret Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Walsh of 300 Park Avenue, and Charles M. Warner, heir to a large fortune made in sugar, were married secretly on April 17 at the Municipal Building, shortly after Miss Walsh's first marriage to Benjamin E. Tyndale, 2d, with whom she eloped a little more than a year ago, had been annulled.

It was the chance recognition, as late as Thursday, by her friends at a New York hotel where she had registered with her husband that disclosed Miss Walsh's second marriage and the second wedding revealed the facts about the annulment.

That Miss Walsh, known to her friends as "Peggy," had gone to the altar twice within fifteen months under highly romantic circumstances, caused quite a stir yesterday in the younger set where she is extremely popular.

Her first marriage in January, 1923, was a runaway match when she was still a student at Miss Spence's School, and at the same time, her schoolmate, Miss Katherine Wheeler, eloped with Thomas J. Tilney, nephew of Dr. Frederick Tilney.

Mrs. Walsh, the girl's mother, while admitting the second marriage yesterday, declined to admit that she eloped but from others it was learned that the young couple got married "on their own hook," and then went home and told the folks.

This second marital alliance of their daughter was approved by Mr. and Mrs. Walsh, and one who is very close to the family said, "Everybody is happy."

Records at the Marriage License Bureau show that Charles Warner and Margaret Walsh obtained a license on April 16, Warner saying he lived at 918 Amsterdam Ave. and his bride saying her home was at 717 Amsterdam Avenue. These are both fictitious addresses as no such numbers exist on Amsterdam Avenue.

The records also show that the day following, Warner and Miss Walsh were married in the Municipal Building by Deputy City Clerk J. J. McLaughlin. In the application for the license Warner said he was 22 and was born in Syracuse. He said he was a manufacturer and gave his mother's name as Emerich. The young woman said she was 20, and that she was born in Yonkers. She gave her mother's name as Gertrude Etheridge.

Following the double elopement last January a year ago, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Wheeler, parents of the present Mrs. Thomas J. Tilney, forgave their daughter, but Mrs. Walsh summoned her daughter back to the parental roof and before the month was over filed action for an annulment.

During the court action, William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney, and a member of the law firm of Guthrie, Jerome, Rand & Kresel, 37 Wall Street, appeared as guardian ad litem for Mrs. Tyndale. The marriage was annulled by an interlocutory decree granted in January of this year by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, in Rockland County, and becoming final in April.

Mr. Warner is the son of Grove E. Warner, Vice President of the Warner Sugar Refining Company, and Treasurer of the Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Company of Maine. The father first engaged in the grocery business for himself in Peru, N. Y. In 1870 he started a mailing business in Syracuse, which became one of the largest in this country. His wife, who died in 1893, was formerly Alice Emerich of Jordan, N. Y.

H. G. WELLS ASSISTS BIRTH-CONTROL MOVE

He Denounces Health Minister's Opposition to Propaganda Among Working Classes.

LONDON, May 9.—Limitation of the population is of vital importance, according to a petition which H. G. Wells, the author, Miss Dorothy Jewson, Labor member of Parliament, and others of the Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell's Birth Control Committee presented to the Minister of Health, John Wheatley, this afternoon.

The deputation asked that the doctors at the Government maternity and welfare centres should be permitted to give birth control information to those desiring it.

In refusing the request Mr. Wheatley said that in cases where birth control advice was advisable on medical grounds the patients should be referred to private doctors or to hospitals.

On hearing this Mr. Wells spoke up strongly regarding what he termed class distinction, saying that rich women could get all the information they wanted and that the Labor Government, as a democratic body, should not continue the former "aristocratic" policy of the Health Ministry and regard working women as simply material for breeding.

STOP "RENTING" POWER TO OPERATE YOUR "B" CIRCUIT

BUY a Gould "B" Unipower Battery and invest your money in a permanent substantial power plant for your "B" circuit.

Install "B" Unipower in your hookup as your present "B's" are installed, but besides attach Unipower to your nearest electric light socket.

Use your set whenever, and as long as you like.

THEN, by switching on the lighting current, you will bring your "B" Unipower Battery back to full voltage.

Simple? Yes—easy to operate, positive in action, no parts to wear out or break, no bother—and always full of voltage. The maintenance expense drops to the few pennies it costs for recharging—about the cost of burning a single bulb for the charging period.

Like rent, you have nothing to show for the money you have spent for ordinary "B" Batteries. The "first cost" for "B" Unipower represents, virtually, "last cost" to you, because it will last for many years. Investigate "B" Unipower today.

Operate Your "A" Circuit Direct From Your House Lighting Current

The Gould "A" Unipower enables you to operate your "A" circuit direct from your house lighting current or from the Unipower battery, recharging whenever necessary only by turning a switch—recharging noiselessly and while receiving if desired.

A Combination Unipower is built combining both "A" and "B" units in a single case with all connections brought to a switch plate on the front to make it convenient for you to use. See Unipower at any of the dealers listed below. You will learn what complete freedom from annoyance and battery troubles is.

ROMERO IS STOPPED BY JOHNSON IN 7TH

With a terrific right to the jaw, followed by a powerful right to the back of the ear, Floyd Johnson, young Iowa heavyweight, last night crumpled Quintin Romero, Chilean champion, on the floor of the ring in Madison Square Garden in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round battle. The finish came 1 minute and 47 seconds after the seventh round started.

He regained his feet after Referee Lou Magnolia's arm dropped with the final swing in his ten-second count, and came erect prepared to resume hostilities. The mad clanging of the bell, however, notified Magnolia and Romero that the bout was over, but there were many in the crowd who mistook the ringing of the bell for the ending of the round and thought that Romero had been saved from a knockout.

Pandemonium After Knockout.

When the end of the bout was announced, pandemonium broke loose. The cheers for Johnson's victory were mingled with disapproving shouts from excited supporters of the Chilean, who had just suffered a setback to his dream of a march on the world's heavyweight title. More excited ones among Romero's ringside supporters vented their spleen on Knockdown Timer Griffin to the annoyance of a local newspaperman, who was assaulted when he objected. In a short exchange of blows a small-sized riot was precipitated, but special police dispersed the outbreak after considerable effort, and the big Arena was soon emptied.

The unquenchable aggressiveness of Johnson, who carried a tireless assault relentlessly through the bout, proved too great an obstacle for Romero to hurdle. A foreign boxer in a foreign land, without any of the tricks of the trade at his command and with only his terrific hitting ability to recommend him. Romero was slowly battered into submission by the flailing fists of Johnson.

Perhaps the counting of ten in a language with which he is not yet familiar also contributed to Romero's downfall, for although he was counted out fairly and squarely, he still had plenty of strength left when he regained his feet and seemed surprised that the bout was over.

The number of spectators who paid to see the bouts was 8,627. The receipts were $29,707.

Before the knockdown which ended the bout, Romero had been battered mercilessly through four of six rounds. He was floored three times before the final knockdown and went careening drunkenly about the ring before Johnson's left jabs and hooks and swishing rights, which landed as Romero rushed in blindly and awkwardly, Romero showed a brand of courage which gained him the admiration of the crowd. He smiled sheepishly on each knockdown and then came to the attack with renewed fury.

The action started with the opening clang of the bell and there were few let-ups. Johnson tore after Romero in the first round and after a spirited exchange sent over a right to the jaw which dropped the Chilean for a count of four. Repeated lefts and rights from Johnson cut Romero's nose and mouth. But Romero landed one powerful right which jarred his rival and opened a cut under Johnson's left eye.

In the second round both went down in the heavy exchanges. A left hook to the jaw made Romero's knees sag and then a right sent the Chilean down for a count of five. He returned to the attack with undiminished fury and as Johnson rushed in to follow his advantage, Romero sent over a straight left which floored Johnson. The Iowan was up in an instant, however, and resumed his steady pounding of Romero until the bell found the Chilean staggering against the ropes.

Johnson outfought Romero for two minutes of the third round, but then staggered under a left hook to the jaw and for a moment it seemed he was on the verge of defeat. Romero could not follow his advantage and Johnson recovered the offensive before the bell.

Johnson was visibly tired in the fourth round and was on the defensive. Romero outfought the Iowan at every turn and pounded Johnson severely about the body at close quarters. Near the bell a hard right to the heart made Johnson clinch.

Johnson Resumes Offensive.

In the fifth round Johnson again was the aggressor. He came out of his corner with renewed strength and with a wicked overhand right opened a cut over Romero's left eye which bled profusely. Romero was weakening under the steady punching and in one of the exchanges went down without being hit. He came up fighting and with a right to the jaw staggered Johnson, but again Romero was lost when victory was in his grasp and his chance for a knockout triumph disappeared. That Johnson was hurt was shown at the bell when he walked dazed to Romero's corner.

Romero did his best work in the sixth round when he rushed savagely and pounded the Iowan severely about the body and face. The Chilean staggered Johnson early in the round with a right to the jaw and fought viciously to follow his advantage, but the courageous Johnson, though shaky, had sense enough to bob his head out of range.

Johnson resumed the attack in the seventh and pressed Romero about the ring, tirelessly poking lefts to the face and clubbing his right to the head at close quarters. He followed Romero from one side of the ring to the other until finally, when the Chilean was retreating near a neutral corner, Johnson crashed over a hard right to the jaw. Romero pitched forward convulsively and then Johnson clubbed a right to the ear which sent the Chilean down and out. Johnson weighed 196 pounds and Romero 199.

Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha middleweight, knocked out Harry Martone of Jersey City in the sixth round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final. Joe Stoessel knocked out Tommy Gardner, Californian, in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout.

In the four-round bouts Carl Johnson won the decision over George Entioch. Sandy Seifert was declared the winner over Frankie Schultz, Alex Sclair carried off the award over Frankie Yarchan and Jim Sigmund knocked out Dan O'Connell in three rounds.

MacMaster Sets World's Mark In Trial Walk at Cape Town

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, May 9.—Just before sailing for France today to compete in the Olympic Games C. C. MacMaster, South Africa's long distance walking entrant, broke the world's record for 10,000 meters in a trial walk, doing the distance in 45 minutes 4 6-8 seconds. This is more than 20 seconds faster than the world's record set by G. Rasmussen of Denmark on Aug. 18, 1918, of 45 minutes 26 2-5 seconds, and more than 3 minutes faster than the time made by V. Frigerio of Italy in the last Olympic Games at Antwerp, which was 48 minutes 6 1-5 seconds. The Olympic record for the event is 46 minutes 28 2-5 seconds, made by George Goulding of Canada at Stockholm in 1912.

GREB SUSPENSION RECOGNIZED HERE

Commission Decides to Make Massachusetts Ban on Champion Effective in New York.

The suspension for six months of Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, will be observed by the State Athletic Commission, it was announced yesterday by Chairman George E. Brower, following the regular week-end meeting of the board. This decision means, in effect, that unless Greb obtains exemption from his suspension from the Massachusetts authorities for that particular bout, the titleholder will not be permitted to fulfill his contract to defend his title against Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, in the principal bout on the Milk Fund charity boxing show to be held in the Yankee Stadium on June 25.

The commission, Chairman Brower announced, also decided to enforce here the six months' suspension visited upon Kid Norfolk, Baltimore negro boxer, who was suspended with Greb following their recent bout in Boston.

"The matter of the Greb and Norfolk suspensions has been handled in the usual way," said Chairman Brower, in making known the decision of the commission. "Any suspension by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission is recognized here under the terms of an agreement we have with the Massachusetts authorities. We cooperate for the interests of boxing. Greb and Norfolk both have been suspended in Massachusetts for six months and they are suspended here for a similar period dating from May 1. This means that Greb will be off the Milk Fund card unless he can induce the Massachusetts authorities to lift his suspension for that one bout, as Floyd Johnson did last year when he was under suspension. In that case the State Athletic Commission would be ready to act according to the decision of the Massachusetts Commission."

Polo Grounds Gets License.

A license to conduct boxing bouts at the Polo Grounds was granted to the Polo Grounds A. C., of which Charles A. Stoneham is President, according to the application submitted for the license. The commission accepted a $2,500 forfeit from Kid Kaplan, Meriden (Conn.) featherweight, to go with a challenge to Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion.

A challenge to Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, submitted by Sam Pearlstein on behalf of Sibd Barbarian, Detroit boxer, under his management, also was accepted, along with Pearlsteins' certified check for $2,500 to bind the challenge. This makes the third challenge lodged with the commission for Leonard. The other challengers are Rocky Kansas, Buffalo lightweight, and Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh boxer.

Chairman Brower announced that because of his admirable record Dave Shade, California welterweight, has been recognized as the foremost challenger for the world's welterweight title, now held by Mickey Walker, Elizabeth boxer. The commission will notify Walker of its action by mail on Monday, and will grant the titleholder fifteen days in which to accept the challenge.

Walker Has No License.

Walker is not now a licensed boxer in this State. In the event that he declines to recognize Shade's challenge, however, it is probable he will be denied a license to box here until he consents to meet the Californian.

The commission took under consideration a recommendation advanced by President James J. Johnston on behalf of the National Sports Alliance, that boxing clubs be permitted to delay the time for starting their shows for half an hour because of the daylight saving time. Johnston also recommended to the commission on behalf of the Alliance, that elimination tournaments be held to determine the foremost contenders for the various ring titles. Chairman Brower pointed out that in several classes there were outstanding contenders making it unnecessary to hold elimination tournaments, but indicated that the commission would sanction such tournaments in classes where an individual challenger was not conspicuous.

Permission to hold a special show was granted to the Commonwealth Sporting Club on May 14, to make up for a show date the club lost when one of its boxing cards was disrupted. The commission upheld the disqualification of Jack Hausner in his recent bout against José Lombardo, but, because of Hausner's good record and that of his manager, Benny Seamon, the boxer was only reprimanded.

STEARNS IS BEATEN AT THE HOME HOLE

Defending Long Island Champion Succumbs to Bingham in Semi-Final at Pomonok.

LANG IS OTHER FINALIST

Triumphs on Twentieth Green Over Van Vleck—Defeats of Maxwell and McKellar Cause Surprise.

As on the opening day, surprises continued to mark the play yesterday in the continuation of the tournament for the Long Island amateur championship. John N. Stearns Jr. of Piping Rock, the defending champion; Howard Maxwell Jr. of Nassau, the 1922 champion, and Donald McKellar of North Hempstead, runner-up in the first championship event, were tossed into the discard at the Pomonok Country Club, following Gardiner W. White of Nassau, former metropolitan amateur champion, and Eddie Driggs Jr. of Cherry Valley, who went out on the opening day through failure to survive the qualifying test.

Stearns's conqueror was H. P. Bingday and who was expected to have an easy route to his second consecutive championship, lasted longer than did either Maxwell or McKellar, both of whom were dropped in the second round. The 1923 champion went to the semi-final round, there to meet defeat on the home green in a match that, while not brilliant from a scoring point of view, had some spectacular elements.

Stearns's conqueror was H. P. Gingham of the National Links, a player who, although wearing no laurel wreaths as a reward for outstanding achievements in metropolitan golf, yesterday proved himself a worth-while opponent for the best of them. His chief attribute was his never-let-up style of play and his excellent use of the pitch-and-run shot, which he employed whenever the opportunity afforded.

The match, played in a drizzling rain, which continued to fall throughout the entire day and particularly in the morning, when it was something more than a mere drizzle, came up to the last hole with the Southampton club player leading Stearns by one hole. Here, however, he let loose with a bad slice that carried his ball into a bad lie near the caddie house and automobile parking space, and after Stearns got away a drive that flew straight and true over the direction flag toward the green it appeared almost a certainty that the champion would win the hole and square the match.

Bingham Makes Difficult Shot.

Nonplused by the situation confronting him, a difficult shot out of the sand, over a hill and to a green which is comparatively small and well-guarded by traps and rough, Bingham took his mashie and made a spectacular shot—a pitch to the green and not more than thirty feet from the flag. Stearns, whose drive had almost reached the green, then committed a grave error when he played his approach shot soft and was twelve or fifteen feet short. Bingham's third shot left him two yards from the hole, but he sank the putt and thereby got his much-needed half when Stearns's try for a 3 slipped past the cup.

The other semi-final was between Jerry Lang of the Hempstead Country Club and C. E. Van Vleck of Garden City Golf, former Yale pitching ace. This one was even tighter than the Stearns-Bingham match, for it went to the twentieth hole before it was decided, Lang winning by sinking a long uphill putt. The next champion of the insular golfers will, therefore, either Bingham or Lang, who will play a 36-hole match for the honor today, eighteen holes in the morning and the remainder in the afternoon.

Stearns started off badly in his match against Bingham, losing the first two holes. From then on he was never able to get the lead. By getting his par 3 at the short seventh he succeeded in hauling up to even terms with the National Links player but the latter won the eighth and ninth to become 2 up at the turn. Stearns threw away all chance for a half at the dog-leg eighth when he was short on his approach, failing to get up the hill on which the green is placed, and he lost the ninth through the agency of a stymie, which he tried to jump but failed.

Stearns Wins Tenth Hole.

Both reached the tenth hole with irons, but Bingham was guilty of three putts, while Stearns got down in the osthodox number, and won the hole to become only 1 down. The eleventh was anybodys hole until the last putt, the hole being halved in a pair of sevens. Playing to the hole, Stearns gave Bingham a chance when he drove out of bounds, but the latter evened matters by missing a pair of shots en route to the green. The long twelfth resulted in a half, each taking sixes, and the thirteenth was also undecisive, the hole going in fives.

Bingham then won the fourteenth with a 4, to become 2 up once more, Stearns putting his second into a trap at the left of the green, and then looking up on his next and flubbing the shot completely. Another half resulted at the fifteenth, but at the sixteenth Stearns reduced his opponet's lead to a single hole when he laid Bingham a stymie, which the latter was unable to negotiate. The next was halved and then came the deciding hole already described.

The cards:

	Out	In	Tot.
Bingham	4 5 4 6 5 4 6 4 4	42
Stearns	5 6 4 5 5 3 6 5 5	44
In—
Bingham	4 7 6 5 4 5 6 3 4	44	86
Stearns	3 7 6 5 6 5 5 3 4	44	88

Lang was 1 down to Van Vleck going to the fifteenth but squared the match before the finish, and they went two extra holes, deciding the contest.

All in all, it was a great day for Bingham, who in the morning round eliminated Maxwell by 4 and 3, the latter's putter failing to function properly. At the same time Stearns was defeating Walter Richard of the Engineers, in the lower half Lang defeated McKellar in a close match, which was decided on the home green after eight holes had been won and lost in succession from the seventh to the fifteenth, where the match was all square. The see-saw aspects continued for the next two holes, but Lang captured the last hole and the match.

Van Vleck Defeats Ward.

The other second round match saw the hopes of John M. Ward, conqueror of Captain H. C. C. Tippett the day before, vanish. The veteran ran up against Van Vleck, whose margin was 5 and 4.

U. S. Tennis Ball Passes Test; Chosen for the Olympic Games

PARIS, May 9.—An American tennis ball today was chosen for use in the Olympic games, the French Tennis Federation capitulating to the French Olympic Committee after a conflict of many weeks. The ball, manufactured by an American firm and according to an American process at the Nantere Works in France, withstood the most severe tests of resiliency imposed by the French Tennis Federation with a special instrument invented by the tennis expert, Max Decugis, seven times champion of France. The ball proved itself in every way up to Olympic requirements, it was declared. Members of the French Olympic Committee, when they announced selection of the American ball last February, were accused by members of the Tennis Federation with having adopted a ball of American make for the purpose of favoring the American tennis players over the English and French.

Special to The New York Times.

CONVENT, N. J., May 9.—W. C. Fownes Jr. of Oakmont, who has been an outstanding figure in national amateur golf for a longer period than any of the other players who are still competing, today demonstrated that he is capable of playing par golf. One of a field of fifty to participate in the annual Morris County Country Club invitation tournament and a field that contained, among other stars, Max R. Marston of Pine Valley and Marion Cricket, the national amateur champion, Fownes was the only man to break 80.

The Pittsburgh player's card was 76, only one over par for the none too easy Morris County course, which was made even more trying today as a result of the steady downpour of rain. Marston required an 82.

Both Fownes and Marston, who were the outstanding players in the field, won their first-round matches in the afternoon. Fownes defeated J. D. Esle of Upper Montclair, one-time runner-up in the New Jersey State championship, while Marston won from A. D. Swords of the home club. Fownes's margin was 5 and 4, while Marston's was 4 and 3. Fownes failed to equal his morning card in the afternoon round, but Marston's game improved to a great extent, the champion playing out the byeholes and reporting a medal round of 38—38—74.

During the year Marston will divide his allegiance between Pine Valley at Clementon, N. J., and Merion at Philadelphia. He will play from Pine Valley in the open and from Merion when he defends his title in the amateur event to be played there in September.

Fownes went along on even terms with par for the first six holes, but registered a birdie 4 at the seventh, giving him a 38 to the turn. He continued to play par golf for the next three holes, but lost a stroke at the thirteenth and fifteenth. He got a birdie at the fourteenth to offset one, but dropped another stroke at the home hole which cost him a 5.

His card with par:

	Out
Par	4	5	3	4	4	4	5	5	5	39
Fownes	4	5	3	4	4	4	4	5	5	38
In—
Par	5	5	4	3	5	3	4	3	4	36—75
Fownes	5	5	4	4	4	4	4	3	5	38—76

F. F. Turrell of the home club, medalist and winner in last year's tournament, failed to get into the first eight today. Following Fownes came C. E. Jackson of Oakland with an 80, Marston with an 82, tying with James D. Standish Jr. of Detroit. Swords and Hale each had an 83, while the other qualifiers were F. B. Richardson and A. M. Reid.

Turrell landed in the second division and has as rivals in the semi-final round, which will be played tomorrow morning, H. H. Wilder of Brookline, L. S. Wing of Morris County and C. V. Benton of Hudson River. The latter defeated E. M. Barnes of the National Links, 1 up, in the first round, while Wilder defeated G. C. Greenway of Garden City Golf. Wing and Turrell won from home club players, the former defeating C. H. Mellon, 5 and 4, and Turrell beating Paul Moore, 4 and 3.

The qualifying scores and results of the first round in the first eight were:

	Out	In	Tot.
William C. Fownes Jr., Oakmont	38	38	76
C. E. Jackson, Oakland	44	36	80
James D. Standish Jr., Lochmoor	41	41	82
A. D. Swords, Morris County	43	40	83
J. E. Hale, Upper Montclair	44	39	83
F. B. Richardson, Morris County	44	40	84
A. M. Reid, National	44	41	85

First Round—Marston defeated Swords, 4 and 3; Reid defeated Standish, 3 and 1; Richardson defeated Jackson, 1 up (nineteen holes); Fownes defeated Hale, 5 and 4.

RICHARDS TO PLAY ON OLYMPIC TEAM

WOMEN'S SQUAD SELECTED

Miss Wills, Mrs. Wightman, Mrs. Jessup, Miss Goss and Mrs. Mallory to Compete in England.

Vincent Richards, the national indoor champion and fourth ranking player in the country, will definitely be a member of the United States Olympic team which will play in Paris in July. This was made known yesterday when the Davis Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association gave out the final announcement as to the make-up of the men's Olympic team. In addition to Richards, R. Norris Williams 2d of Philadelphia, the third ranking player in the country, who will act as captain; Francis T. Hunter of Beckley, W. Va., who rates fifth, and Watson M. Washburn of this city, who played on the 1921 Davis Cup doubles team, will represent this country at Paris.

Richards's selection for the team followed the conference held between Colonel Robert M. Thompson, Chairman of the American Olympic Committee, and the head of the news service by which Richards is employed. Because of the fact that Richards was under contract to go to Paris to write on the Olympics, he was ineligible to play on the team, under the ruling of the Olympic Committee barring members of the team from writing for publication. The head of the news service consented to engage another reporter to do Richards's work during the tennis play, so that the indoor champion will be eligible to play for his country. It is understood that the Olympic rule acts as a bar only during the time of actual competition.

In addition to naming the men's Olympic team, the Davis Cup Committee officially selected the women's combination which will defend the Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman Cup at Wimbledon on June 18 and 19. The team will be composed of Mrs. George W. Wightman, the donor of the cup; Miss Helen Wills, the national champion; Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former titleholder; Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, the national indoor titleholder, and Miss Eleanor Goss, the third ranking player in the country.

Miss Scharman Is Alternate.

Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston and Miss Lilian Scharman of Brooklyn have been named as alternate players. This same combination, with the exception of Mrs. Mallory, who is ineligible, probably will represent the United States in the Olympics also. The members of both the men's and women's teams will take part in the tournaments at Wimbledon beginning Monday, June 23, which heretofore have carried world's titles with them.

The men's team includes neither William T. Tilden 2d, the national champion, nor William M. Johnston of California, the second ranking player in the country. Tilden resigned from the team while Johnston announced last year that he would not go to Europe this season. Each of the four men named under the Olympic regulations will play in singles, and two teams in the doubles. Williams and Washburn undoubtedly will pair together and Richards will team with Hunter. Robert and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco have been named in reserve should any of the regular members of the team be unable to sail.

The two teams will not go over as a unit, and some of the players will sail alone, joining their team mates abroad. Miss Wills is expected to arrive from San Francisco tomorrow and to sail for Europe on the Berengaria on Wednesday, accompanied by her mother. The young national champion, who is only eighteen years old, is leaving early in order to become thoroughly acclimated in anticipation of a meeting with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France, either at Wimbledon or Paris.

A special playing board surrounded on two sides by a high netting has been erected upon one of the larger decks of the Berengaria, and Miss Wills will have a chance to practice strokes each day during the voyage. Mrs. Mallory also will sail on May 14 on the French steamer, having made her reservation some months ago. Mrs. Wightman and Mrs. Jessup will sail May 31 on the steamer Homeric. Miss Goss is already abroad, and the sailing arrangements of the Misses Scharman and Bancroft have not been completed.

Richards to Sail Soon.

Richards will be the first of the male contingents to sail, having engaged passage for May 24. Williams and Washburn will sail aboard the Majestic on June 7 and will, in all probability, be accompanied by several of the more prominent officers of the national association and a Pacific Coast delegation which is making the trip especially to follow Miss Wills's fortunes in her first play abroad. Hunter has not, as yet, announced the date of his departure, but it is understood that if he can possibly make the necessary business arrangements he will accompany Williams and Washburn.

According to present plans the entire American team, as well as several contingents of foreign players, will return to this country aboard the Aquitania sailing from Cherbourg, July 26. Among the foreign players will be one or more of the Davis Cup teams to compete in the American zone following their participation in the Olympic tennis championships.

WILL PLAY YALE TODAY.

Westchester Biltmore Golfers to Hold First Team Match.

The Westchester Biltmore Country Club, where several of the leading amateur golfers in the district are enrolled, will begin its annual series of team matches with other clubs and teams today. The Rye players, led by L. G. Spindler, have taken on strong opposition for today for they will tackle the Yale University team, on which is Dexter Cummings, the intercollegiate champion and one of the most promising young players in the country. Following the Yale match, the Westchester Biltmore players will meet on successive Saturdays Briarcliff Lodge, Greenwich Country Club, Apawamis, Siwanoy, Hudson River, Green Meadow, Upper Montclair, Essex County, Pine Valley and Merion Cricket. Matches will also be arranged with several Long Island clubs as well as the new Winged Foot Club.

According to Captain Spindler the matches will be home and home affairs, the sides consisting of eight, ten, twelve and even twenty players. The Westchester Biltmore Club has done a great deal to foster team matches and the result has been a wider interest in golf generally, improved players and better acquaintance among golfers.

KIRKWOOD STILL WINNING.

Joe Kirkwood, famed trick-shot artist, continues to defeat all comers on the indoor putting course at the National Golf Show. Last night Kirkwood defeated Gene Sarazen, 3 and 2, in a 36-hole match. He played the first eighteen holes in 15, 10—97, while Sarazen had a pair of 10s, two under par. Kirkwood was only one up at the end of the first eighteen holes, but increased his lead to 3 up by negotiating the third nine holes in 13 strokes as against 19 for Sarazen. Since the show started last Monday there have been 436 starters in the amateur putting contest, and W. A. Fitzgerald of New York has the best total to date with rounds of 17, 17—34. Kirkwood's record continues to lead the pros with his record-card of 17, 15—32. There was a large crowd on hand for both the afternoon and evening sessions yesterday. The show will come to an end tonight, Hagen and Sarazen being scheduled to meet in a return match.

GOOCH CHASED FROM FIELD

PITTSBURGH, May 9.—The Boston Braves pounded four Pittsburgh pitchers today for fourteen hits and defeated the Pirates, 10 to 7, in a loose game, played on a field made soggy from two days of rain. Catcher Gooch of the Pirates was ejected from the field when he disputed a decision by Umpire Quigley.

OFFICIALS AT PENN FAVOR WRITER RULE

Refuse to Support Tilden, but Philmont Club Wants Tennis Body to Rescind Law.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Declaring it would be inconsistent to do so, the University of Pennsylvania Council on Athletics today declined to request the United States Lawn Tennis Association to review its interpretation of the player-writer rule as it affects William T. Tilden, 2d, national tennis champion. The General Alumni Society of the University recently asked the Council on Athletics to make such a request of the U. S. L. T. A.

A resolution adopted by the council said:

"Inasmuch as the Council on Athletics of the University of Pennsylvania is charged solely with the administration of undergraduate athletics and also because the principle of the player-writer rule is incorporated in our own rules, we feel that it would be inconsistent on our part to request the United States Lawn Tennis Association to review its action on the subject of the player-writer rule."

Tilden is an alumnus of Pennsylvania.

A resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of the Philmont Country Club, requesting the U. S. L. T. A. to "Reconsider and rescind" its action on the player-writer rule was forwarded tonight to George W. Wightman, President of the association.

After reciting that the report of the Chairman of the Amateur Rule Committee, which aws adopted by the Executive Committee of the U. S. L. T. A., stated that Tilden, by his newspaper writing, had broken the letter and spirit of the Amateur rule; the resolution said:

"The members of the Philmont Country Club, by its Board of Directors, have every confidence that William T. Tilden 2d, stands for the finest traditions and highest ideals of the game of tennis, and has given his best efforts for the promotion of its welfare."

TILDEN SPEAKS AT DINNER.

Tells Montclair A. C. Gathering That "Amateurism" Needs Clarifying.

The exhibition tennis match to have been played at the Montclair A. C. yesterday between William T. Tilden 2d, the national champion, and Carl Fischer, intercollegiate title-holder, was postponed until May 16 at 5 o'clock on account of the weather.

In the evening Tilden was one of the speakers at a dinner given by Mrs. Lindley Z. Murray, Chairman of the Tournament Committee of the Montclair A. C., at which were also present the Board of Governors of the club, the Executive Board of the Montclair Y. M. C. A. and the ablest tennis players from the Montclair High School and Academy.

Tilden, in the course of his remarks, touched upon the new player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule. He stated that the controversy which has been brought about by the interpretation is the result of two different ideas of amateurism and as to what constitutes a violation of amateurism in tennis. Fred H. Hovey, national champion in 1895, also spoke.

TILDEN PLAYS HERE TODAY.

Will Make First Local Outdoor Appearance at Larchmont.

Three tennis events are scheduled for today on one of the busiest afternoons of the metropolitan season. William T. Tilden 2d, the national champion, will make his first local appearance of the outdoor season in the exhibition matches at the Oak Club, Larchmont; play in the North Side Championship will be resumed in the semi-final round at the University Heights Tennis Club after two days of idleness, and the open tournament of the Harlem Tennis Club will begin on the club's courts at 138th Street.

POSTPONE TENNIS TOURNEY.

North Side Championship Matches Put Off Until Today.

Owing to the continued rainy weather, the semi-final matches in the North Side championship tennis tournament, which were to have been played yesterday on the courts of the University Heights Tennis Club, were again postponed until this afternoon. Weather permitting, the semi-finals will be played today at 2 o'clock, and the finals are scheduled to start tomorrow afternoon at the same hour. Fred C. Anderson, the defending titleholder, will meet Reginald Talmage in one of the semi-final matches, and Elliott H. Binzen and Paul Martin will be the opponents in the other.

YANKS WILL MEET WHITE SOX TODAY

Much to the displeasure of Miller Huggins, among others, May showers interfered with the Yankees' plans to trim the Washington Senators at the stadium yesterday. The Senators arrived here from Boston in the early morning, tarried for a few moist hours until they were sure the game was called off and then left in the early afternoon for their home ballwick, where, like the other Eastern clubs, they will prepare to repel invaders from the West today.

The Yanks' part in the defense of the Eastern sector will be to grapple with the White Sox from Chicago in the first of a four-game series. It will be Johnny Evers Day at the stadium. In honor of John's first appearance in this city as manager of the White Sox, 1,000 friends and fellow-citizens from Troy, N. Y., are coming here in a special car to indulge in a gala celebration. It promises to be a proud day for Evers. Before the start of the game he will probably be presented with a traveling bag, a watch or a chest of silver, and the visiting delegation will make the welkin ring with its cheers for the White Sox.

Aside from the Evers ceremonies, the game will attract wide interest because it brings the White Sox here for the first time this season. The Chicagoans are composed about as they were last September, but there is resemblance ends. Evers has infected some of his own fighting spirit into the sad outfit of 1923, and the Sox are hardly recognisable now.

Huggins said yesterday that he intends to have Sam Jones throw them at the Sox today, with Connally or Levergette possibilities for the visiting warriors.

The Yankee manager spent the day brooding bitterly over the bad weather. "How are my ailing athletes going to get into condition with rain like this?" he demanded indignantly. "Bush is sick and Ruth has bronchitis or something, and one or two of the others will be sick if the sun doesn't come out pretty soon. Hot weather is what my team needs. At that, we've done better in the first meeting with the Eastern clubs than we did a year ago. We're better fortified now than we were starting the first Western trip last year, but the difference is that we will meet tougher opposition from all four of them—Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and Detroit."

Yesterday's postponement will be played off as part of a double-header in the series with the Senators from June 23 to June 25, directly after the initial western jaunt.

RAIN KEEPS COLUMBIA IDLE.

For the second time this season rain prevented Columbia and Cornell meeting in baseball when yesterday's game at South Field was called off. The two teams tried to face each other at Ithaca on April 30, but rainy weather prevented that contest also. Columbia is scheduled to meet Wesleyan on the South Field diamond this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Wesleyan has a string of five victories to its credit. Coach Coakley expects to start Captain Van Brocklin in the box today. Van Brocklin has had a long rest and is in the best of condition. Wesleyan will use either Porter or Lotspeich.

CREWS TAKE LAST WORKOUT IN RAIN

CRIMSON WINS THE DRAW

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 9.—Crews of four colleges, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Massachusetts Institute of Technology had final workouts on the Charles River today in preparation for tomorrow's regatta. The crews worked up-river from the start of tomorrow's races in heavy rain and on rough water, conditions in the Charles River Basin, where the new mile and three-quarters course is laid, making practice there impossible.

At a meeting late today of the coaches, crew managers and captains with Walter I. Badger Jr. of Boston, referee of the regatta, drawings were made for the races. In the varsity event Harvard won the No. 1 berth nearest the Cambridge shore. Pennsylvania drew the No. 2 course, in midstream, while Columbia will row on the No. 3 course nearest the Boston shore.

M. I. T. Wins in Draw.

In the junior varsity race, in which Technology is also entered, Harvard drew the No. 4 position, on the Boston side of the river. Technology will row on the Cambridge side, while Pennsylvania and Columbia will occupy the same relative positions as the varsity event. None of the courses offer special advantages to the entrants.

With the prospect of rain and rough water tomorrow, Coach Fred Miller of Columbia announced that it was improbable that his two crews could remain until Monday in the event of a postponement.

The Pennsylvania crew management wired for instructions on this point. Pennsylvania varsity will be represented in the feature race tomorrow by the heavy crew stroked by Donald Irmiger of Green Bay, Wis., which finished second to Yale in last Saturday's triangular race on the Housatonic River. Columbia's varsity eight had been shaken up as a result of its showing at Derby, Conn., and is said to be a better crew in consequence but will be handicapped by its lightness in rough-water conditions.

Harvard Has Heaviest Crew.

Harvard enters a heavy, untried crew in the first trial of the Crimson under Coach Edward Stevens's Western system of training. The average weight of the Crimson varsity eight is 181½ pounds, against an average of 179¾ for Irmiger's Pennsylvania crew and 168 pounds for the Columbia eight. In the junior varsity event B. H. Bennett's strong Pennsylvania crew rules a favorite.

Four races make up the regatta program. Harvard and Technology freshman crews will row at 4:30 o'clock; Harvard, Pennsylvania and Technology 150-pound crews will race half an hour later and the junior varsity and varsity events will follow at half-hour intervals.

Harvard—Bow, S. R. Kelley; No. 2, C. Iselin; No. 3, C. H. Hollister Jr.; No. 4, R. L. Raymond; No. 5, C. J. Hubbard Jr.; No. 6, R. Winthrop; No. 7, B. McK. Henry; stroke, F. Hamilton; coxswain, B. H. Burnham.

SIX SCHOOL EIGHTS ARRIVE FOR REGATTA

Special to The New York Times.

DERBY, Conn., May 9.—The six school crews which will take part in the fourth Yale interscholastic regatta tomorrow afternoon on the Housatonic River arrived here in time for practice spins on the river. The weather was most unfavorable, a cold wind accompanied by rain blowing up the river. The race tomorrow will be over a mile course. The Choate School crew of Wallingford, Conn., has won the event for the last three years.

The crews which will row in the race are from the following schools: Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.; the Choate School, the New Rochelle (N. Y.) High School, the Episcopalian Academy of Overbrook, Pa.; the De Witt Clinton High School of New York, and the Kent School of Kent, Conn.

The Princeton varsity and freshman track teams, which meet Yale's teams in the first combined meet in their history tomorrow afternoon at Yale Field, reached Derby this evening. They will go to New Haven for the meet tomorrow noon. The indications point to a close meet between the varsity teams.

CORNELL VARSITY WILL MEET M. I. T.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 9.—By an eleventh hour decision of Coach John Hoyle, the varsity eight stroked by Proctor, will row for Cornell against Massachusetts Institute of Technology tomorrow in the first race of the year for the Ithacans.

The Sophomore crew, stroked by Emerson, has been winning the trial races with monotonous regularity, and it was expected that this crew would be chosen to match blades with the Engineers. Coach Hoyle, however, decided to send the heavier eight to the starting line. This crew averages about 173 pounds, and includes Filius, Strong and Krider, all "C" men. It has been developing rapidly lately, it was announced at the boathouse this afternoon, and Coaches Hoyle and Newman feel that it will give a good account of itself against the Cambridge crew.

One inference drawn by men in touch with rowing is that the eight stroked by Emerson is being held back for the battle with Yale and Princeton on Carnegie Lake on May 17.

Coach Haines and his rowing squad reached here this morning from Boston and found a Cornell shell all rigged awaiting them. Rain kept both Cornell and M. I. T. from the water until late today, when both crews paddled down over the course in a drizzle. Water conditions were fair. Indications are for more showers tomorrow, but fairly good water conditions when the crews are sent away. T. C. Briggs, an old Princeton oarsman, will referee.

Cornell—Bow, G. A. Raugh; No. 2, P. H. Travis; No. 3, H. H. Krider; No. 4, M. W. Pillis; No. 5, A. J. Kurti; No. 6, A. F. Rankin; No. 7, A. K. Strong; stroke, E. A. Proctor; coxswain, B. J. Nicholson.

M. I. T.—Bow, G. W. Hamblet; No. 2, D. C. Sayre; No. 3, A. V. Horle; No. 4, W. B. Coleman; No. 5, A. Herchmans; No. 6, W. H. Latham; No. 7, R. E. Eaton; stroke, C. Valentine; coxswain, R. E. Reid.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 9.—The Princeton freshmen defeated the Peekskill Military Academy lacrosse team here this afternoon, 10 to 2. A cold rain fell throughout the contest and the slippery field helped to slow up the game.

After the visitors had tallied in the opening minutes the Tiger cubs came back, and at half time had a 2-to-1 lead, which they rapidly increased during the second session.

COLUMBIA MAN GETS POST FOR REGATTA

TO ARRANGE ALL DETAILS

Providing Boathouses and Living Quarters for Oarsmen Included Among His Duties.

The appointment of Robert W. Watt as Executive Secretary to the Board of Stewards of the Poughkeepsie regatta, to be virtually in charge of all details of the races on June 17, was announced yesterday by Maxwell Stevenson of Columbia, Chairman of the board. The news of the appointment has been known to rowing men for some time, and Watt already has entered on his duties.

As graduate manager of athletics at Columbia, Watt was intimately acquainted with all the details and arrangements for the regatta on the Hudson, and it was this knowledge of conditions that prompted the stewards to offer him the position of assistant to Chairman Stevenson in planning for the regatta. Officially, the head of the board will be in charge of the races, but most of the work will fall on the shoulders of Watt.

After resigning as Columbia's graduate manager, Watt accepted a position with a business house in this city. His Poughkeepsie work will be for only a few weeks during the year. To him will be entrusted the details of arranging for boathouses and living quarters for the crews, cooperating with the West Shore Railroad in providing and running an observation train, securing proper policing and marking of the course, working in conjunction with the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce and attending to other details of the program.

To Make Survey Next Week.

Early next week Watt will visit Poughkeepsie and survey the situation as regards boathouses and living quarters for the oarsmen. Floats will have to be provided for most of the boathouses, and there is the new problem of housing the varsity crew of the University of Wisconsin, which is returning to Poughkeepsie after about ten years' absence and therefore has no boathouse readily available. It is probable that the Badgers will be placed in the same house as Washington, taking the place of the Navy, which has not yet entered the regatta.

Cornell has decided to abandon its traditional home at the Oaks, on the west bank of the river, and move to new living quarters on the Poughkeepsie side, probably in the section of the city near Vassar College. Washington may also move, Coach Russ Callow having been deeply annoyed by living conditions in the house occupied by the Far Westerners last June. It will be quite a wrench for Cornell to abandon the Oaks, but the step is considered unavoidable. It was from the Oaks, commanding a view of the river, that the immortal Charles E. Courtney, late dean of American rowing coaches, then enfeebled by an accident, in 1916 watched his last Poughkeepsie regatta—watched Syracuse defeat his stalwart Cornell eight.

Arrangements have been all but completed for the observation train, and the tickets are now in the hands of the printers. They will go on sale the last week of this month. The prices will be the same as last year, $5.50, and the train will be of the usual size.

Entry Blanks Sent Out.

Entry blanks were sent to the competing universities yesterday—to Washington, Cornell, Syracuse, Columbia, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. Each oarsman, regular or substitute, and all coxswains must be formally entered and their eligibility scrutinized by the stewards.

Chairman Stevenson said yesterday that he had heard nothing further from the Naval Academy athletic heads. Although declining to enter, the Navy was somewhat noncommittal and its answer was not considered positively final. The stewards see a ray of hope in Washington's refusal to row in the American Henley and the Olympic tryouts, both of which will have the midshipmen as competitors. It is no secret that the Navy craves another crack at the Westerners who lowered their proud banner on the Hudson last year. Washington first decided tentatively to send a crew to the Olympic trials, but now that the Pacific Coast folks have withdrawn this entry, the stewards think that there is a chance of the Navy getting a boat ready for the Poughkeepsie contest.

Watt already has made one decision which will strike a popular chord with the newspaper men, who will come from all points to cover the regatta. He has arranged for a press boat to take the writers across the river before and after the regatta—the first time that the regatta officials have seen fit to provide this convenience.

KNOBBIE CAPTURES ARIZONA HANDICAP

GRAYSON'S STABLE SCORES

Knobbie, running under the silks of Mrs. J. A. Coburn, easily carried off the Arizona Handicap at the Jamaica race course yesterday afternoon, beating four others without being seriously extended at any part of the journey of a mile and seventy yards. The six-year-old son of Wrack and Gold, in light with 109 pounds, came home three and a half lengths in front of R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Forest Lore, which was half a length in front of S. McNaughton's Little Celt. The race was run in 1:45 over a muddy track. The winner was held at 16 to 5 and the race was worth $1,265 to his owner.

A penetrating easterly wind and an intermittent drizzle kept down the attendance as well as the fields. The card did not offer a great deal and the competition was not keen, five of the six races being won with ease. The Salubria Stable of Admiral Cary T. Grayson had two winners in Fluvanna in the third race and Belle Artiste in the fifth. Only one favorite came home in front.

In the Arizona only five paraded. Knobbie broke from the outside post position and Laverne Fator had him out in front by the time they made the paddock turn. From that time on it was just a procession as far as Knobbie was concerned, as he was full of running, liked the going and at one time had fully seven lengths on his field. Fator eased him on the far turn, but he had plenty left when he passed the winning post. Little Celt chased Knobbie until the stretch, where his impost of 120 pounds proved too much for him against the light weights and Forest Lore, under 95 pounds, beat him for the place. Little Celt was the favorite, closing at 3 to 2.

Favorite Badly Beaten.

Six juveniles ran in the opening five-furlong dash, with Woods Stockton's filly Sea Tide, winner of her previous start here, the 6-to-5 favorite. The daughter of Sea King and Glad Tidings was the victim of a poor ride. W. V. Casey's Gipsy Flyer was the first to show, with the favorite in close attendance. They battled together around the turn, and it appeared as if Sea Tide had the foot to come home in front. Shanks carried the filly out into the middle of the track, however, losing so much ground that his mount was not a factor in the finish. Ray Schecer's Kumonin, a Short Grass colt out of Ida Claire, came up in the stretch drive to beat Gipsy Flyer by more than a length, with Sea Tide another length back. The rest were far back.

Admiral Grayson's fleet filly Fluvanna liked the going in the Criterion Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs for three-year-old fillies. More than half of the entries declined the issue, four answering the call. Fluvanna broke from the outside and had not gone a furlong before she was clear of her opposition. Legere rated her along in front and she won easily by two lengths from R. P. Whitney's Margin. The latter came up in the final furlong to beat Mrs. A. Swenke's Exalted Ruler by a head. The winner was the 4-to-5 favorite and carried top weight of 126 pounds, giving away a lot to the others.

Contentment Home First.

A 4-to-1 shot beat the odds-on favorite with ease in the final five-furlong dash for maiden two-year-olds. The winner was A. J. Contento's Rock View colt Contentment, which showed the way at the wire by three and a half lengths to J. E. Madden's Blue Ridge, which was backed from 7 to 5 to 9 to 10. Matthews whipped Contentment into the lead in the first sixteenth and he held command throughout. Blue Ridge was three parts of a length in front of Champignol, which came up in the stretch drive to take third money from Wax Lady.

JOHNSON IS VICTOR IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

BOWKETT AND MACKAY WIN

William B. Johnson of Columbia University, intercollegiate and New York State 157-pound champion; K. T. Bowkett of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., New Jersey State 133-pound titleholder, and John J. Mackay, of the New York A. C., present metropolitan and former intercollegiate heavyweight champion, were among the successful competitors last night in the preliminary bouts of the sectional Olympic tryouts held at the New York A. C.

The winners of first and second places in the sectional finals which will be held tonight will be eligible to compete in the national tryouts at Madison Square Garden on May 27 and 28 for a place on the wrestling team which will represent the United States in the games at Paris. All preliminary and final bouts are governed by the Olympic wrestling rules, which bar the use of the strangle hold, the double wristlock, the hammerlock beyond an angle of forty-five degrees and both the head and body scissors.

The preliminary matches in the four classes at 123, 145 and 174 pound classes and the unlimited weight division were featured by clean and clever grappling upon the part of all the contestants and the keen displayed aggressiveness as well as knowledge of the various holds. Of the seven falls scored last night all but one was secured only after a long hard tussle on the mat. The quickest fall was secured by Lawrence Supore, unattached, in one of the 158-pound bouts when he threw Arthur Rasch of St. Bartholomew's Club in 1 minute 26 seconds.

The feature bout of the night was the 158-pound match between Johnson of Columbia and Edward J. Loeser of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., New Jersey State champion in that class. Johnson was the aggressor and, although he was unable to throw Loeser, the Columbia grappler clearly won the decision on points.

Mackay showed himself to be a fast and clever wrestler when he pinned the shoulders of Frank Sabota of Columbia to the mat in the unlimited weight class after 5 minutes and 40 seconds of hard wrestling. Mackay's winning hold was a half-Nelson and body hold.

In what was perhaps the liveliest bout of the evening, Charles Humbert of the New York A. C. won the decision over Jesse Gehman, wrestling unattached. This match, in the 158-pound class, was a rough and tumble affair from gong to gong. Humbert was the faster and cleverer of the two but was unable to score a fall, the bout going the full ten minute limit.

The summaries:

POLO DATE IS CHANGED.

Army Four Will Meet Yale on Wednesday Instead of Today.

Because of the wet condition of the field at Fort Hamilton, Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard announced yesterday that the polo game scheduled for today between the fours from West Point and Yale would be postponed until next Wednesday, when the two combinations will clash in the semi-final round of the intercollegiate championship tournament. The other semi-final contest will be played on Tuesday, Princeton, which conquered Norwich, meeting Harvard, which eliminated Virginia Military Institute.

The final contest for the Eastern championship will be played on next Saturday, after which the winner will meet the University of Arizona four in a series of five games for the national collegiate title.

ST. AMOUR JUMPERS TAKE BLUE RIBBON

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—A crowd that would have been considered good even had the day been fair braved the bad weather this afternoon to watch a thoroughly interesting program at the Philadelphia Indoor Horse Show, in the Cavalry Armory. Every event was interesting, but the real feature was the final class for hunters and jumpers in pairs, shown over six jumps. Post entries were accepted and four pairs passed before the judges.

The St. Amour Stables had Hastings and John Dixon, a pair of beautifully matched blacks. They stayed together so well and jumped so perfectly that it was a foregone conclusion they would carry off the blue ribbon.

The real contest in the event centred about second place, The Gladwyn Farms made post entries of Bay Ann and Toby Bay and that pair performed in a very creditable manner. Miss Margaretta E. McNeal had her Atta Boy and Smoky Ookums, riding the latter herself. Miss Mary Elizabeth Altemus had the mount on the other and under ordinary circumstances the pair would have won. It was a well-nigh impossible, however, to outdo the St. Amour Stables' pair and Miss McNeal had to be content with the red.

The special open jumping class was the other feature for horses shown by children under 16 years old. Edward H. B. Allen on the consistent Harmony ran off with the blue. His brother, William Allen, took a third and fourth prize with Gypsy Maid and Silver Fizz, respectively. The two horses were entered by Miss Emilie Bromley, who was injured the day before when Gypsy Maid threw her in a jumping class.

It was announced the Hunter Stake, last Wednesday night's feature event, would be contested over again because of a protest by one of the competitors. The event was won by Isaac H. Clothier Jr.'s Miss Soliloquy, but it was pointed out that one of the jumps had not conformed to the conditions.

MOONSHINE IS VICTOR IN NEWARK EXHIBIT

NEWARK, N. J., May 9.—Charles B. Powell, a New York horseman, sprang a surprise when his gray gelding Moonshine captured the jumping event in the fourth annual horse show held under the auspices of the Essex Troop, 102d Cavalry, at the armory here tonight.

It required three jump-offs before the judges reached a decision in the event. By annexing first place tonight Moonshine captured his tenth blue ribbon of the year. King's Own, a chestnut gelding from the Fred Wettach Jr. stables of Elberon, N. J., took second honors. Jaaiba, the entry of W. H. Lockwood of Brooklyn, was third and Sandy, owned by W. J. Devanney of Brooklyn, finished fourth. The showing of Sandy was a disappointment to many, as the bay gelding was one of the features in last year's show here.

Troop F of the 102d Cavalry won the polo mounts event when Faith F. took a blue after a hard fight with Hearts, the sensation of the 1923 show. Hearts, owned by Miss Hardy Rust, was suffering from boil trouble and was working under a handicap. Dutch, owned by A. F. Schneidwind of Montclair, got third place.

Sandy came into his own later in the night in the jumping sweepstakes, which he won from Meadow Lark, owned by Mrs. Frank Hermann of Nutley, N. J. Cloud Duster of the Lockwood Stables was third and King's Own finished fourth. In this event Moonshine failed to qualify.

Princess Mary, owned by C. M. and J. F. O'Boyle of Pittston, Pa., won the honors in the saddle horse event. Morning Mist, owned by Mrs. Vincent S. Mulford of Montclair, N. J., was second and Powder Puff, owned by Miss Mildred Bedell of New York, was third. Bohemian Princess from the Mrs. Douglas C. Fonda stables of West Orange, N. J., was fourth.

FRENCH TO ADMIT U. S. CAMERA MEN

GOODMAN NAMES LINE-UP

Only Six Regulars Will Face Rumanians Tomorrow—Full Strength Saved for French Match.

PARIS, May 9 (Associated Press).—The deadlock over the question of Americans being permitted to take moving pictures of the Olympic Rugby football matches, in which the American team plays, was broken tonight. The Americans have been protesting since Wednesday against the action of the French Olympic Committee in giving the exclusive rights for taking the Olympic games pictures to a private firm.

Tonight Samuel Goodman of California, manager of the American team, received from Alan Muhr, Assistant General Commissioner of Sports, the following note:

"The private company enjoying exclusively the right to make pictures will take great pleasure in allowing your official photographers to make pictures of both Rugby matches in which the Americans are engaged, under the condition that these pictures are purely for record and educational purposes."

Today's conference between Goodman and Muhr is said to have been a rather heated one. Goodman objected to the principle of the French Olympic Committee's right to sell the exclusive privileges of taking pictures of events in which teams of foreign nations are engaged. Goodman threatened to prevent the French company's men from filming the Rugby matches participated in by the Americans unless American photographers were allowed the same privileges. The American manager is said to have threatened to keep his team off the field unless his idea was accepted. This proved the convincing argument for the Olympic Committee, which promised to break its contract with the moving picture concern, having the concession, or to pay it 100,000f. forfeit money in order to allow American photographers to work.

The American team went through hard practice today. Substitute players will make up the greater part of the team which will meet the Rumanians next Sunday. Most of the star players are being held in reserve for the game with France on May 18, as it is the express determination of the Americans to win this match at all costs.

Charles Doe, San Francisco, full back. Edward Turkington and George Dixon, Vallejo, Cal.; Robert Devereaux, Ohio, and Norman Cleveland, Oakland, Cal., quarter backs. Dick Hyland, San Francisco, and Rudolph Scholz, Kewanee, Ill., half backs. Caesar Manelli, New York City; John O'Neill, South Dakota; Edward Graff, San Francisco; William Muldoon, California; Allen C. Valentine, Glen Cove, N. Y., Al Williams, West Orange, N. J.; Philip Clarke, San Francisco, and Jack Patrick, Palo Alto, Cal., forwards.

The only change in the line-up as announced tonight, according to Goodman, may be Norman (Babe) Slater of Woodland, Cal., captain of the team, for Muldoon. The team which will meet the Rumanians contains only six of the regulars.

SOCCER TEAM SAILS FOR OLYMPICS TODAY

Colonel Mills Will Leave on Same Steamship to Supervise the Work in France.

As guests of the Olympic Committee of the United States Football Association, the seventeen members of the American soccer squad were entertained at a dinner at the Park Hotel last night. The team will represent this country in the international matches at the Olympic games in France and will sail on the Steamship America today. In the absence of President Peel of Chicago, who sailed for Europe a week ago, Morris W. Johnson of Philadelphia, First Vice President of the national organization, attended.

Among other prominent officials who were present and spoke were Lieut. Col. G. Randolph Manning, an ex-President of the United States Football Association; William Patrick of Bayonne, Second Vice President; Andrew J. Kerr of Jersey City, Secretary; George M. Collins of Boston, Manager of the team, and George H. Burford of Philadelphia, Trainer. The Steamship America will leave Pier 4, Hoboken at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Sailing at the same time will be Colonel A. G. Mills, Vice President of the American Olympic Committee and one of the foremost authorities of amateur athletics in the country. Colonel Mills has advanced the date of his annual trip to Europe in order to look after details of America's participation in the Olympic games in Paris, in advance of the actual arrival of the United States athletes.

SPEAKING OF MANDATES.

It's a wise political party that knows its own mandate. In 1920 the Republicans thought that they got a powerful one against the League of Nations. This was disputed at the time by many of their own party, and was specifically denied by the man who is now Republican President, then Governor COOLIDGE. But the superstition was set up, and many have groveled before it until this year. It has been a sufficient excuse, or pretense, put forward on every occasion, suitable or not, as a reason for renouncing the League and all its works. Would you have public men disregard the solemn mandate of the people?

Well, if the Republicans believe in the continuous power of the voters to issue mandates, they could find many indications nowadays that a mandate of quite another tenor is coming from the fountain of all authority. Look at the anti-League Senators who have been either rebuked or defeated by their own constituents. The great lawgiver from New Hampshire, Senator MOSES, was rejected as delegate to the Cleveland convention in favor of a man upon whose candidacy he looked with contempt. No one was a more irreconcilable enemy of the League of Nations than Senator MCCORMICK. He offered himself for reelection, but the Republican voters of Illinois would not have him. He will probably now think as badly of his own State as he professionally did of Europe. But, of course, the shining exemplar of what happens when a mandate goes wrong is Senator JOHNSON. No one threw himself into more severe artificial convulsions over the League of Nations than he. He came back from Europe last Summer to begin his campaign for the Presidency as the most immitigable opponent of every form of alliance or cooperation with European nations. Chiefly on this issue he cast himself upon the Republican voters of many States, only to find that their tender mercies to him were cruel. Rejected everywhere else, he finally touched the climax of catastrophe in being set aside by the Republicans of his own California. His fate was thus not unlike that of the other protagonist of the fight against the League of Nations, Senator REED of Missouri, in having the "verdict of the vicinage" go strongly against him.

If any searcher after a mandate should argue that in this series of political events one could be found of a very positive kind in favor of the League of Nations, it would be hard for the Republican logicians of 1920 to refute him. To avoid misunderstanding, we wish to make it clear that in our judgment no such mandate has been delivered. But neither was one delivered as alleged four years ago. The talk about it then was largely humbug, and to maintain now that the voters have changed their minds on the issue would be to go beyond the evidence. But, mandate for mandate, the country is certainly getting one now good enough to show how nonsensical was the asserted mandate of 1920.

WHEN FRANCE VOTES.

It is not expected that the result of the German elections will have a material effect on the French voters tomorrow. The election prophets say that both extremes will probably come out somewhat stronger, as happened in Germany, but that the moderate parties will retain control. In other words, the indications are that, whatever the influence on POINCARÉ's political position at home, his foreign policy will remain unchanged, and France will stand by her intention to see a settlement with Germany reinforced by adequate sanctions. Rarely before has there been such unanimity as is shown in the determination of the French people to see the war through to the end by enforcement of the peace terms. It is with this program that POINCARÉ's name is identified, and it is this which gives him such great strength in the elections.

For France, as for Germany, the principal danger comes from the activities of the reactionary extremists. They are holding up the strength of the German Nationalist group in the Reichstag as a warning to all Frenchmen that German leadership is falling into bad hands, and that the French extremists alone can save France from Germany's clutches. This has been the consistent position of such men as TARDIEU, whose complaint against POINCARÉ has been that he has shown too great leniency. They have upbraided him for not "eating the Germans alive," and accuse him of forever temporizing when he should be relentless. This picture, to persons taught to think of POINCARÉ as the ogre of Europe, appears almost ludicrous.

The internal political situation in France presents no very striking problems. So personal is politics as played in France that issues do not greatly count. Parties rally about leaders. Hence there are innumerable cross-currents of personal jealousies which tend infinitely to complicate the situation. A few individuals like BRIAND, HERRIOT and TARDIEU are desperately anxious to take POINCARÉ's place, and will stoop to political tactics which otherwise they would scorn. But even with these conflicting ambitions it is not expected that there will be a great enough shift to have any immediate important effect.

M. POINCARÉ has naturally deferred action on the Dawes report until after the elections. Until the results are known, and the politicians have had a chance to estimate the new situation in France as well as in Germany, nothing specific can be done. There is talk of an early meeting with RAMSAY MACDONALD. This may well be in ten days, more or less. But till the situation has become crystallized, little can be done except wait.

MASTER OF THE HALL.

Tammany has several good titles to the name "Hall." It is one of our best known educational institutions. It is a centre of trades, with profitable, if not clearly defined, customs and rights of toll—"hallage." But a great university of applied politics, business administration and finance can't be run by a committee. It must have a single president, master, king, "to whom Zeus has given the sceptre and the authority." After JOHN KELLY's death, there was a Quadrumvirate for a time. CROKER, HUGH GRANT, THOMAS F. GILROY, BOURKE COCKRAN, took charge. CROKER soon got the majority of district leaders, and ruled alone. This, in spite of the solemn declaration of the Executive Committee that there shouldn't be another boss; that that Committee of Twenty-four, fellows of the college, should govern it.

When CROKER realized his own fragrance, he put a barren crown on Mr. LEWIS NIXON, who soon resigned, finding that the real power was in the hands of ANDY FREEDMAN and the Kitchen Cabinet, reporting to King RICHARD beyond seas. The Executive Committee cut the ties that bound the faithful to the ultramarine chief. In place of one-man rule it adopted the rule of three. For about four months of 1902 the once famous Triumvirate, facetiously described by the Oracle of the Pump as "Sport, Joke and Two-spot," was the board of overseers of our college and trade-guild. "The experiment of the Committee of Three having proved the desirability of individual responsibility in leadership," the Executive Committee highly resolved that leadership should be bestowed upon Mr. MURPHY, who exercised it with greater shrewdness than his predecessors. Observe that Tammany, like the rest of the world, speaks the reform language. Bosses are out of fashion. Leaders are in vogue. Now the Tammany Executive Committee has entrusted to a subcommittee of four men and three women the task of naming Mr. MURPHY's successor.

That is Tammany's business, and Tammany is quite capable of performing it to its own satisfaction, without advice and directions from the uninitiate. It is obvious, however, that if Surrogate FOLEY can be prevailed upon to take the post Tammany will have a new sort of leader, for Mr. NIXON was only the titular leader. Mr. FOLEY is an acute and accomplished lawyer, whose work as Surrogate has won him the respect and confidence of the bar and the public. Whether he has the talents and the temperament, the patience, energy, obstinacy and pachydermatousness required in the mastership of the Hall, is another question. Hitherto, the prize has been won by men who have worked their way up. Looking at Tammany from the artistic side, one might prefer some distriot leader, some rough diamond susceptible of polish, some "roughneck" capable of civilization. He knows his people. He has always been close to them; but not so near as he is to politics, in which he grew up, which is almost his second skin. A "new departure," however, might be good for Tammany, increase its prestige; and a leader of Tammany might not only have the skill to conduct its domestic affairs, but be a subtle diplomatist and negotiator in up-State and national politics. In this department of foreign affairs, Tammany has not usually been fortunate. Some time or other Tammany must "have it out with" that familiar spirit who possesses Mayor HYLAN and some of his merry men at the City Hall. Mr. HEARST hates Governor SMITH. Mr. HEARST vetoes Surrogate FOLEY. The Mayor has still a considerable patronage. Mr. HEARST's power was shown to be mostly mythical last Fall. Why should Tammany fear his ritual of bluster or do anything but laugh at the ventriloquism of the City Hall?

AN INDIRECT SUBSIDY.

The Shipping Board has withdrawn its certification that our shipping facilities are adequate for American commerce. Hence the proposal to discriminate against foreign shipping by privilege to American is abandoned for the time being. What the board calls "a storm of protest" against subsidizing Government shipping by cutting railway rates in its favor came to it as a surprise. It took action after hearings in many parts of the country. Complaints went to Congress that the board's proposal would "disorganize "trade and transportation, unsettle "well-established trade practices, discriminate against some ports of the "United States and unduly favor "others." The House committee with virtual unanimity agreed with those who protested, and the Shipping Board now admits that its decision was ill-considered.

Discussing the situation in a practical fashion, the President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation differs from the sentimental point of view of the Shipping Board. Mr. PALMER disapproves an "artificially low scale of "ocean freights which would force "the Treasury to pay a still larger "part of the costs of transportation, "and which would have the definite "effect of preventing the lines from "becoming self-sustaining and therefore salable." He holds also that we cannot afford to "ignore absolutely all conferences." Otherwise we may run inadvertently into rate wars and shipping demoralization.

Few of the acts done in connection with this subject show knowledge of the history of it. Both England and the United States a century ago took similar steps, and then retraced them in discomfiture. The details may be found in HARRIET MARTINEAU's history. Even if the American marine were adequate in fact, it could only be kept on the seas by tax money so long as the law compels it to hire more men and pay higher wages. Relief from these restraints would more encourage our shipping than paying losses from the Treasury. Ships cannot be operated like a factory, in which mass production and efficiency of management can make labor sufficiently productive to justify wages not otherwise economic.

TRAFFIC IN POPULATIONS.

A drastic method for adjusting the boundary dispute between the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland has been suggested by Prime Minister CRAIG. Instead of shifting frontier lines he would shift populations. In exchange for the Catholic inhabitants of Fermanagh and Tyrone in Ulster he would welcome the Protestant inhabitants in Monaghan, Cavan and Donegal in the Free State. Possibly he was indulging in a bit of sardonic humor, but we cannot be certain. What would have been considered a few years ago an economic and social monstrosity is now by way of becoming fact in the Aegean under the provisions of the Lausanne Treaty.

Mr. HENRY MORGENTHAU, Chairman of the Greek Refugee Settlement Commission under the League of Nations, has just secured a second loan of $5,000,000 in London for the work of repatriation in Greece. Ten times that amount will scarcely suffice to provide homes and livelihood for the million Greeks who have passed or are still to pass from under Turkish sovereignty. The number of Moslems in the counter-flux to Turkey is smaller, but ranges in the hundreds of thousands. It is a mass migration for which there is no parallel in modern history. After the war of 1870 nearly 50,000 inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine moved across the French frontier. Since the peace treaties of 1919 there have been minor migrations in Central and Eastern Europe. For an adequate parallel in numbers we must go back to the Völkerwanderung preceding the fall of the Roman Empire; but even here it was a case of a new population establishing itself by the side of the old. The complete parallel would be ancient Assyria with its policy of transplantation of entire populations.

The Greeks who have been cast out as "strangers" from Asia Minor had been living there for a small matter of three thousand years or so. The chronicle of continuous Hellenic civilization begins in the Asiatic homeland of THALES and HERODOTUS. And at that time the Hellenic population was performing the economic functions which it maintained up to yesterday under Turkish rule. The Greeks have been the traders and industrialists. The Assyrian transplantation in Samaria meant only the substitution of one agricultural population for another. KEMAL Pasha's task is to educate his Turks to be tradesmen and factory workers in place of the evicted Greeks. And for the Greek refugees in turn it is a case of dropping ancient habits and learning to be agriculturists. The Greek homeland, with a population of less than five millions, can hardly absorb an additional million of urban dwellers.

The self-determination of peoples is not the simple problem it has too frequently been assumed to be. History in the Old World has been busy producing ethnological tangles and racial frictions which cannot be solved by remaking the maps. To deal with this problem the peace treaties and the League of Nations have devoted much thought to the protection of minorities. But in the case of Greece and Turkey nothing short of a major operation has been found feasible. It would be a tragedy to see the same need appear in Ireland.

THE VETERANS' BUREAU AGAIN.

In giving notice of a resolution to reorganize the Veterans' Bureau, Senator ODDIE of Nevada declared that "a ring of high officials is still working for its own selfish interests," neglecting the welfare of the ex-service men. "The Director," he added, "does not know what is going on under him." Senator ODDIE stated that he had "called attention" to the officials forming the "ring," but that the Director thought they were "all right apparently." The honesty of the Director is not questioned by the Nevada Senator. In view of the knowledge of men displayed by General HINES in France and his remarkable work as an organizer, those who know him will be loath to believe that he is being hoodwinked by grafting officials of the Veterans' Bureau.

In December General HINES reorganized the Central Board of Appeals to expedite the adjudication of claims, created a new service of disbursing and accounting, and planned a consolidation of the insurance and claims divisions. The changes were made to give him more time to supervise the bureau's operations. But Senator ODDIE complained that "there "has not been the improvement in "the handling of individual cases "that there should have been." General O'RYAN, who had served as general counsel to the Senate committee of inquiry, also found fault with the reorganization. He asserted that a "ring" existed in the central office, "which largely determines the policies of the bureau." He said further:

> The bureau's activities are so numerous and widespread that the Director is forced to depend upon a staff of assistants to execute his general policies and orders. The members of this staff constitute the group who have access to the Director. Circumstances bar the admission of others to the Director's councils, except under rare conditions.

Senator ODDIE, who is a Republican, told Mr. COOLIDGE that unless the Veterans' Bureau was properly organized it would be a target of the opposition during the Presidential campaign. He desires a clean sweep of all the Forbes subordinates remaining. It is to be noted that Senator REED of Pennsylvania, who was Chairman of the investigating committee, was in agreement with his colleague about the results to be obtained, "but I am not in agreement with him," he said, "about the methods of obtaining them." The Director himself insists that changes in the higher officials must be made only on proof that they are venal or incompetent. A "clean sweep," he has pointed out, would require the filling of vacancies with inexperienced men. Inefficiency has no doubt been a great handicap to good administration in the Veterans' Bureau. The Director is personally responsible if things go wrong. He maintains that he is well served by his assistants. And the President has let it be known that he will urge no reorganization of the bureau unless "concrete" evidence of incompetence or malfeasance is presented.

MUSIC OF THE SPHERES.

Sir THOMAS BROWNE in his "Religio Medici" speaks, as did PLATO, of the music of the spheres. He says that, though they give no sound unto the ear, yet to the understanding they strike a note most full of harmony. Surely he would be pleased to learn (if he has survived his own urn burial) that the stars have a music even beyond that of their well-ordered motions. The meagre report from Europe of a few weeks ago concerning the transformation of the light of the star Capella into sound, audible in the telephone receiver, has been confirmed by an account of the detail of the process of transmutation of the waves of light into those of sound. This has been anticipated, it is reported, by Dr. FOURNIER D'ALBE, who has invented the "optophone," an instrument by means of which blind persons have been enabled to read ordinary print through the use, in connection with the telephone, of the metal selenium, which has a varying electric conductivity under the influence of light.

Most impressive, however, is not the fact of the transformation by the seeming magic of this metal, but the fact that the light of Capella, so remote that its light has had to journey forty years to reach this planet, though traveling as far as eight times around the earth in a second, can actually be "heard." The rays of light which General FERRIE listened to a few nights ago have therefore been on the way since 1884. Dr. EARNEST FOX NICHOLS, the physicist who died at the science meeting in Washington last week, was probably of mortals the best able to measure the heat of that star, which to one in certain places in the White Mountains seems when rising to be but a campfire upon a neighboring peak. It now ascends not only as a bearer of light of the intensity of a candle 2,000 feet away, but as a member of the stellar orchestra to make its special contribution to the music of the spheres.

Thus to the music of earth made by singers and players on instruments, especially augmented in a national celebration of Music Week, is added the prospect of music made by the heavenly bodies. With the voices of the insect world made audible by the microphone and the voices of the distant celestial choir recorded in the optophone, the savage breast of earth should some day be soothed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Claim Deserves Confidence.

Only the news that a cure for cancer other than the surgeon's knife had been found would be of more importance in the field of medicine than is the announcement that a means of conquering that particularly deadly foe of humanity, pneumonia, seems to have been discovered at last.

It is no small claim for confidence in this announcement that it is expressed rather as a strong hope than as a certainty, and with frank acknowledgment that the remedy still must undergo a long series of tests before realization of the expectations of the doctor who, after years of effort along the lines where other men of science have achieved like triumphs, now says that he thinks "the mortality rate from pneumonia can be much reduced." This form of statement is exactly the one which would be chosen by a man with the experience and the associations of Dr. LLOD B. FELTON of the Harvard Medical School—the only one that would be received as full of promise and presumably true so far as it goes.

If it went further at this stage, when the new concentrate from equine serum has been tried on only 160 human patients, his colleagues would hear him with deserved distrust. That the death rate of those patients has been far below what is normal under older treatments is not conclusive as regards pneumonia, any more than would be a like decrease in the case of any other disease with less than 100 per cent. mortality. It is quite enough, however, to fix the attention of the whole medical world on Dr. FELTON's report, and the repetition of his work will begin at once in many research laboratories.

Like Dr. BANTING, from whose labors came insulin, Dr. FELTON is still young, but the seniors in his profession will listen to him with respect and he will not encounter the antagonism which too often has been the chief reward, in his lifetime, of the medical innovator. There is still much for him to do, for pneumonia is a disease of several "types," and what seems to be the right "antibody" for only one of them is as yet available. The others are apparently in sight, however, and there cannot be real doubt of their existence.

A Triumph Due to "Vivisection."

Legislators who are exposed to the pressures and the arguments used by anti-vivisectionists, and the many other deluded people who think themselves anti-vivisectionists merely because they hate cruelty to animals, should note carefully the fact that Dr. FELTON could have done nothing of what he has done if he had not been allowed by Massachusetts laws to take much blood from the veins of living horses, and if he had been forbidden to cause, by infecting them with pneumonia, the presumably uncomfortable death of many mice.

Of course, he has not "tortured" either the larger or the smaller animals, but he has used them in an interest not directly their own, and at anti-vivisectionist meetings he doubtless will be denounced. As likely as not, he will be called a "fiend" at such gatherings and in the organs of the strange cult. That need not worry him, for from the great majority of his fellow-citizens, and especially all of them who ever had pneumonia or have seen a relative or friend dying in its agonies, what the antis will condemn as his crimes will get the grateful laudation they deserve.

And what is to be his recompense? Not riches, certainly, for the ethics of his profession will not permit him to turn his discovery into a fortune. His name will head a page in medical history, read by few except doctors; he will have a chance to continue his chosen work in excellent conditions and probably with adequate resources, and that will be about all. Whether or not such rewards are enough for men who confer enormous benefits upon their fellows is a question that deserves more consideration than it has received. One can be sure that Dr. FELTON will not complain, and the chances are that if he did receive a big award of money from some appreciative source, he promptly would "sink" it in a new and bigger laboratory, and invite into it other men with ambitions like his own to seek with him for other triumphs such as his. Never will anybody see anywhere advertisements of "Felton's Sure Cure for Pneumonia and the other Respiratory Diseases."

Of Course He Was Tempted.

That taxicab driver who had a chance to appropriate, at least for a while, jewels said to be worth a good many thousand dollars, is quoted as saying, when asked if he was not tempted, "Of course I was tempted. Who wouldn't have been?"

The temptation took the form of imagining the pearls and the diamonds distributed tastefully about the person of his wife. The picture pleased, but it also alarmed—lest it should prove irresistibly attractive—and speed laws were seriously cracked in a rush to the nearest police station. Certainly it was safer to go there at once voluntarily than to take the large chance of being carried there later, as preliminary to fairly sure indictment and conviction.

Asking JOHN CODY if he was tempted was much like asking men who "went over the top" or endured heavy shell fire for hours if they were frightened. Always the truthful ones have answered "Yes"—always, that is, except in the case of a few dull fellows quite without imagination—and nobody with sense thinks of doubting the courage of those who make that frank reply. They were scared, but they did not run away.

So CODY was tempted, but he did not steal, and, like the frightened soldiers who still did their full duty or more, he was more of a hero than if he had been so "dumb" as not to realize all the fine things he could do with a lot of money.

He Forgot About Operations.

Heroism in another form was illustrated by the fireman EDWARD SLEVIN, who was in the hospital this week under preparation for a near and serious operation, when he "smelled smoke." Probably it was not exactly wise for him to jump out of bed, rush in nightgown and slippers for the axe in a near-by case, and then lead a small army of orderlies in a skillful and effective attack on the flames that were spreading rapidly behind a partition.

When the other firemen arrived they found next to nothing to do, so nearly all of it had SLEVIN, the expert, with the aid of his amateurs, already done.

Probably the hospital and its patients would have been saved, even if SLEVIN had not been there, but early action counts for a lot in case of fire, especially in crowded institutions, so credit safely can be given to this man for forgetting that he very emphatically was "off duty"—which neither policemen nor firemen often are, their jobs being in theory continuous, twenty-four hours a day, every day in the week.

LEGAL RIGHTS OF THE GUEST

Host's Duty to Protect Him Is Recognized by Courts, It Is Said.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention was directed to the comment under "Topics of the Times" entitled "What Contract Was It He Broke?"

Your writer in commenting on the Jesmer-Plant damage suit falls into an error which would be made by a layman, and not by a lawyer. The question at the head of the article gives an erroneous impression, because the cause of action of Miss Jesmer against Mr. Plant did not arise from a contract at all, but arose from what is referred to in law as a "tort"—that is, a violation of the duty which is owed by one person to another. In other words, it arises from the obligation which is incumbent upon all of us so to conduct ourselves as not to violate the rights of others.

The mere fact that Miss Jesmer was a guest of Mr. Plant did not create a contract between them. There were, however, certain duties which were imposed upon each of them, and these duties have received very recent definition in our courts, especially in the Appellate Division of the Third Department, where two similar cases were adjudicated in May, 1923.

Even a host giving a free ride to an invited guest under these circumstances has some duties and is obligated under the decisions of our courts to certain measures for the protection of his invited guests.

While the guest assumes the ordinary risks of the ride, and to that extent shares with her host the perils which might arise from external agencies, the guest does not assume the risk of reckless driving on the part of the host.

In the recent decisions, which followed earlier cases, the Appellate Division of the Third Department held that where the guest protests against the driving of the automobile at an excessive speed by her host, in the event of an accident the owner of the car (the host) becomes liable for personal injuries sustained by the guest.

It is not a question at all of any contract or any contractual relations, but the result of the negligence or violation of a duty which is imposed upon the host as a matter of law.

Such cause of action arises from the common law obligation, which is dependent generally not upon statutes or contracts but upon the decisions of the courts, which are modified and changed by new inventions, such as the automobile or airplane, which give rise to new situations.

Of course, it is a matter of conjecture, but the only comment which a lawyer might make on the Jesmer-Plant case is that perhaps an amount of irrelevant testimony as to the personal relations between the plaintiff and the defendant came into the trial, when it would appear that the only legal issue was whether the car was being driven at an excessive rate of speed, and if it was, whether the guest consented or protested against the reckless driving by her host.

The settlement of the case has, of course, eliminated this as a legal issue either for the jury or the higher court, which might be called upon to review the finding of the jury.

For Identifying the Subways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Could each division of the subway lines be easily identified wherever it blossoms on the surface by having its kiosks or entrances painted alike in hue and with a color distinctly its own, what worry, time and questioning would be spared to many bewildered in the hurrying crowds seeking the subway line desired.

At present, all the entrances look alike and one often has to think long before choosing a subway lest upon emerging to the street he be compelled to hike long distances or take more rides to reach his destination.

I often find it necessary to stand deliberately in front of a subway entrance to see and decipher the all important letters B. R. T., I. R. T., or some other cabalistic symbols before daring to descend for self-consignment to shades where vanish all my bearings.

How many viewing an unknown kiosk at a distance are able to say to which subway division it forms an entrance?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To be President of the United States takes a great deal of strength, both mental and physical. When our young men go into the army or navy they have to be examined both mentally and physically before they are admitted into service. Why shouldn't our candidates for the Presidency be so examined before voted on?

The people then may be assured that the President they choose will be able to govern one of the greatest and most powerful nations of the world.

DEATH, THE BANDIT.

Death is a Bandit who can steal
The last sensations that we feel;
And, robbing us, he has acquired
All earthly things we once desired—
The joy of Love, the happy hours,
The sunlight and the scent of flowers.

To Youth sometimes he'll only give
A little space in which to live,
While from the old and tired who pray
For quick release he hides away.
His every act reveals a flaw,
But Death, the Bandit, knows no law!

Silent and ruthless, he awaits
In ambush and decides our fates,
And if our greatest care should stay
No wealth, nor fame, nor tears could buy
His mercy when it's time to die.

But on we go and fight the fight
For something wrong or something right,
And often we have gained it, too,
And yet no matter what we do,
Our virtues count no more than sins
With Death, the Bandit—for he wins.

THE LODGE PLAN FOR A WORLD COURT

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The atmosphere of Washington is notoriously an opaque medium through which to perceive the sentiment of the country. So it is that the impressive answers to the roll-calls of the Republican Party throughout the country, demonstrating emphatic and nation-wide approval of Calvin Coolidge and his policies, have not yet penetrated the consciousness of the Washington legislators. Upon substantially every policy advanced by Mr. Coolidge with the outspoken approval of the country, some section, if not almost the whole band, of the members of his party in the Congress, and especially in the Senate, has fallen with sword in hand. The latest of these destructive efforts is Senator Lodge's proposed substitute for the Permanent Court of International Justice.

No such piece of buffoonery ever has been brought forward by a responsible statesman. Obviously troubled by the recent most impressive demonstration in favor of the Permanent Court before the subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, Mr. Lodge has, he thinks, hit upon a plan to "Keep the word of promise to our ear,

And break it to our hope."

To this end he has employed Chandler Anderson, an accomplished attorney, to improvise a "World Court of Justice," as distinguished from the Permanent Court, which may serve to confuse, if not to placate, the public sentiment behind the demand that the Senate carry out the recommendations of Presidents Harding and Coolidge, Secretary Hughes and Mr. Root, in authorizing adherence to the Permanent Court, upon conditions appropriate to our detachment from the League of Nations, but consistent with out national dignity and honor.

Mr. Anderson has taken the statute establishing the Permanent Court, adopted it almost in its entirety, substituting the words "the World Court" in the opening article for "a Permanent Court of International Justice," but instead of availing of the existing machinery of the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations, by means of which Senator Root and his associate jurists who framed the protocol and statute for the Court found it possible to overcome the obstacles previously found to be insuperable to the creation of a permanent international court, proposing to create a new body to be known as "an electoral commission," consisting of a general committee composed of representatives designated for that purpose by the signatory powers, and a special committee composed of representatives designated for that purpose by the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, together with those of five other signatory powers selected by the general committee by a majority vote from time to time. This electoral commission is to meet when occasion may require at The Hague, or at such other place as may be agreed upon, and the Judges of the proposed court are to be selected by a majority vote of those two bodies. In other words, in order to avoid contamination with the hated League of Nations Mr. Lodge proposes that the powers signatory to the protocol establishing the existing Court shall scrap their work and unite with the American Government in creating this new and cumbersome machinery, through which shall be duplicated a court which shall have the blessing of the "bitter-enders" and shall be wholly detached from the odium of association with the League.

Certain articles additional to those taken bodily from the statute of the Permanent Court are proposed. First, while this "World Court" is proposed to be open to all States, upon conditions laid down by the General Committee, it is specifically stated that these do not include "any dominion, colony, or other component part of a State." So that neither the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia or the Commonwealth of South Africa could be competent suitors before this court—a most effective way of accomplishing the vaunted result of erecting a "world court" as distinguished from the Permanent Court of International Justice!

There is then an even more than usual elaboration of matters that may not be submitted to the adjudication of the court. It is provided that it shall not have jurisdiction "to render advisory opinions on any question which affects the admission of aliens into the United States, or the admission of aliens to the educational institutions of the several States, or the territorial integrity of the several States of the United States, or concerning the question of the alleged indebtedness or money obligations of any State or the United States, or any question which depends upon or involves the maintenance of the traditional attitude of the United States concerning American questions, commonly described as the Monroe Doctrine, or other purely government policy, or any question which is considered by the Government of the United States to be a domestic question."

Thus having made attractive to other powers the invitation to accept the international court of their own special construction, the Senator and his associates next propose that "the court shall be bound by the principle that international law recognizes the authority of the laws of the United States within its own jurisdiction as applied to foreigners or to foreign-owned property therein whether in time of peace or war."

Finally, to complete the cordiality of the invitation to accept the principle of judicial settlement of international disputes, it is provided that before any case in which the United States is concerned can be submitted to the Court, a special agreement must be concluded between the United States and the other parties in interest "defining clearly the matter in dispute, the scope of the powers of the Court, and the periods for the several stages of procedure," and that such agreement only can be made by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

An elaborate explanation of the plan, prepared for Senator Lodge by Mr. Anderson, is annexed to it, and should be read with care by any one concerned in getting a full appreciation of the Lodge substituted mythical Court for the actual existing functioning Permanent Court. The proposed plan is solemnly recommended as a step forward in the accomplishment of the organization of the world for peace through the development and enforcement of law. A haunting recollection of the pledges in the Republican platform of 1920 leads to the incorporation of the following extraordinary paragraph:

"The advantage of an association of nations in addition to The Hague organization, as an influence for maintaining peace has not been overlooked, but such an association is not suggested in this plan because it seems impracticable at present to organize such an association independently of the League of Nations.

"The League covers the ground for the Old World and many of the nations of the New World are members of it, and so long as the members are satisfied with that organization it would be unseemly for the United States to attempt to disorganize it by proposing a different association either for the Old or the New World."

One cannot but marvel that the same hand that penned those lines should propose the disorganization or the abandonment of the Permanent Court of International Justice, which covers the ground not only for the Old World but for the whole world, except the United States, Russia, Ecuador and Mexico, and whose members are quite satisfied with the organization; which facts, it would seem, would make it equally unseemly for the United States to attempt to disorganize it by proposing a different tribunal, either for the Old or the New World.

To complete the comedy, the first of the conclusions drawn from the proposals of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Lodge is that "the United States should resume its former position of leadership in the development of international law and the organization of the world for peace on the basis of respect for law and the jural equality of all nations."

During the New York Constitutional Convention of 1915 there was a distinguished delegate who, in Mr. Root's words, used to approach the decision of every important question "by backing vigorously away from it." A similar method is adopted by this plan to enable the United States to resume its former position of leadership in the development of international law and the organization of the world for peace.

The plan is preposterous. It is an obvious attempt to throw dust in the eyes of the many people who believe that the United States ought to adhere to the Permanent Court upon the terms recommended by Presidents Harding and Coolidge. One cannot but wonder whether Mr. Lodge ever read the speech delivered by President Harding at the luncheon of The Associated Press in New York on April 24, 1923, in which he referred to the beclouding of the situation affecting American adhesion to the court "by those who shudder excessively when the League is mentioned and who assume entanglement is unavoidable."

Referring, not to a mythical, hypothetical court, but to the Permanent Court of International Justice, Mr. Harding said:

"I earnestly commend it because it is a great step in the right direction toward the peaceful settlement of justiciable questions, toward the elimination of frictions which lead to war, and a surer agency of international justice through the application of law than can be hoped for in arbitration, which is influenced by the prejudices of men and the expediency of politics."

He used also the following significant words, which cannot be too often repeated or pondered over by representatives of the Republican Party, who must shortly appeal to the American people for an approval of their record of the last four years and a grant of suffrage for the period to come. The question of the Permanent Court, he said, is not to be classed as a party question, but, he added:

"If any party, repeatedly advocating a world court, is to be rended by the suggestion of an effort to perform in accordance with its pledges, it needs a new appraisal of its assets."

This new appraisal will be made by the people, and I cannot doubt that they will readily distinguish between true coin and a counterfeit imitation, and will regard Mr. Lodge's proposed substitute as counterfeit, too obvious to be accepted even by the most simple.

INDUSTRY IN TIME OF WAR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was very much interested in the story of "The Next War: How Industry Will Help Fight It," which appeared in yesterday's TIMES. Everybody appreciates the excellent work which Mr. Bernard M. Baruch and his associates did during the war, but I feel that his presentation in your paper will mislead many people. As a result of his experience he recommends:

"That legislation be put into effect that would give power to the President in case of war or threatened war to mobilize immediately the resources of the nation."

It would seem that the present National Defense act provides for industrial mobilization, not only in time of war, but also in peace times before the emergency arises. The Assistant Secretary of War is charged with the supervision of such industrial mobilization.

The present incumbent, Colonel Dwight F. Davis, has addressed himself most energetically to the solution of the many problems involved in the proposition. Colonel Davis has the advantage not only of knowing the details of "big business" in civil life, but his knowledge of army matters—he served with his regiment in France and received the Distinguished Service Cross for his gallantry—enables him to approach the proposition from all angles. Under his direction surveys have been made of the 700,000 items used in war which would be required to equip our army. The country has been divided into fourteen procurement districts, with offices assigned to each. Over 6,000 factories have been allocated, and each one knows exactly what would be required of it in case of a major emergency and at what rate production would be required. Forms of contracts have been prepared, dies and plans furnished, and each manufacturer is equipped to at once begin to turn out the required products when the order reaches him.

Colonel Davis has coined a phrase which should be seriously considered by those who cannot see that adequate preparation is the strongest guarantee of peace:

"Industrial mobilization is not in any sense a preparation for war, but is planned as an insurance against war."

I have not attempted in this brief statement to give an adequate idea of the effective work which is being done in Washington, but I do want to remove any possible misapprehension which may be caused by Mr. Baruch's article as to the failure to prepare for industrial mobilization in time of peace.

HONOR SIR ALFRED ROBBINS.

Foreign Correspondents Give Luncheon for Masonic Envoy.

Sir Alfred Robbins, who last Wednesday delivered a message of good-will to the Grand Lodge of Masons of the State of New York from the Duke of Connaught, Grand Master of the British Grand Lodge, was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon given by the Association of Foreign Correspondents at the Lawyers' Club.

Melville Stone, John Daniels of the English-Speaking Union and Dr. Talcott Williams, representing the School of Journalism at Columbia University, spoke of the work of Sir Alfred as a journalist and a Mason, and praised his activities in behalf of a better understanding between the English-speaking peoples.

Sir Alfred, in response, said that he will return to England more convinced than ever that the welfare of the world depends very largely upon the friendship and unofficial cooperation of the English-speaking peoples. He said that he is convinced from chats with President Coolidge and former President Taft that they fully share that view, and that while Mr. Hughes as Secretary of State fettered by official responsibility did not speak quite so openly, it seemed pretty plain to most peoples that "Hughes is thinking along the right lines."

Sir Alfred said he realized from all he had seen that America has the capacity of being the most powerful nation on earth, but is not and possibly could not be the most powerful nation until it cooperates more fully with other countries to safeguard the world's peace and prosperity. "But," he added, "I go back to London full of appreciation of what you have done and full of hope."

Mrs. Smith, Who Had Lapsed Into Coma, Recognizes Son as He Enters Room.

LAST RITES ADMINISTERED

Governor Smith arrived at the Grand Central Station at 10:15 last night from Albany and at once hurried to his mother's home at 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn. When he reached there half an hour later, Father William B. Farrell, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, was reading to Mrs. Smith the prayers for the dying. When the prayers were over the Governor went to his mother's bedside. Other members of the family who were at the house were her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Glynn, with whom Mrs. Smith lived, their seven children, and three grandchildren. Dr. John H. Reb, the family physician, and Dr. Chickering of the Rockefeller Institute were in attendance.

When the Governor entered the sickroom his mother recognized him and greeted him. During the evening she had several times lapsed into a coma, but when conscious she had repeatedly asked "When is Al coming?" The news that he had left Albany on his way to her cheered her greatly.

The Governor remained at the house for an hour and a half and when he left he told reporters that he was going to spend the night at the Hotel Bossert, a few blocks away. He said that his mother had seemed to improve during his visit and that Dr. Reb had assured him there was no immediate danger. When he left her bedside she was sleeping comfortably.

Early in the afternoon the Governor had received in Albany a telephone message from his sister that their mother's condition had suddenly altered critically for the worse. The Rev. Father Edward Costello, rector of the Church of the Assumption, administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The news of the relapse followed a morning report from the sick room that Mrs. Smith had passed a comfortable night and that the prospects for her recovery were decidedly brighter. Until the afternoon telephone message it was thought probable that the Governor would not leave the Capitol yesterday, although for two days he had kept himself in constant readiness for a sudden trip and had been in frequent communication with the Glynn household.

When he called at the house shortly after noon yesterday Dr. Reb, the family physician, found Mrs. Smith very weak and her temperature high, the condition having come about suddenly. Because of her age, 71 years, the doctor was alarmed and at once decided that the Governor should be notified. At that time Mrs. Smith was not suffering any pain, but was finding it impossible to obtain rest, although she closed her eyes repeatedly in an effort to sleep. Since last Tuesday she had eaten no food and had had no appetite whatever.

Mrs. Smith's present attack of bronchial pneumonia is like that she successfully fought her way through in November, 1919. At that time it was feared she would not survive, and her son came as now from Albany to be at her bedside. She recovered only after a severe strain, and it is feared that the consequent exhaustion may have weakened her so as to hurt her chances now.

BENEFACTOR OF BLIND DEAD

Joel W. Smith Succumbs to Shot Fired to End Life.

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., May 9.—Joel West Smith, blind educator and the first blind man to use a typewriter, died in the Middlesex Hospital, Middletown, tonight. His death came as the result of an attempt at suicide last night, prompted by despondency over ill health.

Mr. Smith was born in East Hampton Sept. 17, 1837, was educated here and afterward taught in the public schools of Illinois. During a celebration on the 4th of July, 1862, through the premature discharge of a cannon he lost the sight of both eyes. His life thereafter was devoted to helping the blind and he taught both in this country and in England.

He revised the Braille system of writing and printing for the blind by introducing the principle of recurrence of letters. He was formerly publisher of the Mentor Magazine and a life member of the Spelling Reform Association of the Sons of the American Revolution. He was unmarried.

TEN SHIPS BREAK ICE JAM.

They Reach Duluth, but 53 Others Are Blocked in Lake Superior.

DULUTH, Minn., May 9 (Associated Press).—Eight freighter and two passenger ships, the Canadian liners Hamonic and Huronic, had made port here through the upper Lake Superior ice jam today, but there was no material lessening of the blockade.

With the exception of the inconveniences caused men passengers and members of the crews because of limited tobacco supplies, every one fared well during the four-day imprisonment, skippers reported. None of the ships was seriously damaged.

With a northwest gale raging unabated, vessel agents held no immediate hope for a break-up in the blockade which now directly affects fifty-three lake freighters.

Nineteen freighters, several coal-laden, still are stuck in the ice fields, while twenty iron ore, grain and package freight carriers are tied up in the Duluth Superior Harbor.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 9.—Chilly Spring weather with mixtures of snow and rain greeted the Northwest today, in the vicinity of the Twin Cities, snow fell early today, melting at once. Reports from other sections of the State and North and South Dakota told of snow falling with temperatures around freezing.

LANGLEY ON STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

COVINGTON, Ky., May 9.—Representative John W. Langley of Kentucky, on trial with two others on a charge of conspiracy against the Government involving the illegal removal of 1,400 cases of whisky from the Belle of Anderson Distillery, near Lawrenceburg, Ky., in 1921, took the stand as the first witness in his own defense this afternoon. Mrs. Langley, who has been at her husband's side all through the trial, sat with his counsel while he was on the stand, her gaze fixed on his face.

After testifying that he was elected to Congress in 1907 and had been re-elected ever since, Langley described his acquaintance with Elias Mortimer, and said he first met him in Washington. On the day before President Harding was to be inaugurated, Mortimer invited Mr. and Mrs. Langley to an elaborate dinner he was giving for his friends in the Cabinet and Congressmen and which he expected Mr. and Mrs. Harding to attend, the witness testified.

Referring to Mortimer's testimony regarding alleged conferences in Washington on the appointment of a Prohibition Director for Kentucky, the witness said that the statements were untrue. He told details of the appointment of Mr. Collins to that post and said the selection was of his choice and was approved by party leaders. During 1921 in the early days of his acquaintance with Mortimer the witness said he (Langley) was President of the Teal Coal Company at Pikesville, Ky., and that he was heavily in debt.

"I favored selling my coal interest to meet my obligations, but Mrs. Langley thought it better to keep the property," he testified. "It was at that time that Mortimer offered to loan me $6,000, and I accepted."

He made a general denial of all the charges against him and called untrue testimony tending to connect him with a conspiracy or any wrongdoing.

On cross-examination by United States Attorney Smith Langley admitted that he had never repaid to Mortimer the $6,000 borrowed, but modified his testimony by saying that part of the money was given for the Republican campaign fund.

Mrs. Smith subjected Langley to a grueling cross-examination in an effort to break his denials concerning influence used on Collins to get him to issue permits approving the transportation of whisky by truck.

Representative Ben Johnson appeared as a character witness for Langley. He testified that Langley's reputation for truth and veracity was good with one exception.

"What is that?" was asked.

"Sometimes he drinks too much," was the answer.

Governor Fields of Kentucky and Representative Arthur B. Rouse testified that with the exception stated by Mr. Johnson, Langley's reputation was good.

Counsel filed a motion to take Langley's case from the jury on the ground that the conspiracy charge had not been sustained. Judge Cochran denied the motion.

BELLMORE CASHIER ASKS A QUICK TRIAL

RAID SUSPECTS IN COURT

Slattery, Ross and Kivana Plead Not Guilty to Charge of Murder in Bank Hold-Up.

Charles M. Vanderoef, cashier of the First National Bank of Bellmore, L. I., waived examination yesterday when arraigned before Federal Commissioner McCabe in Brooklyn on a charge of stealing $4,800 of the bank's funds. The total of the thefts, extending over more than six years, has been estimated at close to $50,000. Vanderoef's bail of $25,000 was continued and in default of bail he was sent back to Raymond Street Jail.

His case will be presented Tuesday morning to the Grand Jury by Federal Attorney Ralph C. Greene. Vanderoef was a broken figure when arraigned yesterday and dejectedly told reporters that "it breaks my heart when I think how my family will have to suffer."

John J. Slattery, Ambrose Ross and Stanley J. Kivana, all of Astoria, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Supreme Court Justice May in Mineola on indictments charging them with murder in the first degree in the killing of Whitman. They were held without bail for trial. Their pleas were entered for them by their attorney, Frederick J. Groehl, of 233 Broadway, Manhattan.

The three men indicted a few weeks ago on charges of murder were released yesterday by Nassau County authorities to the police of Smithtown, Suffolk County, in connection with a hold-up for which they were sought. The prisoners, Louis Loeber, John W. Johnson and John Baker, have been cleared of all suspicion. The indictments were dismissed Wednesday.

Mrs. Barney Wiegand, wife of a North Bellmore innkeeper and a depositor in the Bellmore bank, indignantly denied yesterday that Vanderoef had ever been at the inn.

SIX OF FAMILY DROWN IN A FLOODED STREAM

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., May 9.—Six members of the family of William Miller, an orchardist, were drowned in flood waters of a small mountain stream ten miles from here late yesterday, according to reports received here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and four of their children met death when an automobile truck, in which they were returning from a fishing trip to their mountain home in Berkley County, West Virginia, was swept from a bridge by the raging waters. Their bodies were recovered this morning.

A rainfall extending over a period of thirty-six hours caused the little mountain stream to leave its banks. When Miller and his family reached the small bridge near their home they found the floor of the structure under water.

The tragedy was discovered this morning, when near-by residents found the upturned truck near shore. They instituted a search for Miller and soon located the body of one of the children. A further search resulted in the finding of the other bodies.

Near Harper's Ferry the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was buried under a landslide. Passenger trains were detoured.

CUMBERLAND, Md., May 9.—Fear of a repetition of the disastrous flood of March 29, when the Potomac River and Wills Creek covered the business section of Cumberland, was dispelled today when the streams, after a rapid rise last night, began to recede slowly. The only damage here was to buildings on North Mechanic Street, where basements were flooded.

The Piedmont-Westernport temporary bridge, erected to replace the structure which was swept away during the March flood, was endangered today by debris. Men with poles were stationed on the bridge to keep the drift from lodging against the piers.

BREMERTON, Wash., May 9 (Associated Press).—Three United States Army planes flying around the world left Atka Island at 10:10 this morning for Attu Island, 530 miles to the southwestward, according to a radio dispatch received at the Puget Sound Navy Yard here.

Lieutenant Earl S. Tonkin and Sergeant Ivan O. Cooper were scheduled to leave San Francisco by air today for Seattle, where they are to embark on the coast guard cutter Bear, for Chignik, Alaska, to conduct a search for Major Frederick L. Martin, flight commander, and Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey, his mechanic, missing since April 30.

A light airplane is being crated at Seattle and an extra motor and other parts and supplies are to be shipped to Chignik, where searching headquarters will be established.

QUEENS COMMUTERS WIN TRANSIT FIGHT

MAYOR HYLAN IS PLEASED

Congratulates People of City, and Especially the 75,000 Directly Affected.

In a decision filed yesterday by the Transit Commission in the matter of the proposed curtailment of through train service on the Whitestone Division of the Long Island Railroad the protesting North Shore commuters feel that they have won a substantial victory.

The railroad proposed, beginning with its new schedule of May 14, to divert into and out of the Long Island City terminal, instead of the Pennsylvania station in Manhattan, ten trains daily and two additional trains on Saturdays, a total for the week of sixty-two trains, whose passengers would have been compelled to change at Woodside either to other Long Island Railroad trains or to those of the rapid transit Corona and Astoria extensions.

Under the commission's decision the railroad is permitted to divert only four trains daily, instead of ten. This means the re-scheduling of twenty-four trains a week instead of sixty-two.

This partial victory is awarded to the protesting communities of Flushing, College Point, Malba, Beechhurst and Whitestone after an extensive investigation covering several weeks, in which 775 pages of testimony were transcribed. The commission at the same time sounds a note of warning.

"The point must be stressed," says its report, "that while such cuts as these may be avoided or limited this year, or possibly next year or the year after, the situation is such that they cannot be avoided or substantially limited for long. Public attention must be focused on additional facilities and these facilities must be constructed and put into operation at the earliest possible time."

Transit Commission's Conclusion.

Announcing its conclusion, the Transit Commission said:

"In the light of all the testimony taken and of the experience the commission has had in supervising Long Island Railroad operation, its conclusion is that, while the cut proposed by the company on its Whitestone branch is too extreme, the public using other branches of the railroad are entitled to additional relief.

"The conclusions of the commission have been communicated to the officials of the Long Island Railroad Company, who will make the indicated changes in the timetable, effective May 14, 1924.

"The main reason advanced by the Long Island Railroad Company for withdrawing these trains from the Pennsylvania Station service was that the constantly increasing traffic on the Long Island Railroad, on the one hand, with the practically fixed limit of capacity in the East River tunnels and the Pennsylvania Station, on the other hand, resulted in a situation where some traffic had to be squeezed out, and, in the judgment of the officials of the company, the Whitestone Branch could best stand the cut.

"There is no doubt that an increasingly serious situation has resulted from the present saturation of the suburban terminals of the trunk lines entering New York City. To solve that problem adequately, provision must be had for extensive and far-reaching plans, such as those recently presented by the commission's consulting engineer for new commutation and suburban facilities within the city. The present facilities are more or less fixed, while the traffic is increased by leaps and bounds, and more and more passengers are being poured into already overcongested stations."

Mayor Hylan's Comment.

Mayor Hylan made the following comment upon the ruling by the Transit Commission:

"I congratulate the people of the city of New York and especially the more than 75,000 immediately affected, on the saving of some of their car service. We have seen the power of united action in this instance. If we continue in that same spirit of mind helpfulness the Long Island Railroad may be less likely to force its plea for an increase in all kinds of passenger rates of 20 to 40 per cent. on its various lines. We may also by unity of action be able to get more service with less suffering on all the transportation lines that ought to but do not provide us with what we pay for."

Morris Hotchner of 80 Maiden Lane counsel for the protesting commuters, said:

"It is a most gratifying victory. The figures speak for themselves. The Long Island Railroad proposed to take off ten trains daily and two extra on Saturdays, a total for the week of sixty-two trains. The decision permits them to take off only twenty-four. This means that we have a 62 per cent. victory. The figures are eloquent."

SAYS GERMANS SEEK ARMS.

PARIS, May 9.—The London correspondent of the Matin says he has learned that a German firm, with headquarters in Hamburg and Berlin, asked a well-known British arms manufacturer, name not given, to quote a price on 1,000,000 rifles equipped with bayonets and 1,000,000,000 cartridges, deliverable at a German port.

According to the text of the request, which the Matin publishes, the German firm said the arms and ammunition were meant for "a friendly Government, a member of the Entente."

The correspondent says the British manufacturer immediately informed the British Government and took no steps to fill the order.

Boy, 5, Is 'Brave Like Cops' When Trolley Crushes Foot

Because he wanted to be "brave" like his friends "the big cops," Charles Perez, 5-year-old son of Mrs. Grace Perez of 467 Liberty Avenue, East New York, allowed an ambulance surgeon to dress the crushed toes of his foot without a whimper after he had been injured by a Bergen Street trolley car yesterday afternoon.

The little fellow is a great favorite of the policemen of the Liberty Avenue Station, directly across the street from his home. Yesterday he was playing ball with other boys and the ball rolled on the car tracks. Charles tried to kick it off and a car passed over his right foot.

Patrolman John Vodatta carried him to the station and Lieutenant John Reilly called Dr. Snedecor of the Bradford Street Hospital. While the doctor ripped off the boy's shoe and put a temporary dressing on the injured toes, Charles endured the pain unflinchingly. Mrs. Perez collapsed at the sight of her son's injuries. The boy was taken to the Kings County Hospital, where the surgeons said the toes must be amputated.

SEEKS TO ABANDON QUEENS TROLLEYS

CONNOLLY SENDS PROTEST

Assessments of $339,000 Against Company for Street Improvements the Cause.

Brig. Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, receiver for the New York and Queens County Railway Company, asked permission of the Supreme Court in Long Island City late yesterday afternoon to suspend operations on the trolley lines of the company and to abandon its franchises.

The company provides trolley service between Manhattan and Flushing, Woodside, College Point and Jamaica. With only a few exceptions where the Queensboro subway may be reached, no other transportation facilities are conveniently available for the 40,000 passengers who now use the cars daily in going to their places of employment and returning to their homes.

The heavy burden which General Andrews says is imposed upon the company in consequence of street improvements to be made by the City of New York is responsible for its desire to suspend operations, according to the receiver. Improvements already authorized and to be made this year will suit in the assessment of $192,000 against the company for repaving its track areas, the receiver says in an affidavit filed with the court. He adds that other street improvements about to be authorized, and to be made this year, will place an additional burden of $147,000 on the shoulders of the company, making the total assessments against it for street improvement purposes $339,000.

This is more than one-half the receipts of the company in a year of operation, the receiver declares, and he contends that it will be impossible for the company to pay it and continue running its cars. Even now, the affidavit says, $100,000 is needed for the laying of new tracks that are necessary for the safety of passengers.

In the action begun by General Andrews the Transit Commission and the bondholders of the railway company are made parties. A notice of argument on the motion, made by Pushee Williams, attorney for the receiver, was made returnable in the Queens Supreme Court, Long Island City, next Wednesday.

When Borough President Maurice Connolly was informed of it he sent a hurried despatch to Mayor Hylan, urging that something be done to intervene in the interest of the people of Queens, and another to Corporation Counsel Nicholson, asking that he take whatever legal steps might be necessary to prevent the threatened suspension of service. As Borough President, Mr. Connolly said, he would employ his authority, pending action by the courts, to prevent any possible attempt to remove the tracks from the streets.

Mr. Connolly sent to George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, a message in which he said:

"I vigorously protest against such action and ask you to prevent the monstrous injustice. Hundreds of thousands of riders will suffer untold hardship with no relief. Such action upon such short notice and without your notice or consent and without the notice to and consent of the city authorities is outrageous and must be for some sinister purpose or ulterior motives, or this haste would not be necessary. I believe you have power to halt the receiver and to prevent this injustice, and I ask you to do so in the interest of thousands of the traveling public."

BOOTLEGGERS PROTEST 2.75 PER CENT. BEER

'Union' Solemnly Demands of Congress Protection as an Infant Industry.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Word reached Congress today that the "Bootleggers' Union," meeting in solemn convention on May 1 in New York, unanimously adopted resolutions protesting against modification of the Volstead act to legalize 2.75 per cent. beer.

A petition forwarded to Representative Griffin, Democrat, of New York, said that delegates from locals along the Atlantic coast attended the meeting and were convinced that "various ill-advised and misguided informers have initiated a vicious propaganda to break down the drastic and wholesome provisions of the Volstead act."

Declaring that the object of bills to legalize beer have the "avowed object of encouraging the consumption of the so-called light drinks," to the detriment of whisky and other alcoholic beverages," the petition said enactment of such legislation would "undermine and perhaps utterly destroy an important industry which this union, with its affiliated locals, has painstakingly built up at great risk of an immense capital, not to speak of the risk of personal liberty, many of our members having incurred jail sentences and the confiscation of their personal property in the pursuit of their chosen calling."

It has been the settled policy of the Government to encourage and protect infant industries, the petition said, adding that the bootlegging industry had shown sufficient evidences of vitality to fall within this category and consequently should be entitled to the protection and support of the Government.

Mr. Griffin filed the petition with the House and it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which handles prohibition legislation.

HYLANISM NEAR END, WALLSTEIN ASSERTS

Says City Gets Noise and Bluster Instead of Efficiency and Service.

CONDEMNS WHOLE RECORD

An attack upon the present city administration by Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel to the Citizens Union, entitled "The Truth about Hylanism" at the Lenox Hill Republican Club, 1,634 Lexington Avenue, last night inaugurated a policy of education regarding municipal affairs which will be a weekly feature of the club.

Mr. Wallstein did not mince words in describing present administration policies. He accused Mayor Hylan of substituting "personal politics, noise and bluster" for efficiency and service and denounced the Mayor's handling of practically every city department. He was loudly cheered when he declared that "the end of Hylanism appears to be soon in sight." Next Wednesday night another speaker will discuss phases of the Hylan administration in detail, Mr. Wallstein said in part:

"Those who have kept themselves informed as to the conduct of the City Government under Mayor Hylan have long realized what the general public is daily appreciating more clearly, namely, that we are afflicted with a city administration which substitutes personal politics, noise and bluster for efficiency and service, which insults the public intelligence by cheap buncombe and faking protestations of devotion to the public interests, which attempts to cover its stupidity, its blundering and its corruption by indiscriminate vituperation against all but its satellites, its sycophants and its favorites and which trusts to public indifference and blindness to keep it in power.

"The transit needs of the people, to an administration of conscience, would be a constant cry for help, to be heeded at the earliest possible moment. This appeal Mayor Hylan has persistently ignored. He prolongs the public suffering with malice aforethought for the deliberate purpose of turning it to his own political advantage. While the people plead for more subways, Mayor Hylan gives them nothing but endless, tiresome screeds, repetitious, hair-splitting prattle about the 'traction interests.'

Says Buses Give City Nothing.

"His only action on the transit problem has been unlawfully to grant privileges for the operation of buses to those basking in political favor, obtained by a rake-off from the profits, while no single cent is paid into the city treasury.

"The Police Department under Mayor Hylan has been a breeding place of favoritism and inefficiency.

"Favored individuals in the department have been promoted without warrant of law and other favorites have been granted pensions, which were denied to those who were not 'in right' with Enright. Officers shown to be allied with bootleggers continue as members of the force. Transfers and appointments have been dictated from the Mayor's office. Nearly 200 police officers spend their time playing music and singing, while a host of others are assigned to soft berths in 'raided premises,' from which every now and then they are mysteriously withdrawn. Meantime, sensational and spectacular robberies and burglaries in broad daylight continue unabated. While the department every day gives evidence of its demoralization, the Commissioner, apes the Mayor in vituperation of those who dare to say the truth.

"The children of the city are entitled to the best educational advantages which can be given by a competent and a non-political administration of the schools, an administration which at the least provides adequate facilities for the school population. But Mayor Hylan has provided, instead, a Board of Education composed, with a single exception, of rubber-stamp mediocrities. He drives qualified educators out of the service, because they refuse to prostitute their official power to petty partisan and patronage purposes.

Cites Taxpayers' Burden.

"The city's finances, the Hylan Administration has brought to a sorry pass and the taxpayers' burden it has aggravated to the breaking point. The budget for this year, which totals $376,000,000, is $138,000,000, or 58 per cent., more than that for 1918, which was the last budget prepared by the Mitchel Administration.

"Notwithstanding an increase of over $3,000,000,000 in tax valuations, the tax rate has risen from 2.40 in 1918 to 2.74 in 1924 and in 1921 it was 2.82. Notwithstanding that the increased realty assessments since the beginning of the Hylan régime have resulted in an increase of $300,000,000 in the city's borrowing capacity, in additions to the gains from redemptions during the same period, Mayor Hylan is agitating for a constitutional amendment which will permit still more borrowing. While the nation and the State are bending every effort to reduce taxation, Mayor Hylan spends his time devising new schemes for increasing the load of city taxes. His latest plan involving an increased cost of $15,000,000 per year for interest and amortization, notwithstanding the fact that the tax cost of the city debt today under existing constitutional safeguards is higher than ever before.

Ex-State Senator Schuyler M. Meyer, an official of the club, in discussing the policy of holding weekly educational meetings, said:

"These meetings, although held under the auspices of the Lenox Hill Republican Club, will really be non-partisan. We have reached the conclusion that the time to tell the truth about Mayor Hylan and his policies is now and not during a Mayoralty election. This will be a campaign of education regarding municipal affairs and prominent speakers will tell the taxpayers just what is going on. The speaker next week will probably tell some interesting things about the city's school system under Hylan. Other speakers later on will take up such subjects as Port Authority and transit. It is time the people are informed about what is going on."

TO ELECTRIFY BABYLON LINE

Actual construction work on the electrification of the Jamaica to Babylon line of the Long Island Railroad will be started within the next few weeks. This word was given out along with a statement that a contract for $700,000 of new equipment which will be used to install six substations along the route had been awarded to the Westinghouse Electric Company.

Contracts for the long ties to support the third rail were awarded some time ago, and word has been received by the company, it was stated yesterday, that the first shipment of these is now en route from Florida. The twenty-six miles of third rail which is to be used by the company as a part of the installation will be rolled by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, starting next week. Delivery on this is expected by the first of June, and the engineers of the Long Island Railroad anticipate putting down some of the new rail before the end of the month.

Delivery of the electric equipment from the Westinghouse Electric Company will be made in November and will be used to complete the construction. Power for the operation of the equipment over the Jamaica-Babylon line will be obtained from the central power house of the Long Island Railroad Company.

Soviet May Day Train Wrecked, Many Killed; Red Press Concealed Accident, Called a Plot

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, May 9.—A very serious railway accident occurred about 100 miles from Odessa on May 2, when a brand-new Russian train was derailed during its maiden trip, and six passenger coaches rolled down an embankment, together with the luggage car and the engine.

The first trip had been arranged to coincide with the May Day celebrations and the train was known as the "May Day Train." The engine was surmounted by a huge portrait of Lenin haranguing a great crowd, and bore inscriptions dedicating the train to Lenin, "whose spirit lives though his body is dead."

The six coaches, the van and the engine were all shattered to bits at the bottom of the embankment and many people were killed. The actual number of victims is not known because the Soviet press did not publish reports of the disaster lest they should cloud the celebrations and spoil the impression of enthusiastic spontaneity throughout Soviet Russia, as there is suspicion of foul play.

I have talked with some of the passengers who traveled in the train and escaped with bruises. They say the disaster is generally regarded as the result of a deliberate attempt for political motives to wreck the train, which contained important delegates from Moscow. The tracks are said to show signs of having been tampered with, and a powerful wrench was found near by.

RAILROADS AID PLAN TO END TRAFFIC JAM

Four Presidents of trunk line railroads entering New York, including Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, with a large number of other high officials of carriers whose suburban business brings them within the scope of the proposed $700,000,000 metropolitan system for the distribution of the commuter traffic, conferred yesterday with the Transit Commission on the plans of Daniel G. Turner, consulting engineer to the commission.

In addition to Mr. Rea, there were present representing the Pennsylvania system A. J. County, Vice President; W. H. Wood, General Superintendent, and L. E. Dale and E. B. Temple of the engineering staff.

Chairman George McAneny of the Transit Commission, who presided, announced at the conclusion of the meeting that, as in the case of the meeting on Thursday of the representatives of the various regulatory and administrative authorities within the metropolitan district, there was practically unanimous agreement upon the urgent need for a start in developing a comprehensive and independent plan for future suburban service.

Provision was made for the appointment of a committee to represent both the executive and engineering organizations of the several railroads concerned. This committee, it is expected, will work in conference with the committee representing the public authorities, for which provision was made at the meeting on Thursday.

Mayor Hylan, presumably because counsel and officers of the New York Port Authority were conspicuous in the Thursday conference with the Transit Commission and representatives of cities and towns of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, addressed the following warning to the Corporation Counsel:

City of New York.

Dear Sir:

This morning's newspapers point out that Julius Henry Cohen and his Port Authority League of New Jersey have banded together with the Transit Commission. With the Public Utilities Commissioners of New Jersey they have formed a triumvirate to run the transit and the people and to grab the streets and the property of the City of New York.

Commissioner Delaney recently stated before the Board of Estimate that the Transit Commission has set out in real earnest to increase the fares from 5 to 8 or 10 cents. I stated at the Port Authority hearing in Albany last Monday that the foreign Port Authority would set out in real earnest to take everything in sight. A man with half an eye can now see that the dangers we pointed out were desperately real.

The present situation does not mean that we must submit weakly to a legislative overthrow of dictatorship. We are required by our oaths of office to fight such an overiordship to the last ditch. The rights, the privileges and the property of the people of the City of New York must be protected, whatever the cost.

Therefore, get in touch at once with every municipal department, instructing each head to watch carefully the first move that the new coalition makes to seize the streets or property of the city or to interfere in any manner by seizure of records or otherwise with the functioning of municipal service; and if such attempt be made promptly to notify your office. Then let the department protest every inch of the way, carrying the battle to the United States Courts if necessary.

The robbery of the public domain in this city by railroad and corporate interests and landed barons of New Jersey is not going to take place as the exploitation of the people's property has been permitted to take place in national circles.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN,
Mayor.

Colgate President, Who Was Driving With Raymond Fosdick, May Go to Jail if Convicted.

UTICA, N. Y., May 9.—Dr. George B. Cutten, President of Colgate University, charged with driving his automobile forty miles an hour, pleaded not guilty to the charge here today and demanded trial.

If convicted, according to the rules of the Court, Dr. Cutten will be obliged to serve a jail sentence of from one to five days.

Dr. Cutten had barely entered the city limits when arrested by motorcycle officers. He had as a passenger Raymond B. Fosdick, former Under-Secretary General for the League of Nations, who spoke at Colgate University Thursday. Dr. Cutten explained to the Court that he was passing other cars in an effort to get Dr. Fosdick to the train and had no intention of breaking city speed laws.

OPEN WAY TO TRADE NEAR MORGAN HOME

Murray Hill Association Contends, However, That Vote of Estimate Board Is Invalid.

The Board of Estimate adopted an amendment to the zoning regulations yesterday changing the west side of Madison Avenue, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Streets, from a residence to a business district.

This action was a victory for the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, executor and trustee of the estate of William Waldorf Astor, against J. P. Morgan and the Murray Hill Association in a fight that has lasted nearly ten years.

It was thought at first that yesterday's decision meant the end of the litigation between the Astor estate and the Morgan interests, and that it would be followed by the immediate erection of a modern business building by the Astor estate in place of the old-fashioned brownstone front dwellings that now line the west side of Madison Avenue from Thirty-fifth to Thirty-sixth Street, diagonally across the avenue from Mr. Morgan's home and library.

Edmund L. Baylies, counsel for the Murray Hill Association and the Flintlock Realty Corporation, asserted, however, that the action of the Board of Estimate was not valid, as it was 9 to 5 with two not voting, whereas a unanimous vote was required for the adoption of such an amendment.

The question of whether or not a unanimous vote was necessary was referred to George P. Nicholson, Corporation Counsel. Mr. Baylies said that he would submit a brief, and that if the Corporation Counsel decided against him he would apply to the courts for a writ of certiorari. He said there was no question that the action of the Board of Estimate was subject to review by the courts.

In the argument before the Board of Estimate yesterday Henry W. Taft, counsel for the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, said that if the Astor estate's petition was granted, the property would be improved with business buildings giving it an assessed valuation of $8,000,000, against $2,500,000 now.

The fight over the Madison Avenue property began several years before the death of Lord Astor in 1919 and since then has been carried on by his estate. Lord Astor wanted to increase the income from his land, while Mr. Morgan and other residents of the Murray Hill section desired to maintain that neighborhood as an exclusive residential and social centre.

ASTOR PUTS PADLOCK ON A FAMOUS CAFE

As Owner, He Causes Court to Close Gene Sennett's 'Criterion,' Sporting Rendezvous.

A Deputy United States Marshal snapped a padlock yesterday on the front door of the Criterion Restaurant, 335-389 East 149th Street, the Bronx, a nationally known sporting rendezvous.

Earlier in the day Judge Knox, in the Federal Court, signed a decree closing for four months the Wigwam, a restaurant at 755 Seventh Avenue, operated by Leonard's Ringside, Inc.

The closing of the Criterion was said to have been the first instance where the owner of property occupied by a café had sought an injunction. The order closing the place was signed by Judge Augustus N. Hand, in the Federal Court, on the application of Vincent Astor, the owner of the building. The restaurant was located in 149th Street, near Third Avenue, known as the "Hub," and one of the busiest spots in the Bronx. The coming of the Marshals and the departure of the guests brought a large crowd which witnessed the padlocking.

The Criterion was opened fourteen years ago by Billy Gibson, fight manager; the late Maurice Quinlan, a wine agent, and Gus Beiswenger, restaurateur. It had been under sublease for the last two years to Dave Bernstein and Gene Sennett, the exploiters of "Battling" Siki. The lease would have expired in November.

Sport cartoons, autographed photographs and oil paintings of past and present-day stars of the prize ring hung on the walls. It was to the Criterion that Jess Willard, then little known, came one day from Wichita, Kan. He lived there and slept in Billy Gibson's room until his chance came and he was matched as a "White Hope" against Jack Johnson. They fought at Havana and Willard won the championship. Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion, came to the Criterion as a comparatively unknown from San Francisco. There came Benny Leonard.

This statement was issued by a representative of Vincent Astor:

"Dispossess proceedings were instituted last March by Abel I. Smith, representing Mr. Astor, but it was found that it would take seven months to get a decision in the Municipal Court. Mr. Astor's attorneys appealed to the United States District Attorney's office and, with the hearty cooperation of Lyman Ward, Assistant United States District Attorney, Mr. Astor's efforts to prevent any further possible violation of the Prohibition law on his property has been successfully carried through. The order padlocking the premises was entered in the United States District Court, Southern District, today."

The present holders of the lease plan, it was said, to seek legal advice in the hope of keeping the place open until the lease expires in November.

In his opinion that Leonard's Ringside Restaurant, now known as the Wigwam, was a nuisance and should be closed for four months, Judge Knox commented that from the viewpoint of the spectators cabaret performances were more interesting when liquor was served.

LEGION POSTS RAP CONDUCT OF CAMP

STATE COMMANDER IS HIT

Resolution Asks That Funds From Bonus Assignments Be Kept In Special Account.

Criticism of the conduct of the veterans' mountain camp at Tupper Lake, N. Y., was made yesterday at a meeting at the City Club of representatives of more than a dozen American Legion posts in and near New York City. Most of the speakers charged that unbusinesslike methods and a loose accounting system were used, and said it was impossible for those interested to find out what was going on in the camp.

After nearly three hours of discussion a resolution was unanimously adopted whose effect was a demand that the State Executive Committee put the money now being collected through assignment of bonus claims and the money soon to be collected through the poppy drive in a separate fund, "pending the next State convention or such prior reorganization of the system of accounting of the camp as may be made by the Executive Committee."

It was suggested that no alteration in the scheme of administration of the camp could be made until the next convention in September, but that an inquiry and reorganization would be pressed at that time.

In this connection Edward E. Spafford, State Commander of the Legion, came in for much criticism. Representatives of the City Club Post were incensed at Commander Spafford's charge on Thursday that they had "lied" about the camp.

Attacks Legion in Politics.

"We have allowed the American Legion to get away from the principles on which it was founded," said Edward J. Robins, Commander of 320 Ammunition Train Post. "I suppose some one will want to indict me for what I say, but we have allowed the Legion to be devoted to politics and ideas of personal aggrandizement.

"If those of us who are here constitute ourselves as a nucleus to restore the Legion to its original function of unselfish patriotic service, if we will clean house at our coming State convention and put in a competent, real organization to promote the principles for which we really ought to stand, then I imagine that a thing like the correction of the evils that exist at the Veterans' Mountain Camp will be comparatively easy of accomplishment."

The bonus entered the discussion many times. Most of the speakers expressed the opinion that assignment of bonus claims was a proper way of raising money for the camp, but that camp officials should not be allowed to handle the money until there was a correction of accounting methods.

Dr. Samuel Lloyd Praised.

"We cannot preserve our self-respect," said Richard M. Jessup, Commander of the City Club Post, "and ask the public to contribute to the Poppy Drive, when we must admit there is a deficit and admit that we do not know, and cannot find out, what it is. This business of the State Commander's saying that everything is all right is all bunk."

The speakers reiterated several times that they had no charges or suspicions of wrongdoing to make against any of the officials of the camp. They praised Dr. Samuel Lloyd, President of the camp corporation, but they were a unit in condemning the camp's business administration.

The basis of the meeting was a report by City Club Post that told of investigations by a committee. The report was submitted to Dr. Lloyd, it was said, and he had stated it was correct. It was then referred to the County Committee, and at the suggestion of the County Commander made public yesterday.

Commander Jessup said this procedure disposed of State Commander Spafford's charge that the post had "lied," because both Dr. Lloyd and the County Committee had had opportunity to correct the facts if there were any corrections to be made.

Tells of Transferred Funds.

The report says that money subscribed for "lean-tos" for patients, for which the City Club Post subscribed more than $250, was transferred to the general account except for $100 for each structure. This was done, the committee says Dr. Lloyd told them, before he became President, and he "attempted the correction of this misappropriation by means of securing the consent of the subscribers."

The report then goes into figures of the camp's general finances and operation. It says that "the statements furnished were statements of receipts and disbursements only. No others were available. These statements did not convey a true idea of the camp's finances." The total net cash liability, "in so far as our committee could ascertain," the report says, was $71,08.

"Our committee could not learn of any definite or established source of revenue from which the costs of operation could be met," the report continues. "Dr. Lloyd stated that the burden of securing operating funds devolved almost wholly upon him and others, not Legion members, who have interested themselves in the venture. As stated above, there has been no reliability of stated and regular receipts from these sources, and is not now.

"No operating cost figures had been compiled at the time of our committee's report. No figures of cost or property maintenance existed and no precise estimates were found for the new work and betterments to old that were sought.

"Dr. Cosgrove's report (the director) shows a total disbursement according to his records of $44,000 for 1923. He also reports a total of 4,630 person-days of hospital treatment. These figures indicate a cost per patient per day of over $9.60. Various figures are stated by Dr. Lloyd and others, ranging from $7 to $8.50 per patient day, but all such lack verification from the records."

Dr. Lloyd, when asked last night to comment on the charges, said:

"This is a tempest in a teapot. They haven't a thing to pin their statements on. Moreover, the executive committee cannot do anything about the camp because it is an incorporated body with independent management, having its own board of directors, elected, it is true, at the annual convention, but not under the control of the executive committee.

"As to the charge that there is no audit of the books or not a proper accounting system, I cannot say too strongly that that is false. The books are audited by C. F. McWhorter & Co., certified public accountants, every six months. The system of accounting is entirely in the hands of the same firm."

SACO CHILD IS KIDNAPPED.

SACO, Me., May 9.—Jean R. Thompson, 9 years old, was kidnapped from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, in this city, tonight, according to a report made to the police by the relatives.

The child was taken to Dover, N. H., in a taxicab by a woman and a man, and there, it was believed, the three boarded a train for New York.

The child was placed in custody of her grandparents when her parents, Roger Thompson of New York and Mrs. Dorothy Thompson of Michigan, were divorced.

According to the police, the man who engaged a taxicab at Biddeford today and who went to the Thompson home in this city with a woman companion to take the little girl handed the driver a card with the name "Albert C. Doyle, attorney-at-law, Detroit, Michigan."

All Aliens in State Prisons To Be Deported When Freed

The foreign-born criminals in prisons in New York State who cannot prove that they have been naturalized will face deportation as soon as their present sentences expire, according to Matthew B. Couch, an Inspector of the United States Immigration Service.

Inspector Couch went to Sing Sing Prison yesterday to check up the convicts there. The procedure of the immigration authorities will be to leave warrants with Warden Lewis E. Lawes for all persons who come under this ruling. They will then be returned to their native countries.

SIX ITALIANS HANG FOR SINGLE MURDER

Die in Pairs on the Gallows in Louisiana Jail—Two Have to Be Helped.

ONE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Actual Slaying Was Done by One, or at Most Two—Three Die In Chair in Kentucky.

AMITE, La., May 9 (Associated Press).—Six men, who three years ago attempted to rob a bank resulting in the murder of a man, went to their deaths at the end of the hangman's rope today in the Tangipahoa Parish Jail.

They were executed in pairs, the aged, cowled hangman running from the improvised platform immediately after each pair had dropped the ten feet to eternity, only to return after their bodies had been cut down to prepare the nooses for the next ones.

Six coffins were in a morgue at Hammond tonight awaiting the trains that would take the bodies to their final resting places.

The bodies of Andrea Lamantia, Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona will be shipped to Brooklyn, N. Y., and Joseph Rini's body will be taken to Chicago by his father, Natale Deamore will find rest in the cemetery at his home in New Orleans. Joseph Bocchio, the friendless boy, who had a liking for literature and music, and who wanted to be a priest, will escape the Potter's grave through a welfare organization which will bring his body to New Orleans.

Three of the men were 21 years old when the crime was committed. Four left widows and children. Two had served in the World War with the American forces.

The Italian Ambassador at Washington pleaded with Governor Parker for the lives of his countrymen, but his pleas, as well as those of thousands of Italian-Americans, went unheeded.

The men were hanged on the double gallows at thirty-minute intervals with clock-like regularity, four dying calmly, the other two, one as a result of an attempt at suicide and the other of nervous collapse, realized little of what was in progress. The executions began at noon.

Lamantia, while Leona and Deamore, the first pair to hang were swaying from the gallows and Rini and Giglio were waiting in the corridor of the jail preparatory to beginning their walk to the scaffold, took advantage of an instant when the turnkey had faced another direction to obtain a small pocket knife he had secreted and stabbed himself in the chest several times. All of the prisoners were searched last night for weapons and where Lamantia had concealed the knife no official could learn.

Rini and Giglio were returned to their cell and Lamantia was taken into the corridor for an examination by physicians. They pronounced the wounds superficial and those in charge of the execution sent Lamantia and Bocchio to the scaffold. Bocchio, because of his collapse as a result of failure to obtain a last minute reprieve, had to be carried up the steps. When placed on the trap he could hardly stand and a priest put his arm about his shoulder, keeping it there until he fell with the trap.

Lamantia with his shirt stained with blood from the self-inflicted wounds could not walk, would not stand and was seated in a chair on the trap and went to his death in that manner.

The authorities had expected trouble with Leona and Deamore, both of whom had shown indications of nervousness during the last two weeks, but they went to their deaths with firm steps. A few minutes before the prisoners left New Orleans Wednesday for Amite, Leona stabbed himself in the chest five times with a dirk.

The crime for which the six men paid the supreme penalty was committed on May 8, 1921. Dallas Calmes, a restaurant operator, was aroused by a noise at the rear of his home and upon investigating was shot down by a man dimly discernible in the darkness. The bandits, who had gone to Independence to rob the bank, boarded their automobile and fled. The authorities immediately summoned bloodhounds at Crystal Springs, Miss., and telephoned the New Orleans police.

Detectives at New Orleans, on a tip from Amite, before the fugitives were arrested, went to the home of a wealthy Italian resident of New Orleans, which it was believed might be a refuge for the bandits. The house was empty, but there was every indication it had been deserted hurriedly. Nearby, in an automobile, they found the bodies of Cipolla Gaeto and another Italian named Gil Giovanni, who had been shot to death apparently a few hours earlier. This mystery never was solved and Roy Leona, after his confession, said he and his companions knew nothing of that affair.

With the bloodhounds a posse followed a highway out of Independence and found the deserted car of the bandits. In the machine were pistols and a large quantity of ammunition and dynamite. The dogs followed a trail into a thicket and there the posse arrested Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Joseph Bocchio and Andrea Lamantia, Chicago, and Natale Deamore and Joseph Rini, New Orleans. Two other Italians were arrested as possible suspects later, but were exonerated.

Roy Leona, who was hanged in Amite, La., yesterday, wrote letters to his wife, Vera, at 103 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, in which he said he was innocent, but that, as he did not think tuberculosis would leave him a long time to live, he tried to take the blame for the murder to save his companions, according to a man found at Leona's address who declared he was Leona's brother-in-law. He said that his sister, Mrs. Vera Leona, had been kept ignorant of the news that her husband was to be executed yesterday. She is said to work in a factory and was away when the reporter called.

3 EXECUTED IN KENTUCKY.

Pay Penalty in the Electric Chair for Three Murders.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., May 9.—Kentucky's first triple execution in the electric chair was completed in Western State Penitentiary here early today when Frank Thomas, George Welck and Charles Miller, the latter a negro, paid the penalty of death for murder. They died in the order named.

The doomed men walked in turn from their cells to the death house to the chair with steady step. Only Thomas made a statement during the final moments. "Good night, I'm going home. I'm not a bit afraid, thank God," he said, as the black cap was adjusted.

The executions were completed in forty-six minutes.

Thomas, past seventy, and the oldest man ever executed in the state, was sentenced for the murder of Lee Artegunt, a friend and benefactor, in Jefferson County. Welck died for the murder of William Oelke, near Louisville, and Miller was convicted of the murder of two railroad guards in Breckinridge County. Thomas and Miller confessed, but Welck protested his innocence.

GILLETT WILL SEEK SEAT IN THE SENATE

HIS ACTION BIG SURPRISE

THREE NOW IN THE RACE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Republican political situation in Massachusetts has taken a new and interesting turn through the action today of Representative Frederick H. Gillett, Speaker of the House of Representatives, in announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Senator, to succeed David I. Walsh, Democrat, who will be a candidate for reelection. Speaker Gillett made the announcement after a conversation with President Coolidge this morning. It was a great surprise.

The announcement means the Speaker's retirement from the House of Representatives. Even if he fails to obtain the Senatorial nomination, a candidate of the Republican Party for the Second Massachusetts istrict, which Mr. Gillett represents, will have been nominated as his successor in the House.

This insures a contest over the Speakership in the next Congress, which will come into existence on March 4, 1925. After Mr. Gillett's announcement today, the only outstanding Republican spoken of as certain to be prominent in that contest, if the Republicans control the next House, is Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, the present floor leader of his party.

The contest for the nomination in the Massachusetts Republican primary has created considerable interest in national as well as State political circles. There have been veiled accusations that President Coolidge was taking a part in the preliminary skirmishing. These were based largely on the fact that William M. Butler, Republican National

CITY OPENS INQUIRY ON RABINER PAROLE

CHAIRMAN CRUGER EXPLAINS

Says He Recommended Setting Swindler Free on Promise to Repay Victim.

Mayor Hylan yesterday ordered Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield to begin an investigation of the release from the penitentiary of Jules C. Rabiner, a broker, after he had served only three months of an indeterminate sentence up to three years on a charge of appropriating to his own use $3,600 belonging to a customer. The action of the Mayor followed the belated announcement on Thursday that Rabiner, who formerly was head of J. C. Rabiner & Co., which failed for $450,000 in 1922, had been released by the Municipal Parole Board, appointed by the Mayor, on April 25 last.

Hirshfield, within a few minutes of the receipt of the Mayor's order, which directed that his findings in the investigation be sent to Mr. Hylan "without delay," obtained all the records in the case from Bertram de N. Cruger, Chairman of the Parole Board. Mr. Atlee, an investigator in Hirshfield's office, called on Mr. Cruger just as Rabiner appeared. Rabiner was not expected at the office. He had made his monthly personal report the day before to Thomas R. Minnick, the Executive Secretary of the board, but he explained that he had read comments on his release in the newspapers and asked Mr. Cruger's advice regarding what he should do.

He was turned over to Atlee, who questioned him for some time, and who later made a preliminary report to Hirshfield. Commissioner Hirshfield had said that he would "proceed as far as I can in this manner, realising I have been shorn of my subpoena powers" by District Attorney Banton, when informed of the Commissioner's statement, offered to aid him to the fullest extent in his investigation.

Parole Board Chairman Explains.

Mr. Cruger assumed full responsibility for Rabiner's release. He said he had made a personal investigation of the Rabiner case and that the Parole Board had acted on his recommendation after Judge McIntyre of General Sessions, who had sentenced Rabiner last January, had written his name in approval of the board's contemplated action on a habeas corpus writ for the purpose. He added that, while Rabiner still was under the jurisdiction of the board, it was not possible to send him back to the penitentiary unless he convicted broker violated the provisions of his parole.

Mr. Cruger then explained that Rabiner was released on the stipulation that he would repay, in monthly instalments of $100, the remainder of the $3,600 he stole from Thomas Millen, a customer of his firm, $1,100 of which he had returned before sentence was imposed by Judge McIntyre. Rabiner also had agreed to stay away from bucket-shops and bucketing operations. Mr. Cruger continued, and to violations that had been ordered to decline positions with two brokerage firms in the financial district which had been offered to him.

Mr. Cruger added, however, that if additional indictments in connection with the failure were returned by the Federal or county Grand Jury they would be construed by the board to mean that Rabiner had violated the provisions of his release, a warrant then would be lodged against Rabiner, and he automatically would be sent back to the penitentiary to avert his being released on bail.

The head of the Parole Board explained in a statement that Rabiner's release came about through the fact that the board had before it only the specific charge, to which the broker pleaded guilty before Judge McIntyre when it accepted the Chairman's recommendation that the early part of April that Rabiner be freed on parole at the expiration of three months of the indeterminate sentence.

Not Aware of Other Fraud Charges.

Neither he nor any other member of the board was aware, he said, of the accusations before Federal Referee Coffin that Rabiner's firm had defrauded customers out of upward of half a million. Nor did the board know that witnesses in the bankruptcy inquiry had accused Rabiner of being the tool of "Dandy Phil" Kastor, Dillon, ostensible head of Dillon & Co., a bankrupt brokerage firm, both fugitives, and others in connection with the failure of Rabiner & Co.

Mr. Cruger would not make a definite statement on the matter, but intimated that had such information been at the disposal of the board Rabiner might not have been freed from prison on such a short sentence. In the statement Mr. Cruger said:

"With the Parole Commission the question resolved itself into this: Was it better for him to be in prison for a long time, where he would be of no value to any one and a burden on the city, or should he be given an opportunity under the Parole law, which enables us to return him to prison at once should he fail to live up to the requirements imposed upon him to not only pay back the money which he has misappropriated but to be given the chance to rehabilitate himself and to continue to support those who are dependent upon him.

"One of the functions of the Parole Commission is to give those whom we believe capable of doing so an opportunity to make good. This case seems to us to come properly under this classification. During the eight years that has been functioning something over 70 per cent. of those committed to our jurisdiction have made good. We are not immune from mistakes, but in this particular instance it seems to us that we are justified in giving this man his chance. I personally accept the responsibility for making the recommendation in this case, which was approved by my colleagues."

Many Pleas for Clemency.

The Chairman said that he had received no communication from District Attorney Banton regarding the Rabiner case. He added, however, that he had received many letters urging clemency for Rabiner and none opposing it. He admitted that a Mrs. Watkins, who is Chairman of a committee of creditors of the bankrupt, and whose home is in Connecticut, had called at his office on the day Rabiner was freed and asked what disposition had been made of the broker's case by the board, but she did not protest against the release of the man.

He referred to letters exchanged between Judge McIntyre and Secretary Minnick of the board regarding the proposed action of the body in connection with Mr. Cruger's recommendation that the convicted broker be freed at the end of three months. He said that Rabiner's wife had stated that Judge McIntyre had promised to have her husband freed in sixty days, and Minnick included that in the communication to the Judge. Mr. Cruger said Judge McIntyre's letter repudiated that statement, and added: "Whatever the Parole Commission desires to recommend in this case will be satisfactory to me."

"I asked Rabiner about that statement," continued Mr. Cruger, "and he said that his wife was mistaken. Rabiner said that Judge McIntyre had made no such promise, but such a promise was made in the District Attorney's office."

Banton Denies Rabiner's Statement.

When District Attorney Banton was informed of Rabiner's statement he said: "That is a lie." The prosecutor said that he had not been informed of the contemplated action of the Parole Board in the Rabiner case, and added that the body never consults him about any case. He confirmed a statement by Mr. Cruger that he had written to the board on many occasions about cases, but said that usually occurred when a Judge who had imposed sentence had asked him to join in a request for a commutation of sentence when the Judge felt that the prisoner had been sufficiently punished. Mr. Banton called attention to the fact that in every case where the Governor has under consideration the pardon or commutation of a prisoner he requests the prosecutor for information about the case, as well as a recommendation. The law requires the prosecutor to furnish such information, he added, but does not require the Governor to ask for it.

When he was informed that Mr. Cruger had stated that the Parole Board would recommit Rabiner to the penitentiary in the event an indictment were returned against him, Mr. Banton said: "There are no additional charges pending here against Rabiner, but it is possible that, now that so much attention has been drawn to the small sentence he served, other victims of his firm might come forward with complaints. If they do, I shall give them immediate consideration.

"Rabiner is a clever fellow. We had to battle for his books in the Federal Court before we could get a case on which to obtain the indictment on which he pleaded guilty. Most of his victims were residents of other cities, and he was careful to try not to violate the law in this State. He has 'jollied' some of his victims with promises of restitution. Some of them in this city may wake up now and come forward with complaints."

GOMPERS CALLS FOR FUNDS.

Appeals on Behalf of Federation's Political Campaign Committee.

An appeal for funds, issued by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Federation's National Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee, was made public here yesterday.

"The success of the nonpartisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor in 1922 were so definite, notwithstanding the lack of funds, that there is great hope for the gains that can be made in the political campaigns for 1924," says the appeal. "If the organised wage earners of the United States desire that Congress shall be brought nearer to the people and that executive officers of our Government will fulfil their duties honestly and fearlessly, they must expect not only to make financial sacrifices but to vote against enemies of labor and for friends of labor.

"Less than $5,000 was contributed by the trade union movement in the 1922 campaign. But the results achieved were greater than in any year since an organised effort was made to carry out a nonpartisan political policy."

ANDERSON APPEAL FILED.

Decision in July Possible—His Term Expires Christmas Day.

The appeal papers in behalf of William H. Anderson, former State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, now serving a term in Sing Sing for third degree forgery, were filed with the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday. No date for the argument has been set as yet, but it was stated that Charles S. Whitman, counsel for Anderson, intends to ask a preference in the case which will permit a hearing before the Appellate Court adjourns for the Summer vacation, and in that event a decision will be handed down early in July.

Anderson's term with time off for good behavior, will end on Christmas Day. Unless his case receives a preference it is unlikely that it will be decided before that time.

The appeal papers consist of two printed volumes of 836 pages. The chief contention of the appeal is that Anderson did not intend to defraud the Anti-Saloon League or any one else, and did not do so. Objection is also made to the charge by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins concerning the testimony of Anderson regarding John T. King and Henry Mann.

WARFIELD APPLIES FOR EQUITY CARD

SOTHERN REPUDIATES IT

He and Julia Marlowe Wireless From Ship They Did Not Subscribe to Attack.

David Warfield, one of the most prominent members of the Actors' Fidelity League, resigned from that body yesterday and applied for membership in the Actors' Equity Association.

Mr. Warfield's action followed the unauthorized use of his name in connection with a statement sent out from the offices of Henry Miller on Wednesday attacking the Equity and the American Federation of Labor.

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, whose names were also affixed to the statement, were reached by a wireless message to the Aquitania, asking whether they had read the statement in question. Mr. Sothern replied as follows to the offices of Equity:

"Miss Marlowe's name and mine are used absolutely without our authority or consent. We have not expressed any opinions such as you quote in your telegram, nor used any phrase concerning Los Angeles or Hertin."

The following telegram was received from Ina Claire, in Chicago, in reply to a query from Equity: "Do not know to what you refer. If you send copy I shall be happy to answer you."

At a long meeting Thursday night between Equity officials and a committee from the Managers' Protective Association, all details of the proposed settlement were agreed upon, and only the formal consent of tomorrow's Equity mass meeting is now necessary. This consent, it is believed, is practically certain to be given. After which the Shubert group of managers will sign a new agreement with Equity, covering the next ten years.

FRANCIS WILSON PROTESTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That was a strong array of Fidelity names your paper published, even omitting those which were unwarrantly added, and have since gone into Equity.

There was not one who really signed that protest against the Actors' Equity Association who might not, in my judgment, have been about better things than subscribing to untruths.

Let us pass over the statement as to a "majority of managers being men of intelligence and integrity," and come to "not until comparatively recent years did we hear of abuses of contract and violations of decency."

Until Equity was formed there existed no adequate association to check these violations and inefficiency which raged, notwithstanding, in increasing numbers.

Let us come also to the statement that "in an hour of irritation and impatience (at acknowledged violations of contracts) Equity joined the American Federation of Labor," which is as far from the truth as a statement can be.

In the original contract of the managers with Equity, celebrated by a ratification dinner, not one single manager to that agreement lived up to its spirit or letter, not one.

Furthermore, on the published statement of the managers that they did not intend to live up to that agreement, Equity sought aid of the labor organization. And, again, furthermore, when Equity told the managers at the Claridge Hotel meeting that they could avert the entrance into the American Federation of Labor by granting the moderate demands of Equity for better working conditions, managers turned a deaf ear to Equity's appeal and thus speeded Equity into the American Federation of Labor.

Equity having nothing whatever to do with wage, great or small, is in an anomalous enough position there, but that is where managers put her.

And what a joke it is to have these Fidelity stars brand Equity as "an unreliable force" which is to be shunned.

Equity has never violated a single obligation since the first day of her existence. Has the "force" with which these Fidelity stars are so profitably associated so clean a record?

Equity has spent thousands of dollars for years bringing home compliance by strangers to managers. What have these Fidelity stars to say about the wonderful "force" to which they are allied in permitting such a thing?

One of the reasons Equity holds Equity Shop is because in suing money out of managers who strand companies it pays not only Equity actors but Fidelity actors. What have the Fidelity stars to say to that?

As to these stars' pride in principle, and their unwillingness to deal with Equity because it is "an unreliable force," the fairer their utterances will appear to the public eye.

Why are some of these people brave to come out with this and say that Equity has no booking offices, no theatres, and that therefore their desires and comfort and profit lie with managers who have booking offices, theatres and profit, and that it is a matter of complete indifference to them what becomes of the people of their profession who are less gifted, less fortunate than they?

It is wonderful, at this late day, too, to see these people wave that worn-out phrase "restriction of personal liberty," as if such a thing existed in any country which might at any hour draft any inhabitant as gun fodder. Personal liberty! Why, one cannot even cross a street as he pleases, and it is well he cannot.

Equity merits the respect of everybody because it deserves it. It has done nothing to violate public confidence or private regard. It has protected the weak and defenseless of its profession and given that profession a standing, a position of security and respect it has never before known.

Furthermore, it has put the fear of God in the heart of managers, but the best evidence of Equity's power and strength to continue this splendid course is that the most this goodly crowd of selfish Fidelity stars can do is to stand off impotently and make faces at it.

FRANCIS WILSON,
President Emeritus of Equity.

MILLER ABSOLVES FIDELITY.

Regrets the Unauthorized Use of Names in Recent Statement.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOSTON, Mass., May 9.—May I be allowed to reply to the censure and misrepresentation showered upon the Actors' Fidelity Association and myself in several New York newspapers today regarding a statement written by me and published yesterday with the unwarranted use of names subscribing thereto. In justice permit me to state the facts.

The Actors' Fidelity Association is in no way responsible and were not even aware that such a statement was under consideration. I wrote it at the request of certain men and women wishing to express their independent viewpoint relative to the unhappy conflict now raging in the theatre, several of whom are not Fidelity members.

My statement being approved it was planned to submit it to other actors and actresses hoping to secure their sanction and signature and then published by a paid advertisement, the only method by which we can hope to escape the distortion of any expression which is contrary to the Equity or placed shop.

Before leaving New York last Monday I gave Mr. Alger, my manager, a copy of the statement with emphatic instructions that no name was to be attached without full authorization. The publication of same would be considered later. My surprise was equaled only by my indignation when I saw in the news columns of certain New York newspapers the article accredited to Fidelity and the unpardonable use of unauthorized names. While I have no apology to offer desire the offense. As for my expressions regarding the prevailing conditions of the Equity concerning closed shop, I have nothing to add or retract.

It has been collected in the United States for the Palestine Foundation Fund campaign, for which will not be concluded before May 27, when there is to be a meeting in Carnegie Hall to be addressed by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland.

A lantern festival was held last night at the West Side Branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, Tenth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, to earn $300 for the branch's pledges in the drive for funds to be used in the association's industrial work in China. The building from cellar to roof was decorated in the Oriental fashion. Chinese lanterns swayed above the swimming pool, changing it to the "Valley River," where bathers dove for "pearls" and "coral" treasures. The entertainment will be repeated tonight.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

An audience that packed Carnegie Hall last night had the rare opportunity of listening to Ignace Paderewski, pianist, with Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, and Felix Salmond, 'cellist, in ensemble performance. The occasion was the last concert of the Artists' Series of the Association of Music School Settlements, for which these musicians gave their services. Following the opening performance of the Beethoven Trio in B flat, opus 97, each of the three contributed groups of solos.

It is well known that Mr. Paderewski seldom plays with other musicians in public. From this fact it has often been inferred that his musical conceptions are those of a virtuoso and an unbridled individualist in interpretation. If there were present last night listeners who held these opinions, they must have been quick to relinquish them. This was not, most fortunately, a performance in which any single figure predominated. It was a meeting of three distinguished interpreters who placed all their talent and knowledge at the service of a creative master, and in presenting his message thought as one.

There followed compositions of entertaining if not too ever-important character played by Mr. Salmond with the finish and tonal qualities which give him so high a place in his art—an adagio from Nardini, Piatnelli's Villanelle and Benedikt's Vivace, with Frank Sheridan as accompanist; then the Beethoven Romances, the Beethoven-Kreisler Rondino and the Haydn-Auer Vivace, performed in admirable spirit and style by Mr. Zimbalist and finally a group by Mr. Paderewski, including the Schubert B flat Impromptu, the Liszt transcriptions of "Gnam, Mark, the Lark" and the "Soiree de Vienne"; six etudes, the A flat Mazurka, opus 59, and the C sharp minor Scherzo of Chopin.

These compositions were played with melting beauty of tone or in the grand manner, as the case required, while the enthusiasm of the audience increased and the final part of the concert became in effect a Paderewski recital, with the accompanying demonstrations. In the foyer was displayed the portrait bust of Paderewski "the Statesman," by Malvina Hoffman. A note in the program stated that it is proposed to place this sculpture on exhibition in some prominent public building "until a fitting musical or art centre be created, where in years to come it may embody the loving esteem for the great patriot and artist who for so long had brought to this generation joy and inspiration."

At a special matinee at the Sam Harris Theatre yesterday afternoon Roshanara, Gavrilos, Ratan Devi and Mrs. Monroe Robinson offered a program of wide diversity and interest. Roshanara and Ratan Devi repeated some of the numbers which have established them in the favor of the public and added others, delightful reproductions of Hindu art. "At the Well," the Punjabi silk dance and the classic Hindu nautch revealed anew how minutely Roshanara has studied the traditional movements and interpretations. Of another hemisphere and epoch were the dances of Gavrilos. Graceful as a trained athlete, he imparted ideas as well as impressions in his "Polichinelle" and "Man in the Top Hat." Mrs. Monroe Robinson made a striking figure in her "Russian dance." The "Dance Tartar" was another hit of the afternoon.

NEW B. M. T. LOOP LINE.

A loop express service from Franklin Avenue and Fulton Street, Brooklyn, to Chambers Street, Manhattan, via the Brighton Beach and Sea Beach lines and the Fourth Avenue subway, will be started today, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn-Manhattan Rapid Transit Corporation. This service is to be operated during the Summer season on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays to care for the heavy Summer traffic to and from the beaches.

Subway cars will be operated in the regular passenger service between Prospect Park and Fulton Street and Franklin Avenue for the first time this afternoon. The trains in the loop service will use the express tracks on the Brighton Beach and Sea Beach lines and Fourth Avenue subway. They will make all the regular express station stops on the Brighton Beach line and Fourth Avenue subway, but on the Sea Beach line will make no station stops between Coney Island and Forty-ninth Street. Passengers on the Brighton Beach line trains from Franklin Avenue will use the West Eighth Street station at Coney Island on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 5 P. M. to 10 P. M., so as to avoid congestion at the Stillwell Avenue terminal.

CLEARS UNION CARBIDE.

Federal Court in Baltimore Halts Suit on Anti-Trust Law Charges.

BALTIMORE, May 9.—The so-called "carbide case," which has occupied the time of the United States District Court for five weeks, came to an abrupt ending today when Judge Morris A. Soper took the case away from the jury by directing it to return a verdict for the defense.

The suit was brought by the Alexander Milburn Company of this city against the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation of New York, six alleged affiliated companies and the Davis-Bournonville Company, New York, for $2,250,000 damages for alleged conspiracy to violate anti-trust laws. After reviewing the testimony, the Court said:

"The inevitable conclusions from a recital of the testimony is that the plaintiff failed in both branches of the conspiracy charged. The evidence not only failed to establish an agreement between the defendants for the allotment of Government business to one defendant and the railroad business to the other party to the conspiracy, but the evidence affirmatively shows that each of the parties to the alleged conspiracy actively and energetically endeavored to secure business in the field forbidden to it under the terms of the alleged combination. It is difficult to resist the conclusion that the plaintiff has availed itself of the wide latitude which the character of its complaint afforded to make reckless charges which it had no sufficient evidence to sustain."

Counsel for the Milburn company announced that the case will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va. The grounds for the appeal will be, he said, that Judge Soper excluded certain evidence which, counsel contended, should have been admitted.

DENIES LAND SALE DEAL.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., May 9.—The $25,000 paid by the Donnell Lumber Company to "certain individuals" when the former State Highway Commission purchased land from that company for use as approaches to the proposed bridge across the Raritan River, which sale was later declared void in the State courts, was paid for other favors and had nothing to do with that," Salem Alonzo McDowell, President of the lumber firm, testified today at the hearing before the Condemnation Commission.

The new Road-Board instituted condemnation proceedings to acquire the land after the first sale had been annulled. When asked as to the value of the land involved, Mr. McDowell replied, $300,000. The consideration in the first sale was $230,000, which the State charged was excessive.

Refuses to Free Boston Broker.

BOSTON, May 9.—Judge Morton, after a hearing in the Federal District Court today, refused to release from jail James S. Lamont, President of the closed brokerage firm of G. F. Redmond Company, Inc. He has been in jail for some time for contempt in failing to turn over certain of the company's books to the receivers. The metal frames dug up from Lamont's Natick estate yesterday, which he testified were all that was left after he had burned the books, were produced in court. Judge Morton said that he regarded Lamont's story of the burning "with suspicion."

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., May 9.—Motion pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons prizefight were seized at a theatre here by Agent Sticken of the Department of Justice in Denver, after the first showing of the film yesterday in violation of the Interstate Shipment act relating to pictures of prizefights.

METHODISTS GRANT WOMEN ORDINATION

BARRED FROM ITINERANCY

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 9.—The Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church voted today to permit women to be ordained as local preachers. It voted against letting women become full-fledged ministers with membership in the annual conference.

The issue, which was warmly debated yesterday, was even more heatedly discussed today.

Four years ago at Des Moines it was voted to license women to preach. It was freely predicted today that the next General Conference would admit women to the annual local conferences. It is membership in a conference which gives a Methodist preacher his right to an appointment each year.

The resolution which finally passed today was offered by the special commission on licensing and ordaining women. It unanimously recommended "that the general conference enact such measures as shall provide for the ordination of women as local preachers, under the conditions and satisfactory to the requirements which the discipline has determined and maintains for ordained local preachers."

The substitute resolution, which was voted down, promised "that the women be granted the same ministerial right as are granted to the men." This was offered by the Rev. Dr. Ray Allen of Rochester, N. Y.

Pleads For Women For India.

"I speak from personal experience," said Miss Gabrielson. "If you could see my Indian sisters in the village cringe when a man's hand is placed on their head in baptism you would realize how necessary it is to have women preachers.

"They cringe in the same way when a man's hand gives them the sacrament of the Holy Communion. My hand is not clean enough or pure enough to administer the sacraments."

The Rev. Dr. William E. Shaw of Peoria, Ill., pointed out that two out of the seven members of the commission were women.

"The commission feels this is not the time to receive women into the annual conferences," said Dr. Shaw. "We know the women of Methodism. There is involved the whole question of motherhood and marriage. I am sure that this morning, when you looked into the face of the mother of Bishop Fisher, you realized this. The glory of motherhood can never be outdistanced by the mere privilege of belonging to an annual conference."

Urges Fairness to Women.

"Be fair to the women, brethren," pleaded the Rev. Dr. Allen. "They have had a long struggle through the centuries. If eventually we are going to give them full rights with the men, as has been said on this platform, why not now?

"No local conference has to admit an applicant if it does not want to. If any one applies you don't want, you do not have to receive such an one. All we ask now is that you do now what will come sooner or later."

The Rev. Dr. John N. Dryden of Nebraska caused a smile when he remarked that "the outstanding feature of the report of our commission was that it damned the women with faint praise."

The Rev. Dr. George H. McClung of Kankakee, Ill., said he questioned seriously "whether God had meant women to preach and to assume the strain of the pastorate in all its relationships."

"I believe that the women who want to be ordained are fully worthy of ordination. If admitted to full membership perhaps they will be sent to the small, hard charges to which none of the brethren want to go," said Mrs. Mary Martin Northrop of California. "I do not believe the time is ripe for the ordination of women and their admission into annual conferences."

Daniels Commends Unification.

A telegram was read from Josephus Daniels, formerly Secretary of the Navy and an active member of the Southern Methodist Church, which said of the vote for the unification of the two bodies:

"I hope you will not feel that I am intruding to express the earnest hope that our branch of Methodism will heartily and cordially and promptly join the Northern brethren in a unified Methodism. I have been privileged to visit all parts of the country, and my judgment is that the overwhelming majority of lay delegates and the larger part of the ministers feel that the time has come for unification.'"

A telegram was read from Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, saying:

"Your delegates rendered conscious aid in hearing before Judiciary Committee. The filth-in-the beer bills will die, the Constitution will live and we will finish the fight with your continued help."

Bishop Leonard of San Francisco reported for the committee which went to Washington to fight against modification of the prohibition laws. He told of the arguments before the Judiciary Committee, and of the presentation to President Coolidge of the conference's letter regarding Japanese immigration.

John Ann Wee, of Peking, asked the support of the Conference for a great memorial it is proposed to erect there to Bishop John W. Bashford.

A greeting to the Conference and best wishes for its success from Mrs. Warren G. Harding were presented by the Rev. Dr. Elmer E. Smith, of Ada, Ohio.

The Committee on the Episcopacy decided today to recommend that the General Conference retire Bishops Stuntz and Quayle from active duties. Both are suffering from ill health and have asked to be retired from work.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday fell to the smallest total of any full day this year and, except for one day last October, the smallest since the middle of August. The 457,000 shares dealt in yesterday and the 479,000 the day before compare with "million-share days" as lately as the middle of April; they show how completely the spirit of speculation has disappeared. In the day's idle market, prices as a rule went slightly lower; but the changes were again mostly small fractions and advances or declines of any larger scope were isolated. The money market reflected this speculative idleness; not only did Stock Exchange call money hold at the 3½ per cent. rate, but four-months loans went at 4 per cent. for the first time in two years.

Francs gave further evidence that the powers in control of the market were holding the price pretty rigidly to the 6-cent level. It declined to 5.86½ advanced to 6.01⅛ and ended at 5.98⅛. This policy, if sustained, will presumably have the result of checking the downward reaction of French commodity prices. It should be observed that it is not so much the fact of lower prices which has been complained of by French merchants as the suddenness and rapidity of the shift to the lower level, with its consequent derangement of business undertakings. French prices are already much below the year's earlier average, but the March average was equally far above the level at the close of 1923. Since the present level is closely in line with that of last November, it may be said that the artificial rise due to the falling franc has been corrected by the subsequent recovery, and that the position is now what it was before the "bear speculators" had their innings.

The only market to move with any emphasis yesterday was cotton, in which a rise of nearly 1¼ cents brought the spot price to the neighborhood of 31¾ cents per pound, the highest since the middle of February. It can hardly be doubted that the attitude of the British spinners caused this rise. The week-end Liverpool report shows England's stock of cotton down 40,000 bales from a fortnight ago and 230,000 bales from the high point of the year, the last-named decrease being more than 20 per cent. Since England has lately been increasing its imports of American cotton, the decline will presumably be checked and another pause in the British buying on our cotton market will follow. These alternations of market strategy have determined the recent fluctuations of cotton above or below the 30-cent price. How far they will control the market toward the end of the season may depend on the scope of reduction in activities of the home spinning trade.

All of the week-end mercantile reviews testify to the peculiar character of the business situation. Evidences of slackening activity "have come more clearly into view this week than at any previous time since last Summer"; yet, notwithstanding the apparently great caution of buyers, "there is still a big business in the aggregate." As against the current reports of diminished trade, exchange of bank checks in the country as a whole shows distinct increase and is the largest on record for the period, while mail-order and "chain-store" sales, which are reported definitely, exceed those of the Spring of 1923. That production had gone ahead too fast is now quite unanimously admitted. Adjustment of such inequality as existed is now in progress. This leaves the questions open whether supply may not presently be down to the level of demand, or on the other hand whether increased unemployment, through reduction of working forces, may not cause shrinkage in demand to follow shrinkage in supply.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1924.

Rate for Stock Exchange call loans finished the week as it started, at 3½ per cent. For a period of like firmness and unchanged quotation record goes back to Jan. 18, when for ten days demand funds loaned at 4 per cent. When a fair amount of four months' money was placed at 4 per cent, it was a feat unequaled since April, 1922. Dealers quoted short-date accommodation at 3¾@4, with five-six months' at 4¼. Very little actual business, aside from the four months' money at 4, was done, however.

Gold bullion 4d up at 94s 7d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a London price of 111¼. Highest for the year to date, 115 1-8, on Jan. 21; lowest, 110⅜, April 22. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149¾, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102¾, on Feb. 21, 1923.

TRADE DECLINING, REVIEWS ASSERT

Curtailment of Demand Chiefly Due to Politics and Weather, Dun's Says.

The reviews of business, compiled by the commercial agencies, emphasize the fact that irregularity continues and that contraction is the rule in practically all lines. Dun's Review says:

"The course of prices and records of production confirm the reports of reduced business activity in most quarters. A net decline of only 3 per cent. in wholesale prices this year marks a moderate readjustment, but it reflects a curtailment of demand that has resulted chiefly from political conditions and weather handicaps. The retarded retail distribution of seasonable goods, due to the backward Spring, has already forced special sales in certain instances, and the probable effect on consumption of the increasing unemployment of workers at different manufacturing centres is entering more largely into calculations.

"A recent rapid fall of pig iron and steel output has shown that new orders have decreased sharply, textile mill operations continue much below capacity for the same reason and the percentage of idle machinery has risen in various other industries. The adjustment of production may later bring about a reversal of the downward trend of markets, but purchasing has been so conservative that the average of prices has reached the lowest level in a year and a half, with declines predominating in Dun's list during each of the last ten weeks."

Bradstreet's summary says:

"Evidences of trade and industrial recession seem to have come more clearly to view this week than at any previous time since last Summer. Wholesale trade has tended to increased quiet, and industry, aside from building and kindred trades, has slowed up further.

"In large industrial centres, in the leading coal mining regions and in Eastern and Southern textile manufacturing sections mention is made of reduced industrial employment affecting retail buying.

"Such measures of movement for April as are already available tend to render more clearly visible the sag in industrial operations for which that month seems likely to become notable."

OIL DIVIDENDS DOUBLED.

Ohio Company Stockholders to Get 50 Cents a Share for Quarter.

Directors of the Ohio Oil Company, a Standard Oil unit, doubled the dividend payment on the company's capital stock yesterday. A dividend of 50 cents a share was declared, payable June 30 to stockholders of record May 26. In the two previous quarters the company paid dividends at the rate of 25 cents a share each.

The increase in the dividend rate was looked upon in trade circles as expressing the attitude of the Standard Oil organization in regard to the outlook for the oil industry.

Equipment for Westchester Line.

The New York, Westchester & Boston Railway has awarded to the Westinghouse Company a $200,000 contract for additional car equipment. The new equipment will be used to handle the increased traffic on the Westchester line.

UTILITY COMPANIES RAISE $300,000,000

Vast Amount to Be Spent in Extensions and Improvements in Sewers.

Nearly $300,000,000 of new capital was obtained by the public utility companies of the country during the first three months of this year for extensions, improvements and additions to plant and service equipment, it was disclosed yesterday by the New York State Committee on Public Service Information.

This sum, which establishes a record, exceeded by $30,000,000 the total of all new financing done over the same period by the steam railroads and the iron, steel, rubber, shipping, coal, copper, oil and motor car industries combined, according to the committee.

The exact sum obtained by the public utilities, $298,416,460, is $137,000,000 more than was obtained by the steam railways and $178,000,000 more than was obtained by industrial and manufacturing companies.

Virtually the entire sum represented by bonds, notes and stocks of the public utilities will be spent in the communities served by them, mainly for the improvement of existing service facilities and the extension of lines to outlying sections where the demands for service have made additional facilities necessary.

This money does not include capital obtained for refunding purposes. New capital for this purpose obtained in the same period totaled $87,624,000, which is said to be six times the sum obtained for refunding by the railroads of the country.

The following figures show how the public utilities are continuing to expand, comparing the new capital secured by them in the first quarter of this year with the same period of the four preceding years: 1924, $298,416,460; 1923, $260,625,650; 1922, $113,964,350; 1921, $100,091,900, and for the first quarter of 1920, $77,462,182.

Of the major projects of public utility financing scheduled for this year and not already launched, the contemplated $150,000,000 preferred stock issue of the $150,000,000 stock issue of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is easily the largest. This issue probably will come out within the next sixty days.

STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET.

To Approve Mortgage to Secure Grand Rapids Railroad Bonds.

Stockholders of the Grand Rapids Railway Company have been called to meet May 13 at Grand Rapids to approve and authorize a first mortgage or deed of trust to the American Exchange National Bank of New York, which will secure an issue of $5,000,000 sinking fund gold bonds. Of this amount $3,500,000 bearing interest at 7 per cent. were sold last week in New York by Dillon, Read & Co.

Additional financing is called for also in the notice that a trust agreement with the Michigan Trust Company or some other trust company as trustee will be arranged under which $700,000 of 20-year gold debenture bonds may be issued.

Pennsylvania Loadings Fall.

Car loadings on the Pennsylvania Railroad for the week ended May 3 were 152,908, compared with 171,417 in the corresponding week of 1923.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Industrial Stocks Again Reactionary.

Movement of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday was mostly downward, but the decline in most instances was generally confined to the industrial list. Some of the railroad issues ended the day with fractional declines, but as a whole this group again held its own in face of selling of the speculative industrial issues. In that group there were numerous declines of a point or more. Cast Iron Pipe, which had been pushed up rapidly of late as a result of "pool operations," dropped back 4¾ points yesterday and is now down about 10 points from the high level of ten days ago. Corn Products dropped 2¼ points and issues of a point or more were also recorded in American Smelters, Allied Chemical, Bethlehem Steel and General Electric. Yellow Taxicab and Chicago Yellow Cab both broke sharply again, and new low records for the current year to date were established in these groups. Sentiment in financial circles again seemed to be mixed regarding the immediate outlook for the petroleum industry, despite the fact that producers continued to express confidence that the industry is on the eve of a period of record-breaking consumption.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, aggregating 457,000 shares, was the smallest total reported for any day thus far this year. The previous low record was established on March 11, when an aggregate of 464,000 changed hands. Less than 10,000 shares of Steel common were traded in yesterday, while Baldwin sales just passed that mark. About 25 per cent. of all dealings were confined to eight stocks. In no month since last August has a smaller total of transactions been reported; yesterday held the record since the 9th of that month, when only 374,000 shares were dealt in. During the present week in 1923, transactions averaged a million shares per day.

Steel Tonnage Report Today.

At noon today the United States Steel Corporation will issue its statement showing the amount of forward business carried on its books as of May 1. Earlier in the month predictions were made in the financial district declaring that a drop of between 300,000 and 400,000 tons would be reported compared with orders carried over on April 1. In the late afternoon yesterday, however, Wall Street opinion was that the minimum reduction to be reported today would be 400,000, and that possibly a larger decrease may be shown. This estimate caused some selling in the stock market in the closing hour, and stocks reacted rather sharply for a time. Steel common dropped to 97¾, but before the close it recovered and ended the day at 98¼, a net gain of ⅛. Most other steel and industrial stocks however, failed to recover and closed with small fractional losses. Accompanying the steel tonnage estimates, reports were received of further curtailment of operations in the industry. The Steel Corporation plants as a whole are now said to be operating at about 72 per cent. of capacity, against 78 per cent. last week and 75 per cent. two weeks ago; the independents at about 60 per cent., against 64 per cent. last week, 65 per cent. two weeks ago. Some units are down to 50 per cent. of capacity.

A Market of Special Moves.

It was remarked in the financial district yesterday that the market had become one in which stocks moved separately and for particular reasons, that there is no uniform movement of any sort and that the grouping, by industries, means little or nothing in the general results. This was reflected yesterday in weakness in one or two of the "specialty stocks" which have recently been pool favorites, at the same time that quiet strength was reflected in other directions. The bear tactics at present employed reflect sharp and concerted attacks on one or two stocks, while the balance of the market is left entirely alone. United States Cast Iron Pipe and Yellow Cab were the stocks picked out for professional assault yesterday, and the bears appear to have no trouble in getting them lower.

Southern Pacific's Report.

Publication yesterday by the Southern Pacific of one of the best annual reports in its history had little or no effect on the stock of that company on the New York Stock Exchange. There was no net change for the day. This was explained by the fact that the earning figures as submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission more than two months ago had been used by many in the financial district to anticipate the statement issued yesterday. On the other hand, earnings for the first three months of this year have not been equal to those of a year ago, and it is also reported that the hoof and mouth disease cut into the April traffic of the company. The figures and the predictions in the annual report, however, indicate that 1924 also will be a very successful year for the company.

Money at a New Low Rate.

Money rates dipped another quarter of 1 per cent. in yesterday's dealings and, even at the lower rates, it was reported that new business was exceedingly scarce. Bids for thirty to ninety day loans were 3¾ per cent., but, so far as reported, there were no actual transactions at that figure; bids for four, five and six months money were made at 4 per cent. and there were actual transactions at that price. These figures, it was noted, were not only the lowest for this year, but also the lowest for all of 1923 and the lowest since April, 1922. The closing week's rate on call money at 3½ per cent. duplicated a similar record for uniformity in this quotation. From Jan. 18 to 27, last, call money renewed every day at 4 per cent., and from May 7 to next May 12, at least, the renewal rate is now assured at 3½ per cent. each day, yesterday's rate binding over the week-end. In connection with easy money condition, reports were revived yesterday that the Boston and Philadelphia Reserve banks would follow the New York bank's action in reducing its rediscount rate. These steps, it was said, would be taken within the next fortnight.

Budget Reform and the Franc.

There was very little new added yesterday to information concerning the sharp break on Thursday in the French franc, but an absence of nervousness was apparent in yesterday's market. In this connection, bankers' advices brought forth one interesting bit of information, namely, that revenues from the new tax measures adopted by the Government of France bid fair to exceed the earlier estimates. Thus it would seem, as one international banker suggested, that the fundamental reform required to effect a stabilization of the franc had been definitely accomplished. Relating to Thursday's break, which was still a matter of considerable yesterday, it was also suggested that the absence of short selling had probably speeded the reaction. With the franc quotation in the sole power of the Bank of France, it was said, speculators on the short side had been driven from the market; consequently, the quotation ran up too swiftly; and, when a decline came, the absence of needed buying orders to cover commitments facilitated the break.

CITY BOND PROJECT FINDS BANKERS COOL

BUYERS ARE SCARED AWAY

The dispute Thursday between Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig at the city's Sinking Fund Commission meeting gave bankers their first hint of prospective new financing by the City of New York. As a result of this "letting the cat out of the bag," the market for city securities slowed up, with prospective buyers scared away. The advance in prices of outstanding city stocks and bonds also was temporarily arrested, yesterday's closing prices being the same as Thursday's.

Bankers were reluctant to comment on the merits of the Hylan-Craig dispute. Informally, the officers of institutions which have bid in the past on city issues said they did not believe present market conditions were such as to make a success of an offering of corporate stock on a 4 per cent. basis. There was not one banker who said he was willing to undertake to sell city bonds on such a basis, the price being, so they said, too high to insure success.

The Controller's statement that a delay might imperil the city's chances of marketing an issue on a 4¼ per cent. basis did not find many supporters. While admitting that the Controller's judgment was as good as that of a banker, financiers expressed the belief that money rates were tending toward lower levels rather than higher. For two, three and even four weeks, it was believed, the present advantageous market could be utilized. The money surplus, however, would have to increase considerably, they said, before the Mayor's hope of a 4 per cent. basis could be realized.

The bankers who would assume the risks of buying and reselling city stock would be guided entirely by the present prices investors are willing to pay for such issues.

City securities are now priced to yield from 4.15 per cent. to 4.35 per cent. The following table, computing the yield from the prices asked by holders of bonds rather than from the prices that new buyers are actually willing to pay, shows also the gain in values of city stock over the last month:

Rate.	Maturity.	Bid Asked April 5.	Bid Asked Yesterday.	Present Yield On Price.

Were the city to succeed in placing its corporate stock on a 4 per cent. basis, it would bring its securities up to a par with State of New York securities—which enjoy the best prices of any security listed not even excluding United States Government bonds. New York State bbonds are now selling on a 2.93 per cent. to a 3.07 per cent. basis. All except one issue are quoted under the 4 per cent. level. Asked why State of New York bonds should enjoy a higher credit rating than City of New York bonds, one banker replied: "The State of New York has the greatest State in the Union back of its securities; it has a relatively small debt; and its sinking fund provisions are large and never trammeled with. The City of New York has back of its securities the richest city in the world, but it is always near the debt limit, frequently investors learn of new moves to exceed this limit, and efforts are made from time to time to divert even the sinking fund accretions to purposes other than that of redeeming outstanding obligations totaling some $135,000,000."

There was no foreign Government financing at all this week, whereas there was $40,000,000 of new financing during the previous week for the Netherlands. The total of industrial financing this week was about one-eighth that of last week.

By groups this week and last week compared as follows:

A syndicate has been formed to underwrite a new issue of stock of the R. E. Thompson Radio Corporation, manufacturers of radio apparatus. The company has an authorized capital stock of 140,000 shares, of which 127,100 shares have been issued. The present plan contemplates the sale of 47,000 shares of this stock. The corporation has acquired control of the R. E. Thompson Manufacturing Company and the Wireless Improvement Company.

It was reported that negotiations were under way for the marketing in the next fortnight of an issue of $4,000,000 of short term notes of the Wisconsin Central Railroad Company. The notes would probably be secured by the deposit of $8,000,000 of refunding bonds of the company, which is controlled by the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company.

The sale of yesterday's offering of $7,000,000 Florida Western & Northern Railroad Company first mortgage sinking fund 7 per cent. gold bonds was announced at noon by Dillon, Read & Co.; Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.; Kissel, Kinnicutt Co., and the Citizens & Southern Company of Savannah, the underwriters.

MORGAN AT HIS OFFICE.

J. P. Morgan was at his office yesterday for the first time since he started on his tour of Europe. He arrived in New York on Thursday but did not visit Wall Street until yesterday.

Following a conference with his partners he met reporters yesterday afternoon but refused to add anything to the remarks he made when landing the previous day. He stated that he "still must be discreet" and that he would have to be discreet for some time to come.

It was intimated that the prospects of a loan to Germany was not a matter of days. The financier suggested that it would require far longer than that. He made it known that the bankers in this country have been studying all angles of the situation, and under certain conditions have made up their minds as to how the business could be handled.

New Officers for Pacific Bank.

DENY STEEL WAGE CUT.

Youngstown and Republic Say No Reduction is Considered.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 9.—No wage reduction is being contemplated by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, leading independent of the Youngstown iron and steel district, President Campbell said when asked about New York reports.

"This is the first I had heard of it," Mr. Campbell said. "We have no such plans. Reduction in wages in the steel industry at the time wages in other industries are still advancing is foolish talk. Buying of steel has improved. Consumption is now exceeding production. Buyers are still cautious, due to political conditions, and a cut of $10 per ton, meaning selling at a loss of our products, would not stimulate buying at this time."

Republic Iron and Steel Company executives also said no wage reduction is being considered.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 9.—The report from New York that the wages of steel mill employes were to be cut was characterized here today by steel officials as propaganda sent out for the purpose of forcing down the market price of finished steel.

Not a steel concern in the Pittsburgh district has inferred directly or indirectly that a cut in the wages of their employes was contemplated.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPORTS BIG GAINS

NET INCOME $44,552,482

Railroad's Statement for the Year Indicates Largest Operating Revenues in Its History.

The Southern Pacific company earned a net income of $44,552,482, or $12.94 a share on its outstanding common stock in 1923, according to the annual report published yesterday. This compares with $32,600,150, or $9.47 a share in 1922. The railroad carried 20 per cent. more net ton miles of revenue freight than in 1922, and increased its freight revenue 11 per cent. Total operating revenues, $267,204,634, were the largest in the history of the company, and compared with $262,519,169 in the preceding year. The income account compares as follows:

Operating expenses	207,166,588	192,664,456
Operating income	59,584,990	49,867,763

Total assets of the company were reported as $1,934,513,005, compared with $1,867,719,875 in 1922. Of this gain, $51,471,243 was additional investment in the road and equipment, and $18,121,875 deposits in lieu of the mortgaged property sold. As the result of the settlement with the Government during 1923, the $20,120,156 deficit in guaranteed income of 1922 was written off the books.

At the close of the year the company had on hand $20,453,478 in cash, compared with $23,030,463 in 1922, and material and supplies totaled $35,889,293, against $29,781,719. Current assets were $77,132,029, compared with $75,211,412 the preceding year, and current liabilities, $41,276,032.

In his remarks to stockholders Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Executive Committee, said that compared with 1922 the average compensation per employe decreased 2.8 per cent., reducing the operating expenses by $6,011,000. Lower fuel prices saved $3,819,000, he said. The average revenue per ton mile of freight, however, fell 8.06 per cent. and the average passenger mile decreased 1.93 per cent., reducing the operating revenue $17,349,000. Taxes, he said, increased $1,505,971.

"The most difficult problem confronting railway management today is the uncertainty regarding the future of the transportation industry of the country," Mr. Kruttschnitt said. "Leaving aside the question of whether the national policy shall be that of government ownership or of private operation, it is imperative until and unless a change is made in the present national policy that there should be a well-defined and consistent program for the supervision and regulation of the railways, and that there should not be constant proposals for new national and State legislation.

"The investing public cannot be expected to provide for the ever growing needs of the transportation industry unless it is reasonably secure against confiscatory legislation, and is assured that the railway property in which it invests will be permitted, under efficient management, to earn a reasonable return."

SAUNDERS TO START ANEW.

Expects to Make More Than He Lost in "Piggly Wiggly" Corner.

Clarence Saunders of Memphis, Tenn., known to Wall Street as the engineer of the famous Piggly Wiggly "corner" on the Stock Exchange, has completed arrangements to re-enter the business world and recoup the fortune he lost in the failure of his stock market venture, according to advices received in the financial district yesterday. Saunders has organized under the laws of Delaware a new organization to be known as the Clarence Saunders Corporation, which has an authorized capital of 50,000 shares of 8 per cent. preferred stock of $50 a share par value and 500,000 shares of common stock without par value. The purchaser of each share of preferred stock receives one share of common stock as a bonus.

In endeavoring to get back on his feet and open a new chain of stores in the South, Saunders, it is understood, is soliciting the support of stockholders who backed him in his previous venture. In a letter accompanying a copy of the prospectus of the new organization Saunders says:

"Because of circumstances with which you are familiar I lost everything I had accumulated as the product of my life's work except my energy, my experience and my business knowledge. With these I have started a new business which I am positive will be many times more successful and profitable than any of my past record. I am going to make again more than I lost and much more besides."

BUILDING PROGRESS TOO FAST FOR BANKS

Brooklyn Institutions Unable to Keep Up With Boom in That Borough.

The building boom in Brooklyn and Long Island is going ahead at such a rapid pace that Brooklyn bankers are not able to keep up with it, according to statements made by New York bankers yesterday. As a result, it was said, several Brooklyn institutions which have been financing new building in that section have turned to the Manhattan institutions for help along this line.

Manhattan banks, in the meantime, have had plenty to do by way of supporting new building operations on this side of the river and these was said yesterday to be little likelihood of raising additional funds for Brooklyn builders. The larger insurance companies and savings banks, in Manhattan as well as Brooklyn, have advanced funds to promote Brooklyn building, although in most cases Manhattan institutions have confined the greater part of their activity to Manhattan and the Bronx.

The condition, bankers said, was not such as to justify a prediction that the building boom would be slowed down by lack of new financing means. On the contrary, they said, banks outside of New York City are continually sending money into New York and part of this money may be deflected to building operations. Savings deposits also are growing and insurance companies are steadily expanding their resources. These two classes of financial institutions are bearing the burden of new construction work.

New York national banks which are members of the Federal Reserve system find their hands tied. Under existing regulations, based on the present National Bank act, these banks are not permitted to make loans on real estate, no matter how advantageous such loans might be. The purpose, as explained at the time of enactment of the law, was to keep bank resources in the Federal Reserve centres in extra liquid condition. National banks which are not located in headquarters cities are permitted to make such loans.

A channel through which new money is flowing into construction has been widened by investment bankers. These institutions recently have been very active in selling new bond issues, secured by buildings and real estate. Public subscriptions to these bonds have in turn paved the way for the construction of new buildings and this method of financing is said to be on the increase rather than on the wane. One New York investment banking house reported yesterday that it had been considering seriously for two weeks the advisability of offering an issue of $40,000,000 in real estate bonds. This house rarely has departed from the sale of industrial, public utility or governmental bond issues.

EGYPT SELLING COTTON.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

CAIRO, May 9.—Cotton circles understand the Government is ready to dispose of a substantial share of the cotton purchased by the Government last Autumn in the hope that the Government's entry into the market would advance prices.

Five thousand bales arrived on the Alexandria Bourse today. It is understood that most of this consignment is Government-owned cotton, and as a result the market closed weaker than for some time. The week-end intervening augurs a falling tendency on Monday unless the Government meanwhile, in deference to land owners, withdraws stocks.

BANK EXCHANGES IN APRIL SHOW GAIN

Drawn checks on American banks and exchanged at the principal clearing houses of the country, for the month of April, totaled $36,415,480,971, an increase of 1.7 per cent. over March and 7.6 per cent. greater than that for April, 1923. For the year to date, last month's aggregate had been exceeded only once, and that in January, when the total ran over $37,500,000,000. Clearings in New York City averaged $20,325,871,315, which was 3.4 per cent. over the return for March, and 12.8 per cent. greater than that for April, 1923. Outside of this district last month's exchanges fell a fraction below March, but were 1.7 per cent. in excess of the April, 1923, return.

So far as the return of the individual Federal Reserve districts for last month is concerned, the increase was attributable to larger clearings in New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City and Dallas, the other districts showing losses, according to the summary which was compiled by The Financial Chronicle.

April clearings for the entire United States compare as follows with those of previous months and years:

WALL ST. RECALLS THE PANIC OF 1901

BIG GROWTH SINCE THEN

Wall Street recalled yesterday that it was just twenty-three years ago when the so-called "Northern Pacific panic" struck the market. It occurred on May 9, 1901, as the result of a desperate fight for control of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company by two opposing groups of bankers, and was the result of a corner in the stock on that day 3,071,806 shares of stock were traded in, comprising 158 issues.

But, just as all corners serve to wreck the market as a whole, the Northern Pacific corner completely demoralized the stock market and extreme declines of from 10 to 25 points were recorded on that day. The centre of interest, of course, was in Northern Pacific, which started the day at $170 per share and ran up to $700 for stock purchased in the regular way and $1,000 per share for stock purchased for cash. After touching $700 the Northern Pacific stock dropped back to $325, but closed the day with a net advance of 163 points. Northern Pacific stock for cash, after selling for $1,000 per share, declined to $320.

While all the excitement was going on at the Northern Pacific post the rest of the market was in a state of demoralization. United States Steel common, which opened that morning at 45, sold down to 38, and then back to 40¾ at the close. Amalgamated Copper, which had opened at 118, sold down to 90 and recovered to 106. American Smelting and Refining, which had opened at 56, sold down to 39¾ and closed at 53, while Atchison, which had opened at 76, sold down to 43 and then recovered to 66¾. Rock Island declined from 158 to 125, and Consolidated Gas from 210 to 195. General Electric from 217 to 200, Illinois Central from 135 to 124, Louisville and Nashville from 103½ to 76, and Missouri Pacific from 102 to 72. Declines throughout the list that night indicated losses which ran up to 24 points in Union Pacific, 10½ in St. Louis Southwestern preferred, 20¾ in New York & St. Louis second preferred, 18¾ in Manhattan Elevated, 23¾ in Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and 14¾ points in Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

A comparison of the report of transactions on the New York Stock Exchange on that day with current reports of the market emphasizes the manner in which the market has grown in the past twenty-three years. On that exciting day 158 issues were dealt in. On the average day at the present time approximately 400 issues are dealt in and the record is 519, established on Dec. 27, 1923. There are almost 1,000 issues now listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

One of the differences between the stock list of twenty-three years ago and today is the large number of securities which have disappeared from the stock list, either because of merger with other companies or for other reasons. Among the issues which were traded in on May 9, 1901, and which do not now appear on the list were Amalgamated Copper, Brunswick City, Consolidated Tobacco, Glucose Sugar Refining, Iowa Central, International Pump, National Salt Company, Quicksilver Company, Rubber Goods Company, St. Louis & Adirondack and United States Leather.

The bond transactions indicate, in comparison, even greater changes. On the day of the Northern Pacific panic fifty-four bonds were traded in, practically all of them of the railroad group. The entire stock and bond table in THE NEW YORK TIMES on that day occupied approximately one and one-half columns of space. One of the interesting relics of the financial district to be found in many of the brokerage houses is the tabulated report of sales on the New York Stock Exchange on that day.

SINCLAIR DENIES RUMORS.

Declares His Company Is Not Planning New Financing.

H. F. Sinclair, Chairman of Directors of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, issued a statement yesterday denying recent reports that the company was contemplating new financing or the establishment of new bank credits. Mr. Sinclair also expressed the opinion that since March consumption of crude oil in the United States had exceeded production and that the current production figures were misleading.

"The Sinclair Corporation contemplates no new financing, and there has been no discussion of any new financing by either directors or the Finance Committee," said Mr. Sinclair's statement. "In the normal course of our operations the accumulation of inventories is usual at this season of the year, and in this connection we have used some of our bank lines for reasonable loans. Those loans have probably passed their peak, as we are already reducing our inventories because of increasing sales, and from this time on we should reduce bank loans steadily. Unless some unforeseen development occurs in the petroleum industry no change in dividends can be suggested, as earnings during the first four months of the year have exceeded the estimates upon which that financial budget was based."

COTTON UP SHARPLY IN THREE MARKETS

MAY GAINS OVER A CENT

Final Prices Higher by 70 to 113 Points Here, With Trading the Most Active in Weeks.

Cotton advanced in all three markets yesterday, May gaining over a cent. A daily reduction in the local stock as contrasted with the movement in this direction in May last year, together with low temperatures in the cotton belt, disturbed sentiment and developed a wave of buying. In addition to activity in old crop positions, Europe, the South, the West, and local interests bought new crop months and caused an advance to highest levels in some weeks. The May premium rose to 210 points over July, bringing the price to 31¼ cents, while July sold above 29 cents and October over 25¼c. Final quotations showed a gain of 70 to 113 points on a large volume of business.

With further strength in Liverpool and continued low temperatures in the cotton belt, buying orders were received in large volume at the opening. Overnight telegrams from various sections took a quantity of old and new crop contracts, and instead of quieting down as on previous days, market activity increased as the morning advanced. When the weather map showed lower temperatures than on Thursday, with no immediate prospects of a radical change in predictions for today, the buying movement broadened. Houses with Western and Southern connections bought aggressively. Local and professional operators added strength to the movement, while the covering in May and July increased. Demand for May became a feature which ran that month more than 2 cents over July, the highest premium of the season. A further loss in the local stock brought figures below 55,000 bales, and various spot interests bought steadily. May rose over 31¼ cents, while foreign buying of late months closed new crop positions at the top.

Temperatures in Oklahoma and Arkansas ran as low as 43 degrees last week, bringing a less satisfactory weekly weather summary on Wednesday. But the past forty-eight hours some points in the Western belt reported temperatures of 40 and below during the day, whereas normal progress of the season should be toward warmer weather. While rainfall was not excessive as at this time a year ago, the delay caused by low temperatures has retarded instead of advancing the progress of vegetation.

In sight figures for the week were 66,000 against 65,000 last year, making a total of 10,568,000 against 10,505,000 last season. Spinners took 177,000 against 158,000 last year, bringing the season's total to 9,676,000 against 10,763,000 last year. The visible supply decreased 111,000 bales, compared with 96,000 last year, which left the world's supply of American cotton 1,762,000 against 1,720,000 a year ago.

France Prohibits Copper Export.

Terms of a ministerial decree dated March 25 strictly prohibit the export out of France of copper and its re-exportation from bonded warehouses or in transit, according to an announcement yesterday by the Foreign Department of the Bankers' Trust Company. The decree applies also to all debris of copper or alloys containing a percentage of copper and to residues from chemical processes which might contain a trace of copper.

WHEAT RISES A CENT; CORN NEARLY TWO

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Sentiment swung sharply to the bull side of wheat and corn today and, with more encouraging news, both grains advanced and closed well toward the top, with wheat ¾@1 cent and corn ⅞@1⅛ higher. Oats were dull, but gained ⅛@¼ cent in sympathy with other grains, while rye was up ⅛@⅜ cent on reports of poor crop conditions in Germany and a small export demand.

The Government report when analyzed is somewhat more bullish on wheat than expected as the condition of 84.6 showed a gain of only 1.6 points, as compared with April despite the elimination of over 3,000,000 acres which helped to make the low April outlook. This suggests that there are numerous sore spots and that the growing crop made little response to generally favorable weather during the past month.

Freezing temperatures were predicted for Kansas and Nebraska tonight and all some of the Kansas wheat is jointing and in a position to be damaged if ice to considerable apprehension.

However, the main bullish influence is the belief that the world's situation is gradually strengthening, indicated by the decrease of over 8,000,000 acres in thirteen leading countries in the Northern Hemisphere, as compared with the 115,000,000 acres in 1923.

Export sales for the day were 500,000 bushels, largely Manitobas, but included 64,000 bushels hard Winter at the Gulf. Hard & Botterel of Winnipeg failed to clear their trades there today and defaulted on around 375,000 bushels of wheat. The closing out of their account yesterday was a factor in the break.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 437,000 bushels; week ago, 440,000; last year, 505,000. Shipments were 476,000 bushels; week ago, 875,000; last year, 511,000.

Messages from Duluth claimed that the bulk of the corn stock there had been sold for shipment. It is fully confirmed now that one New York house bought 950,000 bushels there one day this week, presumably for an industry, but there has been more export business passing than reported. Minneapolis sold 50,000 bushels of corn for shipment during the day, and the seaboard reported 250,000 bushels sold abroad.

Short covering and the removal of hedges against cash sales were a factor in making the upturn.

Corn receipts were 668,000 bushels; week ago, 676,000; last year, 818,000, and shipments, 467,000 bushels; week ago, 836,000; last year, 647,000.

BOSTON, May 9.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The wool market continues erratic and generally in favor of the buyer. Manufacturers, naturally, are not trying to stiffen prices for wool; indeed, they have little to encourage them in the goods market and so the wool merchants are rather nonplused over the future.

"In the West operations have been more or less subordinated to the one big deal; that is negotiations for the Jericho wools, of which the highest bid Monday was 49½c. These bids being refused, an option was taken for a few days at 43c, which was fixed by the selling committee as the minimum. Last year 51c was paid for this clip.

"London opened with prices steady except for low greasy crossbreds and inferior continental types. With financial burdens heavy both in Yorkshire and on the Continent, it is evident that the peak load has been reached by the holders of wool and so London has been a bit irregular. Bradford topmakers, however, refuse to break prices and predict a big market in the near future. Prices were steady at the Brisbane sale."

CHICAGO, May 9.—The hog market was unsettled, advancing five and ten cents early, only to finish with the upturn lost as big packers refused to take hold freely. The top was $7.70 and the day's average $7.55. Cattle sold readily at former prices. Increased offerings of lambs and sheep resulted in lower prices, with lambs off fifteen and twenty-five cents and the top $17.00. Sheep were weak.

CONVICTED POTTERS GO FREE ON APPEAL

TRIED IN WRONG CIRCUIT

Reference to Lockwood Inquiry Also a Mistake, Says Federal Court.

The conviction under the Sherman act, in April, 1923, of the companies that composed the Sanitary Potters Association and twenty of their officers, was reversed yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals in an opinion written by Judge Hough and concurred in by Judges Rogers and Mayer. The indictment followed a long inquiry into the building trades, and came on the heels of an investigation by Samuel Untermyer, as counsel for the Lockwood committee, into housing conditions. Eight of the individual defendants were sentenced to prison, and all were fined, at the trial before the late Judge Van Fleet.

The reversal was based on errors by the Trial Court and on the fact that the case was brought in this jurisdiction instead of in the Third Circuit District, which includes New Jersey, where several of the principal corporate defendants were located. Concerning this point the decision says:

"Why the United States was so anxious to institute and prosecute this case in the City of New York we do not know, but the frame of indictment, compared with the undisputed facts, shows that New York was intentionally selected, and trial of these defendants in the Third Circuit, where most of them resided, was sedulously avoided. Such a choice as this carried with it the burden of proving something done on the Southern District—an overt act, justifying the finding of an indictment therein."

The opinion says it was an error to overrule certain testimony, and that an error was also committed when the jury was instructed that it was immaterial whether any effort had been made to carry out the conspiracy.

Still another error was made, according to the opinion, when the Secretary of the Potters Association, when testifying, was asked whether a Mr. Hanley had been examined by the Lockwood committee. In commenting on this the opinion says:

"The context shows that this mention of the Lockwood Committee was of design, the imputation or suggestion being that any one who was under fire by that organization was entitled, by being so tasked. This is a favorite and very modern form of verbal assault, but it has no place in a criminal trial."

David L. Podell, a special assistant to the Attorney General, who helped gather the evidence in the case, said the reversal would be appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The individual defendants who were sentenced to prison terms and fined were:

Archibald M. Maddock, ten months in Essex County, N. J., Penitentiary and $5,000; George C. Kalbfleisch, Elsey S. Aitken, William S. Maddock, Arthur Plantier Sr., Phillip J. Faherty, J. C. Wright and Raymond E. Crane, six months each and $5,000 each.

These defendants were fined: Bert O. Tilden, Harry J. Lyons, Edward C. Brigham, Theodore Harker, Harry F. Weaver, James E. Slater, Newton W. Stern and T. Monroe Dobbins, $5,000, and James A. Dorety, Walter F. Drugan, William C. Chamberlain and John F. Smith, $250 each.

The following corporations were fined: Thomas Maddock's Sons Co., Trenton Potteries Company, Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, Pacific Sanitary Manufacturing Co., John Maddock & Sons, Byers Pottery Company, the Abingdon Sanitary Manufacturing Company, National-Helfrich Pottery Company Sanitary Earthenware Specialty Company, E. C. T. BETHLEHEM STEEL WINS.

Action by Cambria's Minority Stockholders Is Dismissed.

A motion to quash a subpoena served on the Bethlehem Steel Company in a suit instituted by minority stockholders of the Cambria Steel Company to have the merger of the two concerns declared void, was granted yesterday by Federal Judge Learned Hand. This dismisses the action. Besides seeking the annullment of the merger the plaintiffs asked that a receiver be appointed pending the outcome and for an accounting of the Cambria Company since the merger in November, 1922.

The complainants were Edward B. Graves, Walter G. Graves, Arthur C. Graves and A. Margery Graves as executrix of the estate of Richard S. Graves, and William A. Paine.

The complaint alleged that the merger of the Cambria was accomplished through fraud, and that it lacked a cash consideration.

CATTLE DISEASE DYING OUT.

Loss in California Is 77,659 Head of Stock—Cost Is $2,962,122.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Only seven herds of cattle known to be infected with foot-and-mouth disease remained alive today in California, the Department of Agriculture stated in announcing that the situation continued to improve under the combined State and Federal campaigns.

Complete suppression of the disease in Merced County, where no new cases of infection had been reported for three days, was announced. Merced County with its many large ranches, was heavily infected a few weeks ago. Discovery of outbreaks on the farms in Tulare County resulted in quarantine being imposed there yesterday.

SACRAMENTO, May 9.—A report filed today by the State Department of Agriculture gives the total loss to date in California of the foot-and-mouth disease as $2,962,122. Of this amount $86,000 is represented by property and equipment destroyed in fighting the disease, the balance represents appraisals of the slain stock.

The report shows that a total of 77,659 head of stock were destroyed since the epizootic started.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, impresario of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by A. Jaeckel & Co., furriers, for $2,281. The papers were served on him at the opera house when he returned from the road trip with the company. The complaint alleges that in the Spring of 1923 Mme. Gatti accompanied Mme. Alda, his wife, to the store of the plaintiff, where she purchased a cloth wrap and collar amounting to $235 and that between June and October, 1923, the plaintiff rendered services for her in respect to fur garments at her husband's request amounting to $1,865. A further claim for $228 is made for storing Mme. Alda's furs for a year.

Counsel for the Jaeckel company stated yesterday that Mr. Gatti had not repudiated the claims, but that many bills had been sent to him which had been ignored and for that reason it was necessary to bring suit.

DISCUSS PROCEDURE OF CITY'S ASSEMBLY

Just what system of rules the Board of Estimate will function under when it becomes the upper house of the Municipal Assembly as a result of the passage of the Home Rule Enabling act was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the board. The new Municipal Assembly will not come into existence officially until the Board of Aldermen organizes next week as the lower house of the body.

When the Board of Estimate met last week it formally organized part of the Municipal Assembly, its first act being the introduction of a resolution creating a Department of Investigation and Accounts. This was done, it was admitted, for the purpose of restoring to Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield the subpoena power taken away by the Fearon bill, passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Smith.

When Mayor Hylan pressed for a vote on this resolution yesterday Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert reminded him that under the home rule measure a bill cannot be acted upon until it has lain on the table seven days. The resolution was then put over for next week's meeting.

President Hulbert then submitted a resolution providing that five days' notice of a public hearing before the Mayor on every local law shall be published in the City Record and in such daily newspaper or newspapers published in the City of New York as shall be selected by the Mayor.

Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn suggested that the Corporation Counsel submit a set of rules under which the new local legislative body shall operate, but it was finally decided that each member of the Board, at its next meeting, submit such rules as he thinks should be adopted.

Borough President Miller of Manhattan thought that the rules governing the State Senate should be adopted entirely.

"If we adopt the Senate rules," said Riegelmann, "we will be wound up so we won't get anywhere."

The Board will meet again next Monday.

TO STOP GRAFT ON AUTOISTS

A. A. A. Will Combat Cash Bail Practice of Village Policemen.

Officials of the American Automobile Association said yesterday that they were taking steps to put a stop to the practice of motorcycle policemen in towns and villages along the Hudson exacting cash bonds for the appearance of motorists charged with minor violations of the law.

"We have written to our State headquarters and to our clubs at Utica and Newburgh," said H. K. Maples, assistant general manager of the association. "The practice as we understand it is for a motorcycle policeman to stop a motorist for a violation of the law and instead of serving him with a subpoena to exact cash bail approximating the amount of fine which would be imposed if the case came to court. The motorist, rather than go to the trouble of appearing in court, forfeits the cash bail of from $5 to $25, which goes to the village treasury if it does not go to the policeman.

"This is a comparatively new trick which seems to have sprung up since we obtained the passage of the new motor vehicle law. In that law it is provided that no village may retain each year more than $1 in fines for each of its population based on the last State or Federal census, which in this case is the 1918 census. It was the practice before for villages to set speed traps and raise most of their revenues from passing motorists. Colony, N. Y., was a striking instance. This is a village of 512 population and in 1923 they collected $12,000 in fines from motorists. Under the new law Colony will be able to retain the first $512, but all fines collected thereafter must go to the State treasury.

"Presumably the new practice of exacting cash bond is to evade this provision of the law. We are going to gather all the evidence we can with a view to putting a stop to it."

HIT TRAIN CONTROL DEVICES

Railroad Men at I. C. C. Hearing Call Them Economically Unsound.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—C. J. Bardo, chief operating officer of the New Haven Railroad, today attacked automatic train control devices as economically unsound before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The number of deaths on the nation's railways due to collisions preventable by perfect working automatic train control systems is almost negligible as compared with deaths from other causes, Bardo said.

He recommended that the money be utilized to extend systems of automatic block signals, eliminate grade crossings and prevent trespassing on railroad property, saying the grade crossings are increasing five times as fast as they are being eliminated.

W. R. Cole, President of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad, testified that train control systems are still in an experimental stage and that to install them would require a great expenditure, with the possibility that they would have to be junked within a short period. He recommended that the money be spent in other safety work.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today fixed October for argument in the suit of the Government against the Chemical Foundation, Inc., for the return of seized German patents sold to it by the Alien Property Custodian. The case was dismissed by the Federal District Court of Delaware last Winter and appealed.

April Burlap Shipments Light.

April shipments of burlaps from Calcutta to North American ports were set at only 62,000,000 yards by cables received from that market yesterday by C. W. Mackenzie & Co., Inc. Of this total 16,000,000 yards were consigned to the Pacific Coast. In March 80,800,000 yards were shipped, and the total for April, 1923, was 69,538,000 yards. The grand total of shipments for the first four months of this year is 340,000,000 yards, compared with 287,211,000 yards for the same period of last year. This makes a monthly average for the present year of somewhat more than 80,000,000 yards.

Some Hard Coal Getting Scarce.

The difference between the anthracite situation today and a month ago is noteworthy, Seward's Journal will say today. Early in April the demand was slow and all sizes were in free supply at company prices or less. At present there is a consumed shortage of stove coal, almost as great a shortage of egg, while nut and pea are moving well, even if it is only because buyers will take a proportion of those sizes in order to get their orders for the other sizes accepted. While the buying of bituminous coal has not increased to any marked extent, there are signs of reviving interest on the part of some consumers. This and the absence of distress coal has brought about a slightly better sentiment.

Report Changes in Buying Staff.

A number of changes in the personnel of the Merchandise and Research Bureau, 276 Fifth Avenue, was announced yesterday by Charles A. Cook, director of the bureau. Miss H. M. Hall now becomes general assistant to Mr. Cook. She was formerly with the L. S. Brandeis Company, Omaha, Neb., and until recently was in charge of the local buying office of that concern. Miss Mary Stack succeeds Miss Belle Golding as general representative on coats and suits. Her previous connections were with William Filene's Sons Company and Jordan Marsh Company, Boston. Other additions include Miss N. Seylan, general representative on Infants', Juniors' and children's apparel; Miss N. Marcus, representative on popular-priced dresses, and Miss Greta Farrell, general representative on blouses and knitted apparel, including sweaters.

Award Glove Display Prizes.

First prize of $300 for the best pre-Easter retail window display of gloves was won by C. M. Shrider, display manager of the A. E. Starr Company, Zanesville, Ohio, it was announced by the Glove Industries Advertising Committee, following a meeting of the judges at 25 Fifth Avenue yesterday. The second prize of $100 was awarded to A. C. Raining of Boyd-Richardson, St. Louis, Mo. The Warner-Bailey Company, Hartford, won the third prize of $50. In addition there were five awards of $25 each and ten prizes of $5 each. The winning display featured as a background a large oil painting of people leaving a church on Easter morning. In the centre of the window was a wax figure of a woman in evening attire, with long gloves for dress wear. At the end of the window, business and sport gloves were shown and a novel effect was obtained by pleating pieces of bronze leather to the screen and copper colors on fan shaped stands.

Buying of Summer Merchandise.

With only nine days left before the official opening by the retail stores of the new sports and Summer season in women's apparel, wholesalers here expect to see somewhat of a spurt in the demand for this merchandise during the coming week. The buying so far has been spotty, and no great amount of activity has resulted for the new season. Some retailers have covered their early requirements, but the greater portion of retail needs, it is estimated, is yet to be purchased. Part of the lack of wholesale activity is due to the fact that retailers are still liquidating their Spring stocks and are having no assistance from the weather in their endeavors.

Think Whites Will Do Well.

Although some of the women's magazines seem to be trying to make it appear that white hose will not enjoy the great vogue this Summer that has been predicted for them, the opinion is very strongly to the contrary. Whites, it is said here, are facing one of the best seasons they have had for some time, and this assertion is substantiated by reports from both the manufacturing and retail trades. One of the big manufacturers reported a day or two ago that, barring blacks, white hose have been the best sellers of the last two weeks, which is an indication of how they are being bought by retailers. A prominent chain of local retail shops reports white hose fifth in a list of about forty shades in its sales of the past week. This indicates a consumer demand for them which, in view of the unseasonable weather that has been experienced this Spring, must be reckoned with in the near future.

Cotton Rise Helps Gray Goods.

The sharp rise in cotton here yesterday added considerable snap to gray goods trading in this market, in addition to stiffening prices in several cases. In the printcloths large sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported from first hands at 6¼ cents, with bids of that figure refused at the close. The same was true of May shipments of 39-inch 68-72s, which sold at 10 cents. May business was also done in 38½-inch 60-48s at 7½ cents. In the sheetings first hands refused bids of 10 cents for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods. Large trading in 36-inch 6.15-yard sheetings was reported at 7 cents, with no more of the goods available at that figure late in the day. Not much was done in the fine-yarn goods or specialties, but some business in 36-inch 84-104, 4.20-yard sateens was put through at 13 cents.

Slump Affecting Middle West.

A representative of a well-known local resident buying concern, recently returned from a six weeks' trip mainly in Middle West cities, found the stores there affected by somewhat of a slump. Their April business, he said yesterday, did not come up to expectations, and this followed an unsatisfactory March in which consumer buying was limited by unfavorable weather. The merchants, however, are entirely confident that the present condition is only temporary, their confidence being definitely shown in the new additions and renovations that are being effected for many establishments. In conversations with these merchants the representative found that they looked forward to a good Fall business.

Lessening Metal Fabric Tarnish.

The tarnishing of metal novelties, metallic fabrics, tinsel, tinsel cloth and jewelry can be greatly diminished by using a wrapping paper for these articles free from sulphur compounds. An anti-tarnish test for such papers, which has been developed recently, is being more generally used by manufacturers who wish to avoid tarnishing, according to a report issued yesterday by the United States Testing Company, Inc. By chemical analysis, it can be determined whether there are any sulphur compounds present in the paper which will form a silver or other metallic sulphide, blackening or tarnishing the surface of the metal. The testing of the paper is considered of particular value now in view of the metallic vogue in silver and gold cloth fabrics, fringes, ornaments, slippers, &c.

Percales Are Selling Steadily.

Although business in percales in this market is not of boom proportions, it is considerably better than that being done in some other lines. Orders being sent in by the jobbers are general in their nature, and, while not very much of any one style or pattern is taken, the business in the aggregate sizes up well in the case of some of the leading printers, at least, it is sufficient to warrant a 100 per cent. production. Stocks in the hands of wholesalers are no heavier than they should be, and some sustained warm weather will stimulate buying considerably. A fair export business in printed cottons is also reported from such markets as the West Indies, the Philippines and Latin America.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

While Some Other Articles Went Down, Foodstuffs Did Not.

Although the excess of declines over advances in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices was smaller this week than for several previous weeks, it was again large enough to be noticeable. In the week's 82 changes 51 were downward. In last week's 64 changes 50 were declines. Despite the general downward trend of the current list, the tendency in the foodstuffs was to go up, and the advances in this part of the list exceeded the declines by a slight margin.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

Of the eighteen changes shown in the foodstuffs this week, ten were advances. The local market for provisions was devoid of change either way, except for advances of 25 cents a barrel in Spring patent and Winter soft straight flours. At Chicago the only changes were advances in live hogs and short ribs.

All of the week's revisions in the dairy products were upward, but none of them was large. The better grades of butter showed an advance of a cent a pound, but there was again no change in cheese. Fancy nearby eggs were up a cent a dozen, while fresh-gathered "firsts" advanced three-quarters of a cent. All the way through this part of the list, however, prices are still lower than at this time last year.

None of the fresh or dried fruits showed change either way this week, and the revisions in the vegetable ward were few. Potatoes supplied the feature with a rise of $1 a barrel, and cabbage went up 50 cents a barrel. There were no declines.

Advances were lacking in the spices, but except for mace and nutmegs all the other items were lower. The granulated sugar was lower, and there was a further drop in 96-test raw sugar. In the beverages the only change was another drop in Rio coffee, with No. 7 Santos unchanged.

Rye was higher in the grain list, declines being shown in hay and corn. The leather list was again quotably unchanged, but of the changes in the hides were upward.

All of the changes in the metals were downward with the declines shown in No. 24 galvanized sheets, furnace coke and pig iron. Building material changes included a rise in Eastern spruce lath and a decline in clear red cedar shingles. California bevel redwood siding was the only item in the lumber list showing advances, with declines shown in quartered white oak, plain red gum, 4-4 cypress and North Carolina air-dried "rooters." Several advances in "independent" and "company" coal were reported.

A drop of 50 cents a pound in menthol, in case lots, was one of the features of the changes of the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils. There were seventeen of them, of which ten were advances. The only change in the naval stores was a break in the price of turpentine.

The number of declines in domestic wools were stated, while in the miscellaneous changes were a decline in hemp, another in Japanese raw silk and lower prices for both Brazilian and plantation crude rubber. In the paper list was the domestic sulphite pulp was offset by declines in No. 1 old paper mixture pulp and chip boards.

The week in the textiles was not productive of a great deal of feature. Burlaps, although they lost some ground, firmed up toward the close of the week. In the cotton declines took place in some of the heavier unfinished goods.

MADISON AV. PLOT SOLD TO SILK FIRM

PLAN 16-STORY BUILDING

As a site for a sixteen-story office building the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street has been purchased by Belding Brothers & Co. of 469 Broadway, silk manufacturers, from the William Waldorf Astor estate. The plot fronts 83.9 feet on Madison Avenue by 120 feet on the street and is improved with old taxpayers. The new operation will be undertaken at the expiration of the present leases on May 1, 1925.

The purchase of this plot by Belding Brothers & Co. places that firm at the head of the new silk district which has been in the process of formation for the past few years. The transaction is one of the most important ones in the new district, and the new operation, together with the building to be constructed by E. M. Catts directly across the street, on the southeast corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, and that by the Mandel-Brich Company on the old car-barn site on Thirty-third Street and Park Avenue, will greatly add to the importance of this section.

The structure will be called the Belding Building and will be the permanent home of that concern.

Apartment House Trading.

Charles Galewski, operator, sold to a client of the S. J. Levitt Company the six-story Harvard Court apartment at 707 and 709 St. Nicholas Avenue, adjoining the corner of 146th Street, on a lot 45 by 100 feet. The building rents for $36,000 and was held at $300,000.

Isadore B. Geller, operator, as President of the Artigan Realty Company, Inc., purchased from Theresa Mayer Duplach and Clara F. Mayer The Normandy, 100 West 119th Street, which is on the southwest corner of Lenox Avenue. It is a seven-story elevator apartment house, on a plot 100 by 75, having seven stores on Lenox Avenue, and which is arranged for thirty-one families in six and seven room suites. The premises rent for $41,000 annually and is held at $340,000. A fifteen-year second mortgage has just been arranged. The sale of the premises was negotiated by Aaron Bauman & Murray Simons brokers.

The same operator also purchased premises 501 and 503 West 160th Street, which is on the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue, which premises are two six-story walk-up apartment houses, on a plot 100 by 100. The corner building has eight stores on the avenue. Both buildings in all are occupied by fifty-five families, the apartments being arranged for three, four, five and six room suites. The premises rent for $54,000 and are now held at $360,000. The sale of the premises was negotiated by Walter H. Ebbit & Co., brokers.

INDICTMENT IS CRITICIZED

Attorney Long Contends That Grand Jury Did Not Know If Disease Germs Were Deadly.

Charles E. Long, counsel for Clarence O. Baring, scored twice yesterday against District Attorney Arthur S. Rowland of Westchester County. He obtained from Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger in White Plains an order staying the trial scheduled for May 22 and all other proceedings in the case pending determination of a motion to transfer the case from the County Court to the Supreme Court.

Before that Long had obtained from Justice Seeger an order directing the prosecutor to show cause today why Long should not receive a copy of the minutes of the Grand Jury which indicted Baring on the charge of attempting to poison his wife with disease germs and arsenic. Long eventually withdrew this motion, so that the order was cancelled. Justice Seeger's order staying the trial read as follows:

"Ordered—That the trial and all proceedings under the indictments found by the Grand Jury against Clarence O. Baring be stayed until determination of the application of Baring's counsel for an order removing the indictments from the County Court to the Supreme Court."

Long's appearance in court with a motion for such an order was the first intimation that he planned to have the trial before the Supreme Court. The trial had been scheduled to be held before Judge William F. Bleakley and a jury, and the Commissioner of Jurors had begun to prepare a list of 100 talesmen for the County Court.

In an affidavit filed with Justice Seeger, Long maintained that because of "the grave and serious questions of law" that would develop at the trial, it was proper that the Supreme Court handle the case. He said that the indictments did not set forth the quantity of arsenic administered to Mrs. Baring. He pointed out that the indictments did not assert whether the quantity was sufficient to do bodily harm and said that the Grand Jury did not know how much poison had been placed in the food given his wife by Baring. He said also that the Grand Jury did not know whether the diphtheria, scarlet fever, pneumonia and typhoid germs in the food were deadly. He contended that administered in food and not injected into the blood, the germs were not deadly.

District Attorney Rowland said he would oppose the transfer of the case to the higher court. Argument will be heard Monday on Long's motion for transfer of the case.

BANDIT PAIR IN PRISON.

Cecilia Cooney, "bobbed-haired bandit," was taken to Auburn Prison from the women's prison adjoining Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning. A keeper and a matron from Auburn took her to Grand Central Terminal in a taxicab. The departure was kept secret until after it occurred, and nobody saw her off.

In the afternoon, Edward Cooney, her husband and her "tall companion" in Brooklyn hold-ups, was taken to Sing Sing Prison from the Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn. Handcuffed to a Deputy Sheriff, he was taken by automobile to Grand Central, and thence by train to Ossining. On his arrival in prison he was dressed in gray and numbered 75,907.

"My wife and I have decided to make the sentence as short as possible by being good prisoners, and when we get out we will go straight," Cooney said.

Cooney and his wife were sentenced to ten to twenty years each. Good behavior will make them eligible to apply for parole in about seven years.

TRY PRINCESS AS A BRIGAND.

Soviet Authorities Say Obolensky's Daughter Has Long Criminal Record

MOSCOW, May 9 (Associated Press).—The Princess Obolensky, daughter of Prince Obolensky, late Governor General of Petrograd and one of the most beautiful girls in Russia, was placed on trial today, charged with brigandage.

In spite of her 24 years, Soviet authorities say that she has a long criminal record. A few years ago she was sentenced to death for espionage, but the sentence later was commuted to imprisonment. Subsequently she served two years in jail for theft and after her liberation was found guilty of eight acts of robbery and brigandage.

At all her trials she pleaded that she was not responsible for her acts, but Russian alienists declared her quite normal mentally.

The trial is attracting wide notice on account of the prominence of the Princess's family, one member of which was employed by the American Relief Association. If the indictment is sustained against the Princess at the present trial she will be sentenced to be shot.

PITTSBURGH CAR MEN QUIT.

Company Plans to Run Trolleys, Probably With Strikebreakers.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 9.—The fifth street car strike here in fifteen years goes into effect at midnight tonight.

All efforts at adjustment on the basis of arbitration of the dispute between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the 3,200 motormen and conductors, members of Division 85, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, have failed. Agreed on arbitration in principle, the two sides continued today the deadlock of the day before on how the arbitration should be put into effect.

It was reported today that the company has 500 strike-breakers in reserve near this city.

LONG BEACH INQUIRY ENDS.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 9.—The Extraordinary Grand Jury completed its investigation of Long Beach affairs today and will begin an inquiry next week into charges of protection of bootleggers, rum runners and smugglers by village and county officials.

Peter J. Brancato, a Deputy Attorney General, has been engaged in nothing else but the investigation of bootlegging and protection charges all the time that other Deputy Attorney Generals have been investigating the financial and administrative affairs of the country and Long Beach.

Deputy Attorney General Kenneth M. Spence, who has been in charge of the Long Beach investigation, said today that the trial of indictments found by the Grand Jury would begin soon, and would go on while the Grand Jury was still in session.
